SHAW-HENDERSON DRAMA FESTIVAL WILL BE STAGED

Carolina Playmakers to Inaugurate Program January 29 as Tribute to Two Men.

In recognition of the completion of Dr. Archibald Henderson's widely-heralded Bernard Shaw: Playboy and Prophet, the result of twenty-nine years' labor on the part of the biographer, the Carolina Playmakers are planning a Shaw-Henderson festival in celebration of that event.

The festival will be inaugurated January 29, and is designed as a joint-tribute to Shaw and Henderson. It attempts to link the famous Irish wit of England to the village of Chapel Hill through his friend and only authorized biographer, Dr. Henderson.

Koch Will Preside

In this first meeting, Professor Frederick H. Koch, presiding, will read tributes to Dr. Henderson from distinguished men of letters. Following him, President Frank Graham will speak in behalf of the University. A distinguished writer connected with the theatre, whose name is yet to be announced, will speak on "The World and the Drama." Dr. Henderson will then deliver the principal lecture of the evening on "Shaw as a World Power." There will be an exhibit of Shaw posters, elaborate works of art in themselves, gathered from many countries.

As a feature of this week of celebration the Playmakers are

Former Ted Shawn Pupil Stresses High Value Of Cultural Dancing

Phoebe Barr Trained Chorus For Production of Euripides' "Alcestis" Last Summer.

For a number of years the Carolina Playmakers had aspired to produce a Greek play. They had the advantages of splendid musicians on the campus, their own excellent facilities for scenic production, experienced actors in their group, and the unusual background of the Kenan memorial stadium for such an undertaking. There remained the one fatal drawback that there was no one in Chapel Hill who could assume the task of training a Greek chorus, without which such a production would be entirely impossible.

Last spring, Phoebe Barr, who had been a student for four years at the Denishawn school of dancing in New York following her graduation from the North Carolina College for Women, and who for three of those years had danced in Ted Shawn's concert company, came to Chapel Hill to live and immediately, identified herself with the Playmakers.

Prepared Greek Chorus

The long thwarted ambition was realized during the last summer session when Euripides' Alcestis was given an elaborate production in the stadium. Mrs. Barr took a group of summer school students who had never had any dance training before and in three weeks created a chorus ensemble that would have done credit to any production of a Greek play.

At the request of the Playmaker staff and a number of students from the drama classes

COURSES OFFER PRACTICAL WORK BY NEW METHOD

New Instruments Assist Geologists in Finding Rock Structure Information Easily.

The geology department of the University is one of the very few in the country to offer courses and field practice in geophysical methods, according to Dr. W. F. Prouty, head of the geology department.

Until recently the geologist sought out earth structures and mineral deposits largely through keen observation and reasoning, aided by only a few simple instruments. In the last decade geophysical instruments of many types have been perfected to aid man in looking still further into the solid rock. Chief among these methods are those based upon differences in earth gravity, magnetism, and conductivity.

Works in This Area

During the fall quarter, J. A. Alexander and B. G. Bissell, graduate students, assisted by P. P. Fox and C. E. Hunter of the undergraduate school, and under the direction of Dr. G. R. MacCarthy, have mapped an extensive area about the Country club by use of the magnetometer. This instrument is so sensitive to slight magnetic differences that it is possible to map various types of rocks concealed by a thick soil covering or trace the concealed outcrop of many types of minerals.

During the spring quarter, Dr. MacCarthy will have the students map an area near the foot of Strowd's hill by the electrical resistivity methods.

Skinner To Deliver Lecture And Sermon

The church groups who are sponsoring the lectures are, among others, the Unitarians, the Quakers, and the Congregationalists. These groups invite the students, the faculty, and the townspeople to attend the lecture.

PROMPT ACTION IN CONSOLIDATION OF COLLEGES URGED

Committee Recommends That Union of State Schools Proceed Immediately.

Demand that the consolidation of the three state supported institutions of higher learning be proceeded without further delay and that appropriations for duplicating functions be discontinued was made in the state legislature Friday.

This was included in the report of the joint committee on reorganization of government, offering what are considered the most sweeping recommendations for changing the governmental set-up ever made before the legislature. The recommendations would affect eighteen different branches of the state government by abolition, consolidation or curtailment at an estimated saving of $2,000,000. Nine bills, in addition to several already introduced recommending such changes, brought before the assembly.

Will Curtail Duplications

The committee recommended that the appropriations for duplicating functions of the Greater University be discontinued at an early date to the end that the purpose of consolidation of these institutions be accomplished.

This is the first stand made in the present legislature on the question of the consolidation of the University, North Carolina State College in Raleigh, and the Woman's College in Greensboro. Reports recently indicated that the advisability of the consolidation

There is one freshman, at least, who, at the end of the year, will be properly imbued with the traditional spirit of a Carolina gentleman. This freshman—affectionately referred to by the term, "Weasel"—has the extraordinary privilege of being the roommate of a conscientious sophomore who is exceptionally clever at devising novel methods to impress upon him the importance of the traditions of the University. Moreover, there are many kind souls cooperating with this sophomore in carrying out what he believes his duty.

A few nights ago, the freshman, upon returning to his room, found a note telling him to dial 5911 and to ask for Frank. With fond memories of similar successful experiences, the freshman called. A woman answered. "Whom do you wish to speak to?"

"Is there anyone there by the name of Frank?", asked the young man.

There followed an ominous pause. Then the woman's voice again. "The only Frank here is Mr. Graham. Do you wish to speak to him?"

Lamely, the freshman explained that someone must have done him dirt.

On the Rock Pile

This experience is the latest, and perhaps most edifying; many preceded it. During the first week of the quarter he was shown the traditional freshman rock pile and was made to deposit
