ALLOTMENT BILL FINALLY PASSED

Appropriations for Local Branch of Greater University Is Set at $426,000.

The question of allotments to state departments and institutions for 1933-35 was settled yesterday morning when the Senate, by a vote of 34 to 9, adopted the appropriations measure reported by the conference committee last week.

The report, which was given the approval of the House Thursday, carried a grant of $832,240 for the branches of the Greater University. Approximately $426,000 of this allotment will come to the unit at Chapel Hill.

An eight-months term for state-supported public schools, with an appropriation of $16,000,000, is provided for in the measure. This represents an increase of approximately $4,000,000 over the figure set by the House and $1,000,000 less than the amount passed by the Senate.

The appointment of the conference committee was made necessary when the Senate rejected the appropriation figures agreed upon by the House. The report emerged from the committee after a week's consideration.

Barnett Appears In Concert Friday

Barnett, baritone, has been selected to sing the solo part in Dubois' oratorio, The Seven Last Words of Christ, which will be presented Friday evening at Elon College by the Elon music department and the Burlington choral club. Professor Dwight Steer, head of music at Elon, will direct the presentation.

Barnett recently appeared as soloist with the University glee club in its concert in Southern Pines, where he received favorable comment upon his performance. He was also baritone soloist in the presentation of Gaul's The Holy City by the Fayetteville choral club in March. He will again appear in a repetition of this oratorio May 7.

J. P. Reynolds, of Zoology Department Here, Continues Study of Tiny Flies.

Sex determination in man and flies breeding in a glass tube would not seem to have much in common. But from a two-year study of a peculiar strain of flies, J. P. Reynolds of the zoology department hopes to find evidence bearing on that force in nature which determines what sex a new-born individual is to be.

Reynolds explains that this force seems to be approximately the same in all animals. Thus, the study of a tiny gnat-like fly hardened with the name of Sciara coprophila may provide information that will have a practical application in man. Dr. Charles Stockard, eminent Cornell anatomist who lectured here recently before Sigma Xi scientific society, is working in a field of genetics somewhat different from that in which Reynolds utilizes flies.

In most animals sex is determined by the sperm cell, but in the peculiar fly Reynolds has observed sex seems to be determined by the female. The fact that one female has either all sons or daughters points to this conclusion.

Variation From Rule

Five years ago at Johns Hopkins University Dr. C. W. Metz discovered a mutation, a variation from that rule, in some of these flies. The same females were producing both sons and daughters. Dr. Metz assigned this peculiar strain for study by Reynolds, who has been experimenting in Davie hall. The flies have to be watched constantly due to the fact that they mate within five minutes after hatching. Since, for the purposes of the scientific study, only certain ones may be allowed to mate, the sexes have to be segregated. (Continued on last page)

DANCER EXTENDS PRAISE TO WORK OF PHOEBE BARR

Ted Shawn Pays Visit to Former Pupil and Commends Her Work in Dancing.

Ted Shawn, considered America's greatest male dancer, visited Chapel Hill Monday, unheralded by the customary publicity and press notices. His purpose was to visit Phoebe Barr, formerly a member of his well-known company, who is now director of dancing on the Carolina Playmaker staff and conductor of dancing classes here.

Shawn, with his pianist, Mary Campbell, and a member of his company, Barton Mumaw, visited Mrs. Barr's classes in a rehearsal of Vachel Lindsay's "The Congo," which will be presented soon in the Playmaker theatre.

As one of the pioneer proponents of dance education as well as the dance are, Shawn has for 18 years looked forward to the time when dancing would become a part of the curriculum of every school and university, as essential training for any person desiring freedom of self-expression and also for those who desire poise in any of the more prosaic pursuits.

During the past years Shawn has especially endeavored to spread the conviction that the dance must have the full scope of masculine expression as well as feminine. He has taught large classes composed only of men, and containing many of the outstanding athletes at the school, at Springfield College in Massachusetts.

Shawn expressed himself as delighted to see that Phoebe Barr is undertaking this same work in the University, and enthusiastically complimented the interpretation of "The Congo" by Mrs. Barr's classes.

STARTED WORK IN 1901

Capable Business Executive Has Been Teammate of Three University Presidents.

Charles T. Woollen, who has been in the service of the University for 33 years, was selected yesterday afternoon by the executive committee of the board of trustees as comptroller of the Greater University.

There are countless University trustees and alumni of this and other generations who have often expressed the opinion that Woollen is the most capable college business executive in the south and one of the best in the entire country.

Began Work in 1901

Woollen was appointed registrar in 1901, his first year in college, during the Venable administration. The next year he took on the additional duties of secretary, and the following year, while still an undergraduate, he was appointed purchasing agent.

He was college proctor from 1908 through 1913, was appointed treasurer of the University Athletic Association in 1910, and was made business manager in 1913. He has been in full charge of the business management of the University since 1914.

A tireless worker, Woollen always keeps a close watch on the University pocketbook, sizing up carefully every expenditure and making sure that heads of departments do not exceed their allotments. When Governor McLean, during his administration, announced a budgeting program for the state, he found that the University, due largely to Woollen's foresight, had been budgeting its accounts for years.
