

NEW ERA STARTED STATES T. Z. KOO

Christian Associations from All Over World Represented in Religious Conference.

A one day international conference sponsored here by the North Carolina council of Student Christian associations, featuring talks by T. Z. Koo, Chinese Christian, was held here Sunday.

Koo, speaking in the morning at the Methodist church on "The Effect Jesus Has on the Chinese," stated that introducing Christ to the people of his country brought a challenge for higher living. He said Christ brought knowledge of God back again to the people, gave them a personal example of a Christian, brought out the worth of individuals, and set up the standard of "loving your enemies."

Entering New Era

In the night meeting Koo said that the world was entering upon a new era; and stated that in the future, people were going to have to decide whether materialism or spiritualism was to be dominant, whether nationalism or internationalism was going to be used, what was going to be done about the present economic system, whether war or peace was going to be dominant, and what was to be done about the race issue.

Discussions in the afternoon also centered around the topic of "Trends Towards a United Christian Movement," and were (Continued on page two)

ALUMNUS WRITES BOOK ON POLITICS

Dr. Francis W. Coker, '99, Professor at Yale, Author of "Recent Political Thought."

Dr. Francis W. Coker, who graduated from the University in '99 and who is now Cowles professor of government and director of graduate study in government at Yale University, has written a book, "Recent Political Thought," which presents a thorough treatment of its subject. It is one of the Century-Appleton company.

The book presents for the first time a concise review of the more important and significant political ideas set forth by theoretical writers and manifested in practical social movements during the period from the middle of the nineteenth century to the present day.

Political Groups

It opens with an introductory description of political ideas of the earlier part of this period and then presents the more recent ideas in three groups. In the first of these groups such theories are taken up as those of the socialists, Marxians, Russians, anarchists, syndicalists, and guild socialists. In the second group the doctrines of the advocates, critics and defenders of democracy are discussed. Lastly the author takes up the more recent ideas bearing upon the province of government and the relation of public authority to individual liberty.

Coker is a brother of Drs. W. C. and R. E. Coker of the botany and zoology departments of the University. R. E. Coker stated that his brother has been working on this book for about twenty years.

DI WILL DISCUSS ANTI-WAR BILL

Other Measures on Placement Bureau and Theatre Prices.

The Di senate has three bills to come up for discussion at its meeting tonight at 7:00 o'clock in New West.

The first of these measures is one that is becoming more and more a problem among the student bodies of the colleges and universities of America today. The bill reads: Resolved: That the Dialectic senate should inaugurate an anti-war movement on the campus.

This question involves a subject that has been freely discussed on the campus for some time. The senate discussion is a part of a movement toward organized action on the matter at the University.

Other bills are: Resolved: That the vocational placement bureau should be revived; Resolved: That admission prices to the Carolina theatre are exorbitant.

This production is a revival in honor of the 75th birthday anniversary of Augustus Thomas, generally known as dean of American playwrights.

Professor Koch first met Augustus Thomas while he was still in the west. Thomas was then interested in the work Koch was doing in native drama. Later when he formed the plan for the National American theatre, Koch was included as a director. Particular obligation is owed Thomas because it was through him that the work of the Carolina Playmakers was brought to the attention of Frederick Keppel, president of the Carnegie Foundation, which gave the $13,000 with which the Playmakers theatre was furnished and equipped eight years ago.

HUSE TO SPEAK ON JOYCE BOOK

Romance Language Professor to Talk at Bull's Head This Afternoon at 4:30.

Professor H. R. Huse, of the department of Romance languages, will speak at the Bull's Head bookshop this afternoon at 4:30 o'clock on "Ulysses, a novel by James Joyce.

This novel has been banned for about ten years, and it is only recently that it has been able to be published in the United States and England.

Published in 1922

Joyce then took it to Paris where it was published in 1922. After its publication, it was the ambition of every young American student of letters to bring back a copy of this book in his suitcase. Several shipments of this book that were sent to America and England were burned.

Random house, publishers, took the book and sought to have the ban lifted from it. This was successfully done by means of a decision handed down by Judge John M. Woolsey, December 6, 1933. In his decision Judge Woolsey stated that he found nothing in it that was dirt for dirt's sake, and said that it was evident that Joyce did not write "Ulysses" with a pornographic intent.

In the book Joyce introduces the stream of consciousness style in novelism. The style of this book will undoubtedly have a great influence on the works of the modern novelists. The public is cordially invited to attend.

Has Appeared Here

He was brought here in person last year by the North Carolina Art association and lectured and demonstrated the art of making an etching. The etchings being displayed by the University library were done largely in France and Italy.

His work is on exhibition in the Library of Congress, the New York Public library, the Chicago Art Institute, The United States National museum, and elsewhere.

Group Takes No Action On Selection of Coach Or New Manager.

By Marlingspike

"Nothing at all, nothing at all," replied Coach Bo Shepard, secretary of the athletic council, in answer to the DAILY TAR HEEL query last night as to what the council had done at its meeting. This startling statement came after the meeting had lasted nearly four hours.

Shepard added that the council discussed financial problems, taking no action on either the freshman football coach or the varsity football manager-ships.

It was learned, however, that Coach Bob Fetzer bore the brunt of the meeting, being deputized to assemble all the necessary data on the freshman football situation to be presented at the next meeting. - Coach Bob was also asked to look into the varsity managership question again and report at the next meeting.

Cerney or Skidmore

Additional rumors had it that Coach Carl Snavely favored either Coach Bill Cerney or Walter Skidmore for the freshman coaching position. It was felt, unofficially of course, that the feeling of the council favored Skidmore, although no vote of any kind was taken.

The managership question has been hanging fire since the close of the past football season. Blucher Ehringhaus, Dick Lewis, and Henry Young are the men seeking appointment. One of these will serve as frosh manager.

As far as could be learned, no definite date was set for the next meeting.

SALON ENSEMBLE PLAYS FOR FROSH

Appearing in the second of a series of musical programs in freshman assembly yesterday, Thor Johnson and his Carolina Salon ensemble gave a program of classical selections.

The Carolina Salon ensemble is an organization on the campus that is entirely directed by and composed of students in the University, the aim of which is to further the appreciation and playing of classical music.

Tour in Spring

This group of musicians has already gained an enviable reputation for itself both on the campus and throughout the state. After a number of appearances in the state, the orchestra will give a concert in Washington this spring.
