

WASHINGTON DUKE INSTALLS TAVERN

Is Reproduction of Early American Dining Room.

Several hundred persons visited the Washington Duke hotel tavern, a hotel restaurant new and unique to Durham, at its official opening a few days ago.

The tavern is a reproduction of an early American dining room, and has a distinct colonial atmosphere. The ceiling is beamed, and the walls are paneled with western knotted pine. All fixtures harmonize with the antique architectural design.

Among the features of the tavern are a seafood bar, and semi-private booths. It is equipped with modern air-conditioning machinery, and there are many extra comforts such as red leather cushions for the booths, and chintz curtains of pirate design at the windows. The chandeliers and other lighting fixtures are in the style of old-fashioned oil lamps.

The seating capacity of the tavern is much greater than that of the coffee shop which formerly occupied the space.

J. EAGLES AND W. ANGLIN PASS BAR EXAMINATION

Two students from the University law school—Joe C. Eagles of Wilson and William E. Anglin of Burnsville—passed the state bar examination Monday, it was learned here yesterday.

The examination was the first given by the board of examiners of the newly incorporated state bar. Only 29 of the 64 applicants successfully stood the tests, and the percentage of failures was said to be the highest on record.

BEAUTIFUL NEW DURHAM RENDEZVOUS

The Washington Duke hotel has just opened the above pictured tavern in early American colonial style. This new style dining room occupies the space formerly used by the hotel's coffee shop. The modern seafood bar and semi-private booths are featured in Durham's most novel retreat for connoisseurs of epicurean delights.

Tar Heel Matmen to Meet Generals Today

(Continued from page three) champions in Thomas, 115-pounder, Sarkis, 125 and Captain Pritchard, 165. Washington and Lee already boasts victories over V. P. I. and Davidson. After meeting Carolina the Generals will journey over to Raleigh where they will clash with the strong State contingent tomorrow night.

The Tar Baby grapplers will be out for their fourth win this afternoon. Little is known of the strength of the visiting yearlings who were undefeated last year. Umstead, Douglas, Ward and Bonner are undefeated this year. Carolina smothered the Duke frosh last week and 29 1/2-41 1/2.

PLANS FURTHERED FOR TOWN CLUBS

(Continued from first page) voted to hold a banquet during the week-end of the junior-senior dances. The former social committee has been designated to work out the entertainment and program for the banquet. Owing to the strenuous rain which has been descending for the last two days, the former plans for a big bonfire tonight have been definitely drowned. The present plan is to urge all students to attend the game this week-end and an attempt will be made to have the band present to liven up the party. During the intermission between freshman and varsity games the club hopes that it can have the president of the Duke student body say a few words in behalf of the great improvement which has been shown in the spirit between the two schools this year. A suggestion was advanced that arrangements be made to have a large crowd of students at Duke when Carolina plays there and that the pep rally be postponed until just before the Southern Conference.

Committees were appointed to meet the three teams visiting at the Hill this week-end and it is hoped that the German club will consent to let these team members in the dances.

News Flash

That old prognosticator of future joys or sorrows steps out today at noon to see if he can find his shadow, which has been none too elusive in recent years. None other than Mr. Groundhog will put in appearance today after his long winter nap and see whether his shadow will be big and bad enough to drive him back to the safe retreat of his abode. If he does duck back in, you'd better dig out your hip boots 'cause it shor' will rain.

Doping the Sports

(Continued from page three) put on steam in the last few minutes of play, but in the last battle the rally wasn't quite enough. In tomorrow's contest Duke will be all ready for one of the Tar Heel spurts so the best plan for Carolina will be to play real basketball for two complete halves.

THE boxing team took a pretty bad beating in the battle with Virginia, but it still has a fairly good chance to take the conference championship. Giddens showed that he still had some stuff, which was lacking in the State meet because the junior-middleweight had taken off too many pounds the week before. Ray was fighting with a broken rib but still nearly knocked his opponent out. Eutsler continued to show plenty of stuff and seems to need only a little more experience to make him a champion, while both Williams and Lumpkin may come through at any time.

COACH LaRowe had three boys he could have put in the 135 pound class, but didn't have the heart to put one of his fighters against Quarles. Norm was plenty sore and probably would have been willing to take a different one of the Virginia battlers in each round just for a fight. The blond bouncer improves his timing by catching flies with one hand while the insects are moving through the air.

COACH Snavelly continues to make quite a hit with both the football team and students. I was especially impressed by the way the new mentor went after the blocking the first day out and has stressed this important phase of the game since. The Tar Heel teams of the past few years looked weakest in blocking and it is a well known fact that no eleven can have a good offense without good blocking.

COACH Snavelly is a quiet fellow, hardly ever raising his voice, but so far he surely has gotten results. The whole squad is really putting out and is showing more pep than at any time during the 1933 season. The way the teams already execute the new wingback system after only a week's practice is

At the end of the rehearsal (past midnight), each member of the operetta resembled the disintegrating Oswald as he appeared in the final scene of Iben's "Ghosts." One more rehearsal and two performances will probably see and hear them saying, "Mother, give me the sun."

Routine Matters

Routine matters before the board were disposed with before the other affairs. The charges for the Yackety Yack space of the freshman class were set with the regular 20 per cent discount given to organizations paying their bills before a certain date. The appeal of the first year class for this discount was granted because the class had not been able to take advantage of the offer due to no organization at that time.

The freshmen, however, will be required to pay three per cent additional on the balance as it has been the custom of the Yackety Yack business manager to deposit all funds collected early in order to draw the regular three per cent interest from the bank.
