

RINGMEN-MATMEN OPEN SEASON TODAY

Quarles and Hall Headline Tonight's Boxing Meet with Virginia Polys.

CONTEST WILL BE TOUGH

Tar Heel Pugs Round Out Training in Good Shape for Their Season-Opener Tonight.

Featuring what promises to be a "battle royal" between Norment Quarles and Fred Hall, lightweights, the University of North Carolina boxing teams will begin their campaign for Southern Conference honors by meeting the strong Virginia Polytechnic Institute pugilists here in the Tin Can.

Last year Referee Charlie Short of Baltimore honored Quarles by saying he was "the greatest collegiate boxer" he had ever seen. The brilliant lightweight made history in 1933, thrilling thousands of fans in Chapel Hill, by decisively defeating Bobby Goldstein, Virginia's national 135-pound champion. It was the first time the Virginian had been beaten as a collegiate. Finishing the season without a loss to his record, Quarles blew through the Southern Conference boxing tournament winning the featherweight crown in great style.

Dope on Fred Hall

Fred Hall, Tech's threatening 135-pound sophomore find, will by no means be a breather for the dazzling Quarles. This boy is no pushover; he employs a powerful punch, and more than that, he is plenty clever and fast. Last year as a freshman, Hall finished his season without bowing to any opponents. In fact he has several knockouts under his belt. With Quarles looking the best of his career, showing added finesse, punch, and speed, the lightweight event should be a real treat.

The failure of Platt Landis to return to school considerably weakens the upper berths. However Coach Rowe is making every effort to groom James Carruth to meet "Red" Negri, V. P. I. grid and boxing star. Last year Negri extended Landis to an extra round before he finally succumbed to the relentless attack of the Southern Conference heavyweight titlist.

Coach Esleeck Comments

Several weeks ago, Dick Esleeck, popular boxing coach at Virginia Tech for the past eight seasons, had hopes of assembling a great ring team at V. P. I. this year, but his dreams vanished when many of his proteges failed to report for boxing. Commenting on the drought of pugs, Esleeck remarked: "Well, I lost three stars I was counting on, two of my best sophomores did not return, and four of the eight classes on my team are as vacant as Goldsmith's Deserted Village."

A wire reached the DAILY TAR HEEL office stating that V. P. I. has assembled an inexperienced freshman team, strongest in the lighter weights. This should not worry the Tar Heel coach as he, too, has several formidable lightweights. Tom O'Flaherty, stellar 135-pound yearling clouter, looms as Carolina's most promising ringman. Although Tom has been troubled by a sprained thumb all week, he has managed to keep fit and is raring to go. Marion Diehl and Joe Fisher, who fill the bantam and welterweight divisions, have been showing up well in their afternoon sojourns.

Medynski, Crooning Pug

In the middleweight classes, Jule Medynski, the crooning boxer, and Max Novich, upper-cut expert, should persuade the alumni that Carolina will continue to be a threat to all op-

When asked for a statement concerning the boxers, Coach Rowe, who is a man of few but meaningful words, said, "The boys have been training faithfully and are eager to get started. I have been greatly pleased by the manner in which they have been cooperating with me. They have the right fighting spirit."

Major Harvey L. Miller of Washington, D. C., will referee the bouts. The freshman bouts are scheduled to begin at 7:30 o'clock, followed by the varsity fights which will take place at 8:30 o'clock. Admission will be 50 cents per person. No student will be admitted without an athletic passbook.

Maryland Books Nine Grid Tilts For 1934 Liners

Maryland Athletic Authorities Book Navy and Indiana for Next Grid Season.

(Special to the DAILY TAR HEEL)

College Park, Md., Jan. 12—University of Maryland athletic authorities recently released the 1934 football schedule for the Old Liners.

They will meet Navy and Indiana in special headline contests. Navy is an old gridiron foe, having appeared on the Maryland schedule before, but the Indiana eleven is a newcomer to their schedule cards.

Drop Tulane, Duke

In 1933, Western Maryland, Tulane, and Duke were met along with the usual Virginia "Big Four" teams and St. John's, the former three teams will be dropped from the Terrapin schedule.

The schedule:

- Stp. 29—St. John's, here.
- Oct. 6—Washington and Lee, Lexington, Va.
- Oct. 13—Navy, Annapolis, Md.
- Oct. 20—V. P. I., Norfolk, Va.
- Oct. 27—Florida, Baltimore, Md.
- Nov. 3—University Va., here.
- Nov. 10—V. M. I., here.
- Nov. 17—Indiana, Bloomington, Ind.
- Nov. 29—John Hopkins, Baltimore.

TODAY'S CONTEST

Four good boxing matches which should pack any man's arena with fans hungry for the ring spectacle headline Southern Conference fightdom. N. C. State will meet the South Carolina Gamecocks; Duke, Clemson; Virginia, Harvard; V. M. I., Maryland.

Duke's cagers will finish their northern trip today, meeting Navy in an afternoon game at Annapolis.

STAR TAR HEEL FORWARD

Above is a characteristic action picture of Virgil Weathers, all-southern forward and senior. Last night he played a beautiful game against the V. M. I. cadets, running-up "Snooks" Aitken for scoring honors. His floor work and general all round play was the feature of the Tar Heel quintet. The victory over V. M. I. gave the Carolina five, three Southern Conference triumphs: Clemson, V. P. I., and the cadets.

Phantoms Stage Last Half Rally To Lick V M I 38-18

(Special to the DAILY TAR HEEL)

Lexington, Va., Jan. 12—Trailing at half time 15-12, Carolina's White Phantoms rallied brilliantly while holding the V. M. I. five's scoring guns silent, finally winning 38 to 18. This is the North Carolinians' third conference triumph.

Final count is no indication of the brilliant play put up by the hard fighting kaydet quint. The Tar Heels started slowly while the V. M. I. cagers leaped quickly into an early lead which they held until intermission.

Second Half All U. N. C.

Following the rest at half time, the North Carolina invaders started a brilliant display of pyrotechnics. Not only did they put on necessary offensive power, but they also cut off the local club's chances of victory when they held the kaydets to one field goal and one foul goal.

The Tar Heels showed a well-coached five which came through when the going got tough.

Aitken, Weathers Lead Scoring "Snooks" Aitken, diminutive Carolina forward, topped both teams in scoring with 13 points, a dozen points from action and one foul shot. His running mate, Virgil Weathers, was runner-up with 10, four field goals and a brace of shots from the gratis line. Weathers stood out like a star, shining on the offense consistently while his floor work was scintillating.

Downey, guard, led the losers with six points, three field goals. Captain Hancock, center, played a fine floor game.

The Tar Heels will finish their Virginia trip tomorrow night, meeting the W. & L. Generals in Doremus gymnasium.

TERPS MEET V. P. I. FIVE TODAY WHILE PUGS MEET V. M. I.

Maryland's Basketeers and Ring Teams Have Double-Header With Virginia Teams.

(Special to the DAILY TAR HEEL)

College Park, Md., Jan. 12—Maryland's basketeers and ringmen will round up an ambitious tour of Virginia schools tonight when the cagers finish their jaunt with V. P. I. and the pugs clash with V. M. I.

Thursday night, the Terps won a brilliant upset victory over the Duke Blue Devils 37-33 in College Park. Last night, the Old Liners met Washington and Lee and tonight they will round up their Virginia trip by taking on the V. P. I. quintet.

Pugs Meet Kaydets

Lt. Jack Harmony's ringsters will meet the V. M. I. kaydet boxers tonight in Lexington.

The boxing squad right now is not as strong as the one which defeated V. M. I. last year 5-3, but it will still be much better when eligibility gives them renewed strength January 24.

Only Three Vets

Lt. Harmony has only a trio of veterans to form a nucleus for his ring club this winter. The letter men are: Harry Carroll, 125-pounder; Lylna McAboy, 155-pound division; and Stewart McCaw, light-heavyweight. In last year's meet with the kaydets, McCaw won while his team mates, Carroll and McAboy lost.

Dope on Terp Five

Coach Burtin Shipley in outlining his plans for the cagers' campaign in Virginia, indicated that he would stick to his four veterans, Spencer Chase and Bob Snyder, forwards; Rufus Vincent, center and Bucky Buscher, guard.

But then Bucky's lil' sophomore brother has come through in fine condition, winning the game from Duke Thursday night.

BOXERS ATTENTION!

The weighing-in time for men who are going to box on the freshman and varsity teams tonight against V. P. I. has been changed. Freshmen will weigh in at 3:30 o'clock and varsity men at 4:00 o'clock at Emerson stadium.

Grapplers Will Find Tough Sledging in Heavier Divisions Against N. C. State.

McLAURIN LEADS PACK

Matmen Out for Revenge of Last Year's Defeat at Hands of West Raleigh Boys.

Freshman and varsity wrestling teams of Carolina and State will inaugurate their 1934 season this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock in the Tin Can.

The Tar Heel varsity aggregation is seeking revenge for a heart-breaking 18-14 upset which the Wolfpack handed them last year. The West Raleigh grapplers went on to annex the State championship following their victory over Duke.

McLaurin Leads State

James McLaurin is the State captain. He wrestles in the 155 pound class and he was considered among the best in his weight last year. Other State stars are Croom, 175; and Morrah, 115. Croom's only defeat last year was by Percy Idol, Carolina's Southern Conference heavyweight champion, while Morrah was outstanding last year losing only two matches.

Carolina will pin its hopes chiefly on four lettermen, Thad Hussey 118 pounds; Captain Clarke Mathewson, 126; Morton Hiller, 145 and Mac Auman, 175. Of this quartet, Captain Mathewson and Hussey were victors over their Tech opponents last year. These men are all beginning their final year on the mat.

Four Weights Untried

The material for the four remaining positions on the team is new and untried, and has yet to prove its strength under fire.

The probable entries are Bost or Hodges, 135; Simonds or Greer, 155; Efland 165; and
