

MARIE DRESSLER HEADS PROGRAM OF WEEK'S FILMS

Boris Karloff, Constance Bennett and Janet Gaynor Star in Local Theatre.

That inimitable laugh duo, Marie Dressler and Polly Moran, make their latest co-starring appearance Monday at the Carolina theatre in "Prosperity," a story written especially for them. Marie and Polly are seen as mothers-in-law, constantly quarreling, bickering, and interfering with the domestic life of Norman Foster and Anita Page, their respective son and daughter.

George Raft and Nancy Carroll co-star in "Undercover Man" Tuesday.

"The Mask of Fu Manchu," filmization of Sax Rohmer's famous mystery story, with Boris Karloff in the role of the sinister Asiatic, will be shown Wednesday. An imposing cast includes Lewis Stone, Karen Morley, Charles Starrett, Myrna Loy, Jean Hersholt, Lawrence Grant, and David Torrence.

Thursday, Constance Bennett appears in "Rockabye."

Charles Farrell's latest appearance, and his tenth starring role opposite Janet Gaynor, in "Tess of the Storm Country," showing Friday. "Tess" deals with the romance between a sea-captain's daughter and a millionaire's son on the Maine coast.

"Hell's Highway," RKO-Radio's picture of the chain gang, coming Saturday, deals with the brutal treatment of prisoners in American penitentiaries and convict camps. It treats of the same matters treated statistically in the last report of the American Prison Association.

RESEARCH INTO UNIVERSITY FILES EXPOSES PRANKS

H. Haywood in this manner, assured him that all his friends were sustaining the attacker as having acted properly.

Conflicts between students over girls constituted much of the misconduct of the period. In 1818 William Anthony, a student from Virginia, accused Simon Jordon, a young member of the faculty of having insulted him when they had together escorted Miss Betsy Puckett one Sunday afternoon to Mounty Carmel, about four miles from the village toward Pittsboro. Claiming to be of age, Anthony tried to resign from the University in order to fight a duel. Although he was not allowed to withdraw, he armed himself with three pistols, a dirk and a club, and attacked Jordon when he met him on the street. The instructor defended himself until assistance arrived.

At a patriotic banquet February 22, 1818, George Washington's birthday celebration, student carousing broke into an open fight. According to accounts on faculty records, weapons were drawn. Amidst furious fistcuffs and knife play one student, whom the record terms "a peace-maker," was stabbed in the arm.

The recklessness of this extravagant period according to Dr. Kemp Battle in his History of the University, may be laid to the influence of the War of 1812. The war seems to have had a peculiar effect upon the young men of the era, imbuing them with a disregard of laws and a desire for free expression. Innumerable petty rules set down by the faculty were deliberately violated, often to the regret of the students, for the records of the times show an unusually large percentage of suspensions and expulsions.

SPANISH FILM SHOWS AT CAROLINA TONIGHT

The Romance language department is presenting a Spanish cinema, La Fiesta del Diablo, at the Carolina theatre tonight at 9:00 o'clock. In the cast is Carmen Lairabeer, celebrated Spanish actress. The Spanish picture is adapted from an American-made production, The Devil's Holiday, in which Fredric March and Nancy Carroll starred. In the United States the Hollywood production of the novel, which ran serially in one of the leading American periodicals before its publication in book form, was a tremendous box office success. The competence of the leading lady, Carmen Lairabeer, has been largely responsible for its success in Spain.

Student Expression Council Will Bring Speakers To Campus

than a dozen campus groups will be enrolled in the Council before the first lecturer arrives.

The Council, organized from an executive committee selected from several of the sponsoring organizations, has elected Vernon Ward as chairman. Don Shoemaker is publicity director for the group.

Various organizations have underwritten a portion of the financial program of the group, which calls for a guarantee and payment of several large installments prior to the first lecture. The remainder of the revenue of the Council will be realized through the sale of season tickets to the group of eight lectures. Only a limited number of these will be available.

The program proposed for the year will include:

January 12: Powers Hapgood, Columbia Conserve Co., Indianapolis, "The American Scene, 1932." Suggested speaker on the same platform is Jonathan Daniels, assistant editor of the Raleigh News and Observer.

January 19: Dr. John D. Gray, "Behind the Bank Failures, Socialization of Credit." Guerny Hood, chairman of the banking commission of North Carolina is the tentative speaker who will present his aspect of the situation.

January 26: Harry Laidler, executive director L. I. D. and author of Concentration in American Industry, "Trends in the Labor Movement; Organization of the Unskilled; Industrial Unions vs. Craft Unions." John W. Edgerton, president of the American Association of American Manufacturers, Bernard Cone, and Henry P. Kendall may be obtained to represent the other side of the question.

Gruening Will Lecture
February 2: Ernest Gruening, editor of the Portland Evening News (the man who "ran Insull out of Maine"), "What Price Power?" W. S. Lee, president of the Duke Power company, suggested speaker.

February 9: Gordon Ward, extension specialist in Agricultural Economics at V. P. I., "Men and Land." Ralph Page, Aberdeen banker and Clarence Poe, Raleigh editor of the Progressive Farmer, suggested speakers.

February 16: Winifred Chappel, secretary, Methodist Federation for Social Service, "Breaking the Breadlines." Mrs. W. T. Bost, Raleigh, suggested speaker.

February 23: Hubert C. Herring, executive director of the commission on cultural relations with Latin America, "America in the Independent World."

March 2: Norman Thomas, candidate for president 1928, 1932 on the Socialist ticket and executive director of the L. I. D., "The Program for Action—America Plans."

Engineers Pick Cain For Associate Editor

At the meeting of the American Society of Civil Engineers Thursday night, John Cain was elected as the associate editor of the Carolina Engineer from the civil department.

This magazine, a revival of a 1927 publication, was revived by the vote of the four engineering departments some time ago at a joint meeting. The staff is composed of an editor in chief, four associate editors from the four departments, and a business manager; at the joint meeting George Gorham was elected as editor in chief, and Noah Zelley was selected by the group as the business manager.

The election of Cain leaves three associate editors to be elected at the next individual meetings of the Electrical, Mechanical, and Chemical departments.

degree in 1881 and later taught English while doing graduate work at the University. Turning his course of studies to the Union Seminary in Richmond, Va., he was ordained to the ministry in 1887. He served Presbyterian churches in Rocky Mount, Wilson, and Newberry, S. C.

Honorary degrees have been conferred upon him by Austin College and the Universities of North and South Carolina. He is an honorary member of the Phi Beta Kappa, national scholastic fraternity, at both of the latter two institutions.

NELSON ROBBINS JOINS RANKS OF BENEDICTS

Mr. and Mrs. A. O. White of Randleman announced yesterday the marriage of their daughter, Ruth, to Nelson Robbins, a student at the University.

The wedding, which took place last November 26, at Asheboro, was performed by Reverend R. S. Truesdale, Methodist minister in that city.

Robbins is a member of THE DAILY TAR HEEL staff, writing a weekly column, "The Ink Well," and working on the city desk. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. S. F. Robbins of Randleman, and he is a member of the senior class, expecting to remain in Chapel Hill until June when he will receive his degree. The bride is a graduate of Randleman high school, and is widely known for her talent as a pianist.
