ANNUAL SESSIONS WILL BE OPENED THURSDAY, JUNE 5

Changes in Program for Students' Conference at Blue Ridge Are Announced.

The annual Southern students conference sponsored by the Southern Field Council, student division of the Y. M. C. A., will take place at Blue Ridge, June 15-24. The conference is attended by delegates from various colleges in the south, and has as its purpose "to create a knowledge of one's self, environment, and resources."

The conference will open with a supper Thursday, June 15, and will close with breakfast Saturday, June 24.

The principal change in the program contemplated at this time is the abandonment of the guidance program and seminar and the devoting of two periods per day to training. One of these periods will be devoted to the campus: association work; fraternities; and church work. The other period will be given to religious, economic, and international problems.

Athletics in Afternoon
Athletics will begin at 3:00 o'clock each afternoon, leaving a period after lunch for rest or interviews.

The evening program will consist of a student-hour, address and delegation meeting. In these addresses a background for the morning discussions will be created. The council will meet at breakfast.

The total cost per delegate will not exceed $28.00, with an excellent chance that this amount will be lowered by three or four dollars.

The University holds the record for having sent more delegates to a conference than any other school. This was accomplished in 1923 when Carolina was represented by 58 delegates.

The conference is given especially for colleges as part of their summer work.

SENIOR HEADS TO CONVENE AT 10:30

President Vergil Weathers Announces Executive Committee for Seniors.

Vergil Weathers, newly elected president of the rising senior class, announced yesterday the names of the members of next year's executive committee. Other committees of the class will not be announced until some time later.

A meeting of this new committee has been called for this morning at 10:30 o'clock in the Y. M. C. A. President Weathers urges that all members of the committee be present since important business is to be discussed.

The members of the new committee are as follows: Corney Bretsch, chairman, Ed Kahn, Claiborn Carr, J. P. Temple, J. S. Gentry, Ralph Myers, R. D. Barham, Ed McRae, Nat Townsend, Roy McMillan, and A. K. Hodges.

Reading Postponed

The Playreaders announce that owing to a multiplicity of events, the reading of "The Late Christopher Bean" is postponed until the fall.

High Top At Blue Ridge

Pictured above is High Top, one of the most beautiful peaks in the Blue Ridge range. Rising to a height of 4,000 feet just behind Lee hall, the conference hotel, it offers a challenge to those who like a sharp climb and a glorious view of the surrounding territory. This is only one of many picturesque and inspiring works of nature to be seen from the vicinity of the conference meeting place, and those who dislike mountain climbing will be privileged to view much of the beautiful scenery of the region from the porch of the hotel. But, to those hardy souls who like to climb to the peaks of the world, the view from High Top is eminently worthwhile.

BIDS ARE READY FOR DISTRIBUTION

Tickets for Finals May Be Obtained From 1:30 to 2:30 and From 7:00 to 8:00 Daily.

Final arrangements for the six commencement dances given by the German club, June 6-8, are almost completed according to announcements of club officials. Eddy Duchin's famous orchestra has been signed to furnish the music for the series, and the Tin Can, where the dances will be held, is being decorated.

Tickets for the series may be obtained from Milton Barber, secretary of the club, at the Zeta Psi fraternity house between the hours 1:30 to 2:30 and 7:00 to 8:00 o'clock every day from now through examination. Seniors in the University who have never been members of the German club will be permitted to obtain tickets at a special rate officials of the club have decided.

The series will consist of six dances held in the Tin Can. It will start Tuesday night at 10:00 o'clock following the commencement exercises. Three dances will be given Wednesday; a morning dance 11:30 to 1:30, a tea dance 4:30 to 6:00 o'clock, and a formal evening dance 10:00 to 1:00 o'clock. At this latter dance the figure will be performed by the commencement marshals and the dance managers.

On the last day, Thursday, a morning dance, 11:30 to 1:30 o'clock, and another formal evening dance with the German club figure will complete the program. In addition to these dances, a concert will take place Thursday afternoon in Memorial hall played for by Eddy Duchin's orchestra.

Community Club

The last meeting of the year of the Community club will be held at 3:30 this afternoon in the Episcopal parish house. Reports of the delegates to the state meeting of the Federation of Women's clubs will be read.

Board Meets Today

The Publications Union Board will meet this afternoon at 2:00 o'clock in Bingham hall.

DELEGATES FROM TEN STATES WILL GATHER AT RIDGE

Three Addresses by Dr. W. A. Smart of Emory University Will Open Y Conference.

Each summer representatives from colleges in ten southern states are attracted to Blue Ridge by the carefully planned program of the student Y. M. C. A. Last year the conference theme was "Building the South of Tomorrow," developed by the ablest educators and religious leaders. This year, with no formulated slogan, the same general emphasis will be continued, as men try together to learn how the teachings and spirit of Jesus may be worked out in individual and group life. The conference will begin with three addresses on "The Foundations of Religion," "Social Christianity," and "Personal Religion" by Dr. W. A. Smart of Emory University, widely and favorably known as a competent scholar and fearless thinker, especially acceptable to students.

He will be followed by speakers on various topics of general and urgent concern. Among them are Francis P. Miller of Fairfax, Va., chairman of the World's Student Christian Federation, lecturer at Yale University on Christian Internationalism; Robert B. Eleazer, educational director, Commission on Interracial Cooperation; and Dr. Mercer C. Evans, professor of economics at Emory University; Raymond C. Currier, formerly missionary in India, national secretary of the student volunteer movement. Each of these men will address the conference and lead discussion groups. There will also be abundant opportunity for personal and informal group conferences with them. Each morning the conference will meet as a unit, for study of Jesus under the leadership of Kirby Page, editor of The World Tomorrow. Two of his recent books, "Living Creatively" and "The Personality of Jesus," indicate the religious interest underneath his social passion, as well as his competence for the task assigned to him.

Students Active

Other well-known leaders will aid in conducting training groups on association, fraternity and church activities, and in other phases of conference

PLAYBOOK SHOWN AT WORLD'S FAIR

June Issue of Magazine Edited by Koch to Be Displayed in Chicago This Summer.

The "Carolina Play-Book," edited by Professor F. H. Koch, will be included in the national display of periodicals at the Century of Progress exposition in Chicago this summer, by invitation of World's Fair officials.

The June issue of the "Play-Book," now on the press, contains among other articles "The World and the Village" by President Frank P. Graham, "Bernard Shaw As A World Power" by Professor Koch. There is also an editorial on the fifteenth season of the Carolina Playmakers by Professor Koch; an article on the Carolina Dramatic Festival, which was conducted here this spring, by Rebecca Cushman; the prize-winning poem of the Dogwood Festival, "Dogwood" by Ethel Stephens Arnett and the prize-winning cut, Mary Dirnberger's program design for "Flieger."

With other outstanding periodicals throughout the country, the "Play-Book" will be displayed in the Time pavilion at the World's Fair in an exhibition sponsored by the weekly news-magazine. The dramatic periodical is now in its sixth year of publication, published jointly by the Carolina Playmakers and the Carolina Dramatic Association.

Leaders Urge Students To Interest Prospects

We believe that every student now in the University, having come here on the eve of, or during, one of the greatest depressions in the nation's history, has shared the problems of the University during several great crises. Consequently, these students have gained an unusually keen appreciation of the difficulties encountered and have a peculiar sense of University loyalty. We feel that this loyalty may be most adequately expressed in an effort to induce new students to come to Carolina, and therefore urge every student to encourage prospective attendants.

Other institutions are making concerted efforts to enroll every prospective college student, and unless similar action is undertaken by Carolina students, our publications, our athletics, our fraternities, our scholarship and all other phases of campus endeavor will suffer, but with the cooperation of undergraduates and alumni, service of inestimable value will be rendered the University in its attempt to deal with these unusual circumstances.

FULL PROGRAM IS SET FOR MEETING

Good Schedule of Entertainment Is Arranged for Delegates at Blue Ridge Conference.

Sixteen hours is not long enough to do all that you really want to do each day at Blue Ridge, but you have to try to do with that, because in that atmosphere, with strenuous exercise and generous meals, you surely want eight hours' sleep.

You'll find more meaning in the day, if instead of rushing to breakfast with eyes still half-closed, you rise early enough for a brief stroll on the hillside, with a few moments of quiet. In these surroundings prayer, for most persons, seems very natural. One morning you may want to slip out before dawn and scramble up High Top with a party to see the sunrise.

Soon after breakfast comes conference Bible study, a helpful combination of worship, lecture and discussion.

The middle period of the morning is distinctly for training in improving the quality of our associated efforts at making the best of campus life: in the church, the fraternity or the Christian association.

With no long break, just enough to avoid hurry, one goes to the discussion of our modern social problems, considered from the point of view of students and how they may best contribute, now and later, to their solution.

The first hour of the afternoon is reserved for conversation or rest, a little shelf where you may put things that don't fit into an organized program. Of course, if you want to start your hike early, no one objects. Then come organized games, swimming, excursions, and a full-grown appetite. At least once during the conference, you will want to engage one of the leaders in a walk, a talk or a game. Let him know what you are thinking and see how he acts.

After supper comes sunset (from Lee hall porch—no one who has seen it will try to describe it), singing—hilarious, (Continued on page three)

BARNES LEADS MEETING

Program of Songs, Speeches and Presentations Feature Gathering Last Night.

With President Graham delivering an eloquent address in his final appearance this year before the student body, the annual awards program last night brought to a brilliant close Carolina's year of student activities.

A program of music, addresses and presentations, led by Harper Barnes, president of the student body, was presented to a large gathering. Riotous comedy provided by Jesse Parker and Nutt Parsley added to the interest.

A complete list of student awards, including scholarship, athletic, and activities recognitions, was made following an opening ceremony featuring the Carolina Alma Mater and selections by Walter Patterson, University organist.

Graham Praises

In his stirring speech President Graham praised the spirit of Carolina students and faculty in their enterprises this year, citing outstanding examples of Tar Heel supremacy throughout the state and the south, and made a plea that the entire body cooperate in supporting the University next year when it will admittedly need the hearty backing of every Carolina man.

In explaining certain elements of the past year, Graham gave a thorough analysis of the consolidation of the three colleges into the Greater University and an exact picture of the present state of the institution with its pared budget.
