

Students To Elect Campus Officers Today

JOHN ACEE WINS OVER MINOR FOR PRESIDENCY OF Y

Minor Becomes Vice-President As Runner-up; Patterson and Winslow to Have Run-off.

POOLE MADE TREASURER

John Acee was elected yesterday president of the University Young Men's Christian Association for 1933-34. He succeeds Bill McKee. The vote was Acee 35, Minor 69, Fountain 21.

Acee, who lives in Asheville, is a junior in the University. He has been connected with the Y. M. C. A. for three years and last year served as president of the sophomore Y. M. C. A. cabinet. He has served two years on the staff of the DAILY TAR HEEL.

Ike Minor, another presidential nominee, received the second highest number of votes and will be the vice-president for next year. A tie resulted in the race for secretary when neither Simmons Patterson nor J. D. Winslow could secure a majority vote. A run-off will take place within a few days. The vote for secretary was: Patterson, 73, Winslow, 71, and Sloop, 27.

Jack Poole won the treasurer post by a vote of 122 to Tom Nesbit's 47.

Acee was a member of the freshman friendship council and was president of the sophomore Y. M. C. A. group. He was a member of the sophomore executive committee, and a member of the International Relations club. He is also a member of the Phi assembly.

TENNESSEE RIVER PROJECT LAUDED AT GROUP MEET

Graham Says Mastery of Mankind's Productive Rests With Schools and Research.

Speakers at a convention meeting here under auspices of the southern regional committee of the social science research council, the southern regional study work group, and the southern tax committee declared Monday that the development of the Tennessee river basin, according to President Roosevelt's plans, will be a great boon to eight southern states and will favorably influence the nation at large.

Regional aspects of optimum production in the south and the Tennessee river basin project were discussed at sessions Monday by invited experts in sociology, economics and agriculture from a number of southern states.

Odum Opens Conference
Dr. Howard W. Odum, head of the University institute for research in social science and director of the southern regional study, opened the conference with an address, outlining a social-economic-agricultural program for the south.

"In natural wealth and resources or in their potential development the south is extraordinarily rich in quality, range, and variety," Dr. Odum said.

Close Organization In Frame-Ups Recent Trend In Campus Politics

Spring Is Time for Polishing Up Smiles and Back Slapping as Elections Approach; Master Politicians Have Sometimes Seen Advisability of Running Individually.

In the spring a young man's fancy lightly turns to thoughts of elections. The approbation of his fellow man suddenly assumes tremendous proportions for the unhappy victim of politomania. Ear-to-ear smiles are dug out of dark and gloomy corners and refurbished for the coming season. So the glamorous past has shown; so the present is exhibiting for observers.

"Frame-ups"—nay, the more polite term "organization" is applicable—have been in evidence in nearly every past election. The political structures have been built with care, and in the past, success apparently fell to the better organized party, as a study of the successful will evince.

But not always do the most complete "frame-ups" win. There were times when parties were so well organized that they succeeded in putting most of their men into office unopposed. Then hitherto insignificant giant-killers appeared on the scene, and through a mist of apathy generated by the paucity of competition, these managed to steal the coveted prize. 1932 was such a year when the All-Campus party managed to put something like twenty-six of its cohorts into office unopposed. Interest declined in the contest for the other three campus offices—the most important of which was that of president of the student body—and Haywood Weeks, running as an independent, won over Hamilton Hobgood by thirty-four votes.

Sometime in the early part of the year 1931 a movement was started to create a large non-fraternity party. The implications in such a bid for the non-fraternity members—a majority on the campus—was evident to fraternity politicians, who finally succeeded in outwitting such a movement by creating an all-campus party—composed of both factions. So successful was this movement that every office was captured. Mayne Albright, the standard-bearer, almost doubled his opponent's vote.

The election of 1931 was feated.

FIFTY-ONE STATE HIGH SCHOOLS TO SEEK AYCOCK CUP

High Schools From Throughout State Will Send Debating Teams Here.

Fifty-one high schools won both sides of the debates sponsored by the high school debating union of North Carolina Friday night, and will be represented in Chapel Hill in competition for the Aycock Memorial cup, April 13 and 14. E. R. Rankin, secretary of the contest, announced yesterday that full returns have not been received, however.

Two hundred and fifteen high schools engaged in the statewide debating contests, the query of which was: Resolved: That North Carolina should adopt the sales tax as a feature of its state system of revenue. Each school entered teams on the negative and affirmative sides, the schools whose teams won both being eligible for representation in the finals here. The event will be one of the features of the annual high school week.

The high schools winning both debates Friday night are: Bath, Henrietta-Caroleen, Pine Level, Tarboro, Troy, Altamahaw-Ossipee, Loggett, Burgaw, Curry, Garner, Oakhurst, Raleigh, Rutherfordton, Salisbury, Sand Hill, Sanford, Smithfield, Southport, Thomasville, Wendall, Arcadia, Four Oaks, Harmony, Belmont, Cornete, Cove Creek, Gastonia, Spruce Pine, Wilson, and Weekesville.

Ayden, Belwood, Benhaven, Bethel Hill, Bragtown, Claremont, Conway, Edenton, Franklinton, Garland, Gibson, Grace, Hayesville, Shady Grove, Mountain View, South Edgewood, Murphy, Saratoga, Troy, Scotts, and Severn.

SIGMA XI BRINGS NOTED LECTURER HERE THURSDAY

Dr. Charles Stockard, Anatomist, Will Make Two Public Lectures on Genetics.

The North Carolina chapter of Sigma Xi will bring Dr. Charles Stockard to the campus April 6 and 7 for its official lecture presentation of the year. The two public lectures will take up the subject of genetics, and will be delivered in Phillips hall at 8:00 o'clock.

Dr. Stockard is at present a member of the faculty of the department of anatomy at Cornell University medical college, and has long been recognized as one of the outstanding lecturers and authorities in this field.

Effect of Genetics

Thursday's illustrated lecture will treat the subject, "How are genetic possibilities expressed into characters." There will be a general consideration of the transmission of hereditary constitutions in relation to the development processes through which the characters of the individual must finally be expressed. "In other words," quoting from Dr. Stockard's pamphlet, "Does the same hereditary make-up always give rise to similar individuals, or may it develop in various ways?"

"The genetics and development of form and type in dogs and men" will be the topic of the lecture Friday night. It will be a discussion of the experimental analysis of peculiar growth types thought to be associated with modifications in the glands of internal secretion. A special consideration of the causes and development of dwarfs and giants, and other peculiar forms, as elucidated in various ways?"

Yackety Yack Nominees Declare Their Platforms For Candidacy

ALEX ANDREWS
Qualifications: Official staff nominee; managing editor of the present book; five years experience in editing annuals, three of which have been spent on the Yackety Yack; received Yackety Yack charm; two years pre-college experience in both annual and newspaper work; reporter and sports writer for DAILY TAR HEEL; honor roll student.

Policy: If elected editor of the Yackety Yack, my policies will be as follows:

1. To put the annual out on time, and to simplify the method of distributing copies to the student body.
2. To organize a staff of photographers to specialize in securing good sports pictures and pictures of general interest to the campus.
3. To avoid all errors in the annual by a more complete and careful system of proof-reading.
4. To give the Yackety Yack more color and originality both in art work and in content, and to avoid any yearly repetitions which tend to become monotonous.
5. To establish an impartial method of choosing staff members based on merit and competition.

Graham Memorial To Be Center Of Today's Voting

Comer Goes To Georgia For Father's Funeral

H. F. Comer, secretary of the University Y. M. C. A. left for Comer, Georgia yesterday afternoon about 1:00 o'clock to attend the funeral of his father, Townes Comer, who died early in the morning as a result of a sudden attack of heart failure.

The funeral will be conducted this afternoon at 5:00 o'clock from the Methodist church in Comer, Georgia. Mrs. Comer did not accompany her husband.

It is expected that the Y. M. C. A. executive will return to Chapel Hill late Friday or early Saturday to resume his work here on the campus.

Returns From Convention

George Gorham has returned from the sessions of southern branches of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers which met in Birmingham March 31 and April 1. Gorham won third prize of $10.00 for his paper, "Wind Tunnel Experiments on the Influence of Ground Effect on Aerodynamic Drag." This prize was donated by the Birmingham section of the A. S. M. E.

LIBRARIANS WILL HAVE CONVENTION HERE THIS WEEK

American and Southern Associations Sponsor Sessions Here Friday and Saturday.

To determine the relation of the library to other educational agencies and to develop co-ordination, a southern library conference will convene here Friday and Saturday. The conference will bring together authorities in religion, education, cultural and social welfare.

The advance program of the conference, which is sponsored by the American and Southern Library Associations, stresses the fact that the library is conspicuously underdeveloped in the south and that at the same time it is increasingly necessary.

Leaders and Speakers

Leaders of the sessions will be Howard P. Jones, New York editor; Wilson Gee, University of Virginia social science director; Harold F. Brigham, Louisville, Ky., librarian; Mrs. Lillian Baker Griggs, Southern Library Association president; and J. O. Modisette, Louisiana library commission chairman.

Speakers will include Dr. Howard W. Odum, Southern Regional Study director; Dr. Paul W. Wager, rural social economics professor; Dean W. C. Jackson, public administration school; and Dr. Edward W. Knight, rural education professor—all of the University; Sidney B. Hall, Virginia education department superintendent; Carl H. Milam, American Library Association secretary; F. A. Whiting, American Federation of Arts president; W. A. Stansbury, Duke Memorial church pastor; Tommie Dora Barker, regional field agent of American Library Association; and Clarence Poe, Progressive Farmer editor.

Polls Will Be Open From 9:00 To 5:00 Under Supervision Of Student Council.

CAMPAIGN PERIOD ENDS

Several Weeks' Vigorous Solicitation for Votes Culminates In Final Drive.

Vigorous campaigning which has lasted over a period of several weeks will come to a close today when the student body of the University goes to the polls in Graham Memorial to elect thirteen campus-wide and fifteen class officers for next year.

The Woman's Association will also elect its leaders for the coming year at the same time. All voting will be conducted in Graham Memorial between 9:00 a.m. and 5:00 p.m.

In the student nomination meeting Monday B. C. Proctor, Arlindo Cate, and Harper Barnes were named as candidates for the presidency of the student body. Yesterday these men presented their platforms, their conceptions of duties of the office, and their qualifications to an assembly of students in Memorial hall.

Other Candidates

Other men standing for election to campus-wide offices today are: Benton Bray and Lee Greer, vice-president of the student body; Claiborn Carr and Don Shoemaker, editor of the DAILY TAR HEEL; Cecil Carmichael, E. C. Daniel, and Miss Mary Frances Parker, editor of the Magazine; Pete Ivey and Karl Sprinkle, editor of the Buc.
