

SOCIETIES MUST BE APPROVED TO RECEIVE CO-EDS

Printed Blanks to Be Filled in by Presidents of Lodges Will Be Sent Next Week.

MUST COMPLY WITH RULES

Application blanks on which fraternities may ask for the privilege of entertaining co-eds are being printed and will be sent out to lodges the first of next week, it was announced yesterday from the office of the dean of students.

The regulation passed last Monday by the Administrative Board of the Division of Student Welfare approved as an experiment that women students may visit fraternity houses between the hours of 1:00 and 10:30 o'clock in the afternoon without formal chaperonage.

Continues Until June

The privilege granted a society will continue, unless withdrawn, until June. To ensure that the responsible leadership of the fraternity clearly understands the obligations involved it is planned by University authorities to require the renewal of application each September.

The conditions upon which fraternities will be allowed to receive co-eds are embodied in the following provisions, which will be printed on the blank for the president of each lodge to sign and send to Mrs. M. H. Stacy, adviser to women:

Only the social rooms, halls, porches, and dining room, on the first floor will be open to the women students; there will be no visiting in other parts of the house.

During these hours there will be no drinking of intoxicating drinks.

The atmosphere of the place will be that of any regulated home.

The fraternity members must agree to report any breach of trust that comes to their attention on the part of the fraternity to both the Interfraternity council and to the president of the woman's association.

Visiting will be between the hours of 1:00 p. m., and 10:30 p. m.

FROSH WILL ASK FOR CHAPEL FUND

Money Will Be Used to Give Better Entertainment in Freshman Assemblies.

The freshman executive committee in session last night went on record as being in favor of an appropriation from University funds for securing better programs for freshman assembly programs.

This action came as a result of a report made by John Kendrick, chairman of the chapel program committee. Kendrick also announced the programs that have been planned for in the near future. This schedule includes several prominent speakers and near-by orchestras.

The group discussed the question of student entertainment at length on the request of the committee appointed by Nate Lipscomb, president of the class, to take action toward the improvement of the student entertainment series. The principle object of this committee is to fathom student opinion on the subject and to attempt to have more emphasis placed on pure entertainment in the programs than upon cultural advancement.

A motion was passed to have executive committee meetings every other Wednesday instead of every Wednesday as has been the practice since its organization.

The first part of the meeting was devoted to the taking of pictures for the Yackety Yack.

CHIMES RINGERS ORGANIZE GUILD

Walter Patterson Asks for Apprentices with Fundamental Musical Knowledge.

Students interested in becoming apprentices in the local Guild of Bell Ringers may enroll with Walter B. Patterson, master ringer, today or Saturday at the Morehead-Patterson tower.

Prerequisites for candidates include a knowledge of note valuation and the ability to read easy passages at sight. The Guild does not propose to teach newcomers the fundamentals of music but will instruct in simple transposition.

The candidates will be given pieces to transpose from one key to another for adaptation to the chimes.

To Supply Student Ringer

It is the hope of the Guild that eventually a master ringer may be appointed from the student body. Patterson was brought to Chapel Hill to serve in this capacity. The instruction and series of lectures which the society is offering is intended to render students qualified to hold the chief position in the organization.

Patterson announced recently that a schedule of visiting hours and days is to be placed on the tower door. It is the express wish of the Guild that students and townspeople take advantage of the opportunity to see how the campanile is played.

PHI PHOTOGRAPHED

All members of the Philanthropic assembly will meet this morning at 10:23 in front of Manning hall to pose for the Yackety Yack group picture.

SONG COLLECTION GIVEN TO LIBRARY

Compositions by Stephen C. Foster, Famous Song-Writer, Added by J. K. Lilly.

The library has just received from Josiah K. Lilly of Indianapolis the gift of a set of "Foster Hall Reproductions of the Songs, Compositions and Arrangements by Stephen Collins Foster."

Stephen C. Foster, 1826-1864, called "America's Troubadour" by his latest biographer John Tasker Howard, composed immortal melodies most of them associated with the Negro and the south. The most familiar are "Old Folks at Home," "My Old Kentucky Home"—the official state song of Kentucky—"Old Black Joe," "Massa's in de Cold Ground," and "Oh! Susanna," the tune of which became the forty-niners' marching song to California.

200 Facsimiles

In the "Reproductions," 200 Stephen Foster songs and compositions, all that could be discovered through research by the staff of Foster Hall, are reproduced in facsimile. First editions were used when available, otherwise the earliest obtainable editions. The work has been handsomely done, on specially made rag paper, the separate music sheets alphabetically arranged by title in three buckram portfolios, for which a metal case has been provided. The sets are not for sale, but are being given to libraries in strategic locations for permanent preservation and reference use.

Foster Hall, from which the work is issued, is a charming stone cottage in Indianapolis owned by Mr. Lilly, in which is kept a Fosterian collection of books, manuscripts and letters. The library owns an illustrated booklet describing this building, and a book, "My Brother Stephen," by Morrison Foster, also gifts of Mr. Lilly.

The cause of the fire was not definitely known, but it is believed that someone either mistook the mail box for a waste basket or unthinkingly dropped a match in the box supposing it was out.

The entertainment is being held to raise funds for the benefit of the Warm Springs foundation in Georgia and to honor the nation's chief on his 52nd birthday. The Warm Springs foundation is the famous institution noted for its successful treatment of infantile paralysis.

SAUNDERS TALKS TO SOPHOMORES

Alumni Secretary Tells Second-Year Class of Meaning of Alumni Connections.

Maryon saunders, secretary of the alumni association, yesterday spoke to the sophomores at their weekly assembly in Gerard hall. He concerned himself mainly with the topic "What it means to be an alumnus."

Many alumni use their time when they graduate to live in the past and talk about their good times at Chapel Hill, according to Saunders, but there are many who are really interested in the present and future of the University. They try to help the University and often offer helpful criticism, and they recognize it as a tool for building better citizens for a better government and state.

Alumnus Can Help

According to Saunders, there are two things an alumnus can do for the University: first, be a good citizen (this is the first responsibility of a former student), and second, to continue his interest in the University. He must realize that this state has established its educational system for the perpetuation of democracy.

"The work of the alumni association is based on local clubs and the organized classes," said Saunders. "As a class the alumni will carry forward their social contacts made here, and so keep in touch with one another and facilitate their work in aiding the University."

Saunders closed his talk by asking the sophomores to speak to prospective students this spring and to help alumni in bringing new students here.

There will be special tables for the guests, officials of the class, and the executive committee, otherwise there will be no reservations.

College Men Have Not Shown Spirit

Ex-President Harry W. Chase Speaks on Leadership.

"The leadership shown by college men during the depression has compared unfavorably with their leadership during the World War," stated Chancellor Harry Woodburn Chase of New York University, former president of the University of North Carolina, last week to alumni of Dartmouth College at a dinner at the Hotel Plaza.

"This country learned at the time of the great war," added Chase, "that the college graduates as a class possessed qualities of leadership, the ability to handle men, and the willingness to make personal sacrifices in their devotion to a cause."

"In the present situation which has confronted the United States for the past few years there have been many evidences of fine leadership in government, in finance, and in business, on the part of college men; but, on the whole, I have questioned whether the leadership of the college man in this emergency has been quite as adequate as in the emergency fifteen years ago."

The former president of the University also advocated the formation of public opinion against any attempt to capture the colleges and universities for political ends.

Citing how universities in Germany had been practically destroyed by the government's attempting to capture the minds of youths for political ends, Chase drew a lesson for this country to benefit by.

The dinner, at which the University's former head spoke, was in honor of Dean Craven Laycock of Dartmouth, who will retire in June after 37 years of service to education.
