

SONS OF FAMOUS ACTORS TO PLAY IN PICTURE HERE

"This Day and Age" Brings Children of Seven Hollywood Actors to Screen.

"This Day and Age," coming to the Carolina theatre tomorrow, brings to the screen the children of many famous actors of another day. Among the young actors in the picture are Wallace Reid, Jr., Erich Von Stroheim, Jr., Bryant Washburn, Jr., Carlyle Blackwell, Jr., Fred Kohler, Jr., Frank Tinney, Jr., and Neal Hart, Jr.

Needing a group of youths to take parts as high school boys, Cecil B. DeMille, director, decided to collect the sons of as many famous actors as he could. Seven were recruited, all having had experience before the camera.

For the second time in less than a week, Chapel Hill theatre-goers will be given an opportunity to see the work of Paul Green, University professor and Pulitzer prize winner. Green did the screen play of "Doctor Bull," Will Roger's new show which is Tuesday's feature.

"What Price Innocence?" Ben Alexander, youthful actor who appears in "What Price Innocence?" playing Wednesday, has made certain that there will be no rainy days in his life. He lays aside a goodly portion of every pay check to invest in business ventures. This picture tells a story of modern youth. The management of the Carolina has announced that no children under 16 will be admitted.

Some ideas of the life of the 1900's in the mid-west is given in "One Sunday Afternoon," Thursday's picture. Gary Cooper is cast in the starring role, and in his support appear Fay Wray, Neil Hamilton, Frances Fuller, and Roscoe Karns.

Protecting the floor of a sound stage with one-inch plates of sheet steel was the unusual production necessity encountered during the filming of "The Solitaire Man," a drama featuring Herbert Marshall, to be shown Friday. A notable supporting cast includes the following: Mary Boland, Lionel Atwill, May Robson, Elizabeth Allan, Ralph Forbes, Lucille Gleason, and Robert McWade.

Another member of Hollywood's second generation—Will Rogers' only daughter, Mary—makes a bid for cinematic fame in "My Weakness," playing Saturday. She appears with Lillian Harvey and Lew Ayres, who are starred in the picture.

E. C. Smith, manager, has announced that the theatre will not be open Saturday afternoon because of a conflict with the Carolina-Georgia football game. There will be a special matinee at 10:30 in the morning, and the show will begin immediately after the game.

Methodist Services

The Reverend Albee Godbold will preach from the sermon topic, "Are We Making Progress?" at the 11:00 o'clock service of the University Methodist church today.

PLAYING AT CAROLINA PINES

Jack Wardlaw and his orchestra, formerly of the University, who are now playing at Carolina Pines. The picture shows the group at the end of the 1933 school year. Since that time, much new talent has been added, and a girl singer is featured.

Early Scores By Vandy Overcome Tar Heels

The half ended with Carolina again in possession of the ball about midfield.

Both teams came back with a rush, but neither club could score. Vandy, after an exchange of kicks, got the ball on Carolina's own 15-yard line. Dixon failed to gain. His pass to DuBois gained 8 yards. Beck made only two yards through the line, and Carolina took the ball on downs! After another punt exchange Vanderbilt had the ball on her own 30-yard line.

Once more Carolina held, and took the ball over on downs. A pass, Burnett to Bell, placed the ball on Vanderbilt's six-yard stripe, but Bell fumbled. Scoggins recovered for Vandy. The Commodores kicked out to Jackson, who, standing on Vanderbilt's own 47, streaked to the 26. Jackson could not gain at the line and tried the air. His pass was intercepted on the Vandy 17. Burton broke Carolina's right tackle and raced to the Tar Heels' 43 before he was brought down. Beck's line thrust was stopped cold by Ralph Gardner. Oliver's two passes were incomplete, and Vandy drew a penalty. Burton kicked out of bounds on Carolina's 28-yard line. Jackson could not gain and kicked out.

Interference with the receiver cost the Tar Heels needed yardage, and the Commodores had the ball on the Carolina 30; giving Vandy another first down. Oliver skirted end for eight, putting the ball on Carolina's 23. Scoggins tore through center for another first. Close capered 10 yards around end for still another first down. Oliver skirted end for another marker. Score: Vanderbilt, 20; Carolina, 7.

The Tar Heels then came back strong, rallying to their belated cause. Both clubs exchanged punts, and the Tar Heels' big chance came when Close fumbled, going over center. Interference with the receiver gave Carolina first down on Vandy's 21-yard line. McCachren's line buck netted a yard. Then Acee McDonald galloped through tackle for 20 yards and a tally. Tatum's placement was wide. Score: Vanderbilt, 20; Carolina, 13.

The game ended shortly thereafter with the Carolina eleven in possession of the ball, trying to score.

"College Humor" Today

"College Humor," musical comedy starring Bing Crosby, will be shown at the Carolina theatre this afternoon under the auspices of the Chapel Hill Movie guild. Due to the great popularity of the picture when it was shown here during the summer, the guild has booked its return engagement.

DUKE SMOTHERS DEACON ELEVEN TO TUNE OF 22-0

Laney, Cox, and Cornelius all performed well in the backfield for the Blue Devils, while Rossiter and Crawford did the best in the line. Crawford, the all-American from last year, broke through repeatedly to nail runners behind the line.

For the Deacons the work of Swan, giant tackle, and Russell, Wilson, and Martin in the backfield was outstanding. First downs favored Duke, 20 to 3.

Giants Become Champs By Trouncing Senators

Mancuso was passed. Ryan sent them one more base nearer home with a sacrifice bunt. Schumacher, the pitcher, then came through, driving both Jackson and Mancuso across the plate with a single over second base. New York counted one more, its last one until the tenth, when Davis doubled, was bunted to third by Jackson, and came home on Mancuso's double.

Washington, however, could never give up. In the same inning, after two were down, Manush and Manager Cronin singled in order. Schulte then caught one of Schumacher's fast balls on the nose and laid it in the left field bleachers, tying the score at three all. Kuhel and Bluege followed Schulte with singles and then Luque took the mound, stopping the Nats from then on.

The contest was marked by brilliant fielding on the part of both teams. Besides Schulte's great try for Ott's hit, Goslin took a fly, off the bat of Moore, on the dead run just before it hit the ground. Moore also made a fine catch in the outfield, leaping into the air to snag Sewell's fly in the fifth with two men on base.

In the infield, Critz, New York second sacker, and Cronin, at shortstop for Washington, were outstanding, both handling six chances perfectly. Ryan, Giant sparkplug at short, also continued his great work, throwing five men out at first, three of these in one frame.

At bat for New York, Davis, with a double and a single in five, and Terry with two for five, were best besides Ott's big hit. Schulte had a single besides his homer in four, Cronin, three safe blows in five, and Kuhel, two for five to lead the losers with the stick.
