Stetson "D" Will Devote Five Per Cent of Gross Sales to Aid Needy Students.

Beginning January 16, five per cent of the gross sales of the local Stetson "D" store will be donated to the University to be used as an emergency relief fund, according to an announcement made yesterday by Maurice Robinson, president of the Stetson "D" Tailors, Inc.

On his recent visit to Chapel Hill, the need of an emergency relief fund for many of the students in the University was brought to Robinson's attention by L. V. Huggins, graduate of the class of 1925, who has returned here as district manager of Stetson "D" stores in North Carolina and Virginia. The announcement in THE DAILY TAR HEEL that the short-term loan funds were completely exhausted interested Robinson to the extent that he authorized Huggins to give five per cent of all sales of the Chapel Hill Stetson "D" from January 16, including the receipts from the sale now in progress, to the University loan funds to supplement the short-term emergency funds which are used to lend five to fifteen dollars for thirty to sixty days to students in temporary distress.

Duration Each Week
Each week President Robinson will mail to the University a check amounting to five per cent of all business done during the preceding week. Manager Huggins estimates that assistance from this source will amount to several hundred dollars by the end of the current year and that more than a score

DEAN CONTINUES LECTURE SERIES HERE LAST NIGHT

Skinner Talks of Science, Ethics, Philosophy and Religion at Inn Last Night.

"One of the major problems of the wholesome and efficient life is the problem of integrating all interests and making a harmony out of what may seem to be conflicts," said Professor Clarence R. Skinner last night in his third lecture in the seminar of liberal religion being conducted at the Carolina Inn. His fourth lecture is scheduled for the Carolina Inn at 7:30 o'clock tonight.

"Many religious persons," he continued, "are not able to accept science, ethics, philosophy, and religion as cooperating parts of a vital whole. Their lives are departmentalized or their loyalties are made partial or weak."

Professor Skinner's address, "Science, Ethics, Philosophy, and Religion," continued by showing that liberal religion can help people integrate their lives and make a working unit of the four themes by freeing their minds and spirits and by seeking truth wherever it may be found. Professor Skinner defined science as "description and codification of facts," and added that "what is proved must be accepted, no matter how disturbing or revolutionary." Religion, in order to be lasting, must be founded on realities.

Good Life

In continuing the diagnosis of his subject, Skinner stated, "Ethics is a study and practice of the good life. The content of ethics varies from time to time, depending upon the situation. Our ethics must be constantly revised to be made harmonious with the changes in the world's life. Consider, for example, our attitude towards war and business."

"Philosophy is an attempt to find the meaning of life and to relate all parts to the whole."
