

200 STUDENTS TO RECEIVE BENEFIT FROM CWA WORK

Work Will Begin as Soon as University Can Get Authorization to Use CWA Money.

PENN STATERS WORKING

There will be plenty of jobs for self-help students as soon as the University can get authorization to use CWA money, according to a statement from the Y. M. C. A. yesterday. There is still hope, it was said, that approval for the work would be obtained before the final examinations are over.

If properly allotted, enough work will be provided to use about 200 students. The committee in charge has redoubled its efforts and authorities are still working with the CWA office at Raleigh to get a plan arranged.

Penn State Students Work

The nearest so far that has come to definite encouragement is that Penn State is working 600 self-help students part time on CWA money. Other colleges are doing the same to a greater or lesser degree.

Local students who think they are qualified and need the work should complete their registration at once. Application blanks, which may be obtained at the office of Edwin S. Lanier, chairman of the self-help committee, must be filled out by students desiring employment.

SCIENCE SOCIETY TO MEET TONIGHT

Will Be 348th Meeting; J. M. Valentine and T. F. Hickerson Will Present Papers.

The Elisha Mitchell Scientific society will hold its 348th meeting tonight at 7:30 o'clock in Phillips hall. J. M. Valentine will speak on "Environmental Response and Evolution in Ground Beetles (Carabidae)," and T. F. Hickerson will present a paper on "Continuous Beams and Frames: A New Method of Analysis."

Valentine has made an extensive study of the beetle and has traveled extensively in making a collection of these insects. He spent last year traveling over Europe and parts of northern Africa in following his study, and made special studies in museums in London, Madrid, and Paris. He has spent a great deal of time wandering through the caves of the eastern United States in collecting species of blind beetle.

Hickerson's address will be a report on research that he has been carrying on for the last six years concerning stress on continuous structures. He has succeeded in simplifying complicated formulas that have hitherto made calculations on this type of structure extremely difficult. His most recent study has concerned stress on tall buildings under wind loads. Hickerson has compiled a book on the subject which will probably come off the press about January 1.

Mob Rule In Lewis Dormitory Used To Punish Robbers Of Traffic Sign

Pair of Adventurous, Acquisitive Students Come to Grief at Hands Of Self-Styled Official and Dormitory Practical Jokers For Removing Speed Limit Sign-Post.

Midnight, quivering from Sunday to Monday, found two lads in the middle of a group of Lewis dorm occupants stewing and stammering as they shifted feverish glances over the accusing fingers pointed in their direction. They gradually brought forth a sign which read: TWENTY MILES PER HOUR. The group of students crumpled in guttural laughter as the two groping figures melted into the darkness with the sign hoisted inconspicuously over their shoulders.

As they trudged along toward Carrboro, the tallest fellow, his plump cheeks puffing out disgustedly under the weight of the eight-foot-tall post, mourned the questionable nature of his future peace on Carolina campus. At the same time, he was sympathetic with his bespectacled roommate; neither of them particularly enjoyed giving up the souvenir post.

Bad, Bold Plot

As the clock struck 12:30 a. m., Lewis dorm occupants sat huddled together discussing the amateur thieves who had made off with the post. Punctuating their suggestions with loud laughter, they plotted. They went over meticulously the sequence of events. They recalled the careful manipulation of the freshman-like boys who had dragged in the broken-down sign; they also recalled the lazy fright exhibited by the tall boy when the pranksters decided to exasperate him with threats that the student government had suspected the wicked deed, or the ruffled superiority of the other when a bogus-student government representative appeared to assist officially in his torture. Both agreed immediately to cooperate in returning the post. The plot thickened.

Relieved by the fact that the post had been properly and discreetly replaced, the two night-owls confidently faced a solemn group. One of the plotters stormed out, "But suppose that the student government official doesn't know that you have returned the post and it gets stolen

Greensboro Paper Says Alumni To Attempt To Oust Graham Next

As a sequel to the dismissal of "Chuck" Collins as football coach here, "the next drive at Chapel Hill will be against President Frank Porter Graham . . . in the campaign to make a great university by first building big football teams," states an article appearing in the Greensboro Daily News yesterday.

"Nevertheless, in clearing out Collins," the story continues, "the protestants have negotiated only their first hurdle. Their next and much more serious is Frank Graham . . . He has never been able to see the 'spiritual quality' of subsidized athletes."

"Then there is the student loan fund . . . but Mr. Graham isn't advocating a raid on it for athletes."

According to the account, it will be easy enough to get a good coach here, but he will be "disadvantaged" by the policy of the University president. "President Graham does not appear to be a man who will change. Question: Can those downtrodden and patriotic alumni who have ousted Collins, change or oust Graham?"

The story concludes with this "prophecy" that "the real trouble at the University is that it isn't 'putting up' for its athletes. It isn't putting football first. It may be necessary, in order to get an ideal football coach, to warm up a new academic coach. It remains to be seen whether Dr. Graham will take the risk of putting out a few more just fair football teams."

As far as could be ascertained yesterday by the DAILY TAR HEEL, no such action as the News describes is under way and is not likely to be considered.

BARNES REPRESENTS UNION AT CONVENTION

Harper Barnes, president of the student body, returned Sunday from Columbus, Ohio, where he represented Graham Memorial, University union, at the Association of Student Unions meeting.

GLEE CLUB WILL OFFER PROGRAM

Campus Presentations Initiate New Policy of Organization; Will Be Second Program.

The University Glee club, under the direction of H. Grady Miller, will sing in Hill Music hall this evening at 8:30 o'clock.

This is the second program of the Glee club this fall, the first being given at Meredith College in Raleigh. It also initiates a new policy on the part of the club, to give one concert on the campus each quarter without charge.

An important feature in the club's past history to be revived in this concert is the inclusion of Negro spirituals. Under the direction of Paul J. Weaver, former head of the music department, the Glee club attained considerable fame in the singing of these songs.

The program of the Glee club is as follows: sacred group: "Now Let Every Tongue Adore Thee," by Bach; "With Heart Uplifted," by Schvedov; "Hymn of the Pilgrims," by MacDowell. Russian group: "At Father's Door," Moussorgsky; "The Song of the Cudgel" and "Fireflies," folk songs.

Songs of the southern Negro: "Swing Low," "O Mary Don't You Weep," "Couldn't Hear Nobody Pray," and "Toll de Bell Angel," arranged by P. J. Weaver; and "Ma Little Banjo," by Dichmont.

Miscellaneous songs: "Moorish Serenade," by Protheroe; "Gallway Pipes," Irish folk song; "Ashes of Roses," by Wolfe; "The Chorus of Camel Drivers," Franck; and "The Reapers Song," a Bohemian folk song.

Sophs Will Meet to Vote for Secretary

The sophomore class will meet tomorrow morning in Gerrard hall at 10:30 o'clock for about five minutes for the purpose of electing a class secretary.

This will be a run-off election. Last week no one man received a majority of the class' votes, but Phillips Russell and Billy Yandell were the two highest men in the polling.

All members of the class are urged to vote. Last week only about one half of the class voted. Tomorrow the class will vote for one man, Billy Yandell or Phillips Russell. Vance Young was elected last spring but failed to return to school.

KOCH'S READING WELL ATTENDED

Capacity Audience Hears "Proff" Give Presentation.

Professor Frederick H. Koch read Dickens' "The Christmas Carol" Sunday night in Memorial hall to a capacity audience. Students, townspeople, and many persons from nearby cities attended the 28th anniversary of Koch's Christmas reading.

Between the four staves or chapters of the story, Christmas carols were sung by Mr. and Mrs. George Lawrence and Dr. and Mrs. G. A. Harrer. An attractive scene of fir trees illuminated by indirect lighting was arranged by Samuel Selden, associate director of the Playmakers.

The German nativity play presented Sunday afternoon by the Playmakers under the direction of Dr. Meno Spann also played to a full house. A silver offering was taken to defray expenses and an amount of money above that needed for the expenses was donated to charity.

MID-TERM EXAMS RECOMMENDATION TO BE CONSIDERED

Administration Board of Student Welfare Submits Suggestion To President Graham.

SUGGEST EXAM SCHEDULE

The recommendation that there be a specific schedule for mid-term examinations was made yesterday to President Graham by the Administration Board of the Division of Student welfare, which met at noon yesterday.

The recommendation about mid-terms took the form of the plan submitted by the Student Advisory board last month which is as follows: "Be it recommended by this group that whatever mid-term quizzes be given, be: First, held within one week, designated by the faculty. Second that such quizzes be given as follows: 8:30 classes on Monday; 9:30 classes on Tuesday; 11:00 classes on Wednesday; 12:00 classes on Thursday; and 2:00 to 4:00 classes on Friday and Saturday. "Third, that the regular class sessions be held during the particular week as usual; and that these classes must be met, an unexcused absence drawing probation for the remainder of the quarter."

The recommendation was also submitted to President Graham by the board that unemployed women teachers and women here for special training in nursing be allowed to room in Graham dormitory.

THREE STUDENTS IN LAW PLEDGED

Mayne Albright, Frank Parker, And Franklin Clark Are New Phi Delta Phi Pledges.

The North Carolina (Vance) Inn of Phi Delta Phi, international legal fraternity, yesterday announced the pledging of three men from the first-year law class.

Those pledged are: Mayne Albright, Raleigh; Frank Parker, Asheville; and Frank Clark, Fayetteville.

The selection of these men was based on their outstanding scholastic records during the past summer session of the law school in addition to their mid-term examinations.

Clark and Parker were recently selected as participants in the mock trials to be conducted in which the DAILY TAR HEEL is to be a defendant in a libel action brought by Clark.

Albright, due to his present occupation as manager of Graham Memorial, is only taking limited work in the law school.

Phi Delta Phi is the only legal fraternity now in the University. It will sponsor the mock trials this year as has been its habit in the past. It will also sponsor a series of talks by outstanding lawyers of this state. John J. Parker, judge of the fourth circuit court of appeals will be one of the speakers.

Co-ed Frosh

There will be a meeting of the co-ed members of the freshman class today at 4:30 o'clock in the Woman's association room in Graham Memorial. All members are urged to attend.
