HAMMER'S TROUPE PRESENTS IBSEN'S 'GHOSTS' TONIGHT

Marion Tatum and Bob Proctor
Of Last Year's Playmakers
Appear in Cast of Play.

The company of Madame Hammer, which includes Marion Tatum and Bob Proctor, of last year's Playmakers, will present Henrik Ibsen's "Ghosts" as the first feature on the student entertainment calendar at 8:30 o'clock tonight in Memorial hall.

"Ghosts" was written by Ibsen as a defense against the criticisms which an earlier work, "The Doll's House," called forth from the Victorians. These complaints were caused by the fact that in this play the wife leaves her husband, an act which was to the Victorians, inexcusable.

In "Ghosts," Ibsen presents a case in which, because a woman does not abandon a dissolute husband, the consequences of the father's failings are inherited by their son, who is born later. This was a theme unknown and, consequently, abhorable to the people of the smug nineties, and heralded the entrance of the twentieth century with its ideas of social reform.

"Ghosts" is considered as one of the best of the works of the Norwegian playwright, because in it, with a rare skill, Ibsen combines a knowledge of dramatic technique with a broad knowledge of human problems.

BRIDGE TOURNAMENT STARTS MONDAY

Large Number of Early Entrants Indicates Field of About 40 Teams.

A field of at least 40 teams in the Stetson "D" contract bridge tournament is indicated by the early entrants. Practically every fraternity has signified its intention of entering a team, and the dormitories are expected to be almost as well represented.

Many fraternities are already entered; others have promised to enter their teams before Sunday. Quite a few have delayed in entering their team because so many desired to represent the fraternity that elimination tournaments were necessary to decide the entrants.

Only teams representing fraternities or dormitories are permitted to enter this tournament. But so many independent teams have asked to be permitted to play that a second tournament will be run off later. This will be an open tournament, in which any townspeople, professors, or students will be allowed to play. This will be an accredited tournament of the national bridge association, and the winners will be permitted to enter the state tournament which will be held this fall. The state winners, however, must win the regional tourney before they can compete in the national tournament, which will be held in New York at the Waldorf. The expenses of all players in the national will be paid. This open tournament

Chapel Hill Carries Supplement For High School By 109 Ballots

By a margin of 109 ballots, a special tax supplement to increase the state allotment for the support of the Chapel Hill high school was carried yesterday in the municipal election.

The final vote on the question was: affirmative, 729; negative, 107. The margin of victory amounted to only 109 due to the fact that a majority of the registered voters was necessary to carry the election. Although 1,239 persons registered for the balloting, only 839 actually voted.

The supplement voted yesterday will amount to approximately $6,000, which amount will be added to the funds allotted by the state and be used to increase the salaries of local teachers and to lengthen the school term by one month.

According to the provisions of the McLean school bill passed by the General Assembly during the early part of this year, the state now provides for the maintenance of local schools during a period of eight months, where it formerly provided only six months' maintenance with the cities providing for three months to make a nine months' term.

The bill also made provisions for special elections in cities meeting certain requirements to decide whether the districts would levy supplementary funds to provide for the extra period to make up a nine months' term.

HUGE PEP RALLY SET FOR TONIGHT

With "Beat Georgia" as Battle-Cry.

One of the most spirited pep rallies ever to be held on the Carolina campus will take place tonight when University students will gather around a giant bonfire behind Memorial hall with "Beat Georgia" as their battle-cry.

The festivities will begin at 7:30 o'clock when a program of cheering and the singing of Kay Kyser's new University battle-songs will get under way with Ernest Hunt and his cheerleaders showing the way.

A preliminary rally at 7:10 o'clock in fraternity court will take place with members of every fraternity gathering around a piano to sing the new songs and start the evening with enthusiasm. They will go in a body to the big celebration.

"Georgia's ghost," a dummy, will be tossed bodily on the blaze at the rally.

The torchlight parade, one of the main features, will begin immediately following the rally around the fire and will consist of marching students with nearly 150 torches. Many automobiles and motorcycles will be on hand to lend the effects.

The parade will proceed to Spencer hall, where the co-eds are to be smoked out, according to suggestions at the University club last night.

Many other additional features are promised by the leaders on the movement for a revival of Carolina school spirit.

The booth in the Y. M. C. A. will be open today at assembly period and from 2:00 until 3:00 o'clock this afternoon where students can sign up to belong to the newly formed Cheerio club and get copies of the battle-songs.

Students are urged to bring their song copies to the rally and to the Georgia game tomorrow.

Sounds Call to Present Generation to Rededicate Itself to Ideals of Aycock.

PARENTS VISIT STUDENTS

Founders' Day Academic Procession Is Far Cry From That Of 140 Years Ago.

"Amid the confusion and misunderstanding of our times, this state needs today more than anything else men of Aycock's type," declared Judge Robert W. Winston, noted jurist and author, in the annual Founders' day address here yesterday as the University celebrated its 140th birthday.

Judge Winston, who was the classmate and later the law partner of Charles Brantley Aycock, sounded a call to the present generation to rededicate itself to the "ideals so nobly enunciated and translated into action by North Carolina's great educational governor."

Shows Aycock's Character

A number of facts, many of which are original source material gathered by the Judge during the summer, were brought out to show the various phases of Aycock's character. Referring to the famous speech of the governor at the Democratic convention in 1904, when he fought back at criticisms that he was spending too much money on education, Judge Winston remarked:

"As the governor finished . . . he was greeted with generous applause. Boldness, honesty, common sense, and fidelity to duty—these had won the day."

Judge Winston recalled the dramatic scene attending the
