Arthur Stein, Pierced by Blue Devil's Spear, Resting Easily At Duke Hospital.

HAS DEEP FLESH WOUND

Arthur Stein of Bronx, N. Y., member of the University band who was pierced in the back yesterday by the spear hurled by Duke University's team mascot, the Blue Devil, was resting easily last night. No serious injury was sustained.

According to a report received last last night from a member of the staff of the Duke University hospital, where Stein is confined, the injury was nothing more than a deep puncture of the superficial back muscle. No organs were pierced.

Stein will be confined under observation at Duke for several days to allow the wound to heal sufficiently for his removal.

The accident occurred between the halves of the Duke-Carolina football game. Stein was marching in the last row of the University band which was followed in a march by the Duke musical organization. The Blue Devil, who was capering between the bands and throwing his pronged fork around the field, misgauged the distance from his position to that of the last members of the University band and overthrew the spear. It pierced Stein's back just above the hips.

The fork was cut in an emergency operation on the field by a member of Duke Hospital's staff. The wound was treated later by anti-toxin and antiseptics at the hospital.

Miller Well Pleased

"In spite of the fact that most of the men are new to the organization," said Grady H. Miller, director, "the Glee club has shown a wonderful improvement since the first of the year." However, he deprecates the lack of regular and prompt attendance of the members at the meetings.

Plans have been made for the Glee club to hold a concert at Meredith College on November 25. This will be the first out of town concert for the year. Others will be given in the future.

Fighting Tar Heels Drop Bitterly-Fought 21-0 Tilt To Powerful Blue Devils

Quartet of Stars

Here are some of the Tar Heels

who gave the Duke Blue Devils lots of trouble yesterday afternoon. "Babe" Daniel, sophomore center, was assigned the job "to handle Crawford," and he did most effectively. George Barclay continued his jam up play at guard despite an ailing knee which impeded his speedy defensive work. Bill Collins returned to the Carolina line-up with an injured wrist, still supported by a brace, but played brilliantly. Captain Bill Croom was the most outstanding back Carolina had. He shone with brilliant broken-field running, turning in his best game of the year.

Barclay's Stellar Play Features Thrilling Gridiron Clash.

A superior Duke University football team added another chapter in her book on "How to Go to the Rose Bowl" when it conquered a fighting Carolina juggernaut 21 to 0 yesterday in Durham before 32,000, the largest crowd ever to witness a game in the south and state this year.

With this choice victory went Carolina's chances for the Big Five title and Southern Conference laurels. Duke's triumph places it in the national spotlight as the only undefeated or untied team in the south, as Georgia tasted defeat at the hands of Auburn.

Fighting Even

Both teams exhibited a fighting brand of football, but it was clear after the first quarter that the Wademen had the upper edge. But in individual performances the work of Barclay and Tatum for Carolina outshone any that Duke had to offer, including that of the highly overrated Freddie Crawford. Chuck Collins' men reached their zenith in the third quarter, but their touchdown tries were halted near the goal line.

Displaying a powerful running attack, a superior punting performance by Rossiter, and
