

LECTURE SERIES ON SEA SCOUTING TO START TODAY

Students Are Invited to Hear Speeches to Be Presented Today and Tomorrow at Meeting of Boy Scout Leaders in Bynum Gymnasium.

PROGRAM BEGINS AT 1:00

A cordial invitation has been extended to all University students to attend the lectures on sea scouting to be conducted here today and tomorrow by Thomas J. Keane, national director of Sea Scouting of the Boy Scouts of America, and Dr. Charles F. Smith, noted educator and recreational authority of Columbia University.

Dr. Harold D. Meyer of the University sociology department, who is in charge of the meeting, is especially anxious to have at the conference all students interested in scouting, especially former scouts, members of Alpha Phi Omega, scouting fraternity, and members of the Eagle Scout club.

In Bynum Gym

The meetings will be conducted in Bynum gym. The program will start at 1:00 o'clock this afternoon and will continue until tomorrow afternoon.

Boy Scout leaders from many sections of the state will be here for the lectures and demonstrations. An enrollment of from 75 to 100 is expected. Arrangements have been made for these out-of-town delegates to occupy the second and third floors of Everett dormitory.

Keane is the chief of all Sea Scouts. Although he studied engineering in college, he spent his summers on the seas. He graduated as a navigator and seaman at about the same time that he finished his college course. He spent five years in the U. S. navy during and after the World War. He now ranks as a lieutenant-commander in the Naval

Dr. Charles F. Smith (left), instructor in scouting at the Teachers' College of Columbia University and noted authority on recreational activities, and Commander Thomas J. Keane, national directors of the Sea Scouts of the Boy Scouts of America, who will conduct courses in sea scouting here today and tomorrow.

UNION TO RECEIVE DONIZETTI OPERA

Students Invited to Hear Broadcast of "Lucia di Lammermoor" over Radio in Lounge of Graham Memorial Today.

Students are invited to hear the Metropolitan Opera company's broadcast of "Lucia di Lammermoor," which will be received through the radio in the lounge of Graham Memorial this afternoon at 1:45 o'clock.

Composed by Gaetano Donizetti, the opera is based on Sir Walter Scott's "The Bride of Lammermoor." The action takes place in Scotland near the close of the 16th century.

Story of Feud

Although their families are engaged in a mortal feud, Edgar of Ravenwood and Lucia of Lammermoor love each other. Her brother, Lord Henry Ashton, is told by his aide, Norman, that Edgar might be the stranger who has been prowling about the grounds of Lammermoor Castle. Norman hints of the love of the two, and Ashton vows vengeance.

In scene two of act one, Lucia meets Edgar, who informs her he has been ordered to France. He proposes ending the feud, but Lucia knows that such an effort would be futile. In the opening scene of act two, Ashton, desirous of marrying Lucia to Sir Arthur Bucklaw, forges a letter indicating that she has been betrayed by Edgar. She consents to the marriage.

Wedding Scene

Scene two finds a great assemblage of knights and ladies on hand to witness the wedding. As Lucia finishes signing the papers, Edgar walks into the hall. Ashton and Edgar lunge at each other, but they are restrained. Upon seeing the marriage contract, Edgar curses Lucia and rushes from the scene.

Ashton, in the first scene of act three, challenges Edgar to a duel. In scene two, Raymond announces that Lucia, demented, has slain her husband. In the closing scene, Edgar, standing among the graves of his ancestors, is told by a train of mourners that Lucia is dying; at that moment, the funeral knell is tolled at the castle. As the opera ends, Edgar plunges a dagger into his heart and falls dead.

Student's Poem Published

A poem by Bradford White, University student, has been published in House and Garden.

Two of Theft Trio Held in Infirmary

Final disposition of the case of two of three ex-students of the University who were expelled from school Thursday after being found guilty of theft has not yet been made. The pair, Lewis Barnes and J. H. Gochenour, are held at the infirmary in the custody of University officials.

W. C. Ewing, the third member of the guilty trio, was yesterday turned over to his father and has returned to his home.

Contrary to further rumors on the campus, only Barnes of the group was a member of the "honor council." Current gossip had it that the other two men were also part of this group which was formed to supplement work of the Student council.

A complete investigation is still in progress.

Curriculum Changes At Williams Feature Break After Soph Year

Division of Four-Year Term into Preparatory and Advanced Periods Bears Similarity to Proposed Plan Now Under Discussion by Faculty at the University.

(Editor's Note: This is the third in a series of articles presenting information regarding curriculum changes on other campuses. Rhoades, who is a senior associate editor of the Williams Record, has prepared this special article on recent changes at Williams College after having been presented with a complete statement of the proposed curriculum changes here at the University.)

By John H. Rhoades, III
Williams College

It would not have taken a trip to Chapel Hill to realize the points of difference in curricular problems at Williams and those of the University of North Carolina; but my trip last April brought to the fore most noticeably several essential differences.

In the first place, Williams offers only one degree, that of A. B. It is true that a handful of people are doing post graduate work under special supervision, but this situation is rather the exception than the rule. The second most noticeable difference is that Williams offers no "practical" or "vocational" courses. Again there are some exceptions—instruction in painting and drawing and accounting have been offered this year, but no college credit is given for this

Person Hall, Second Oldest Structure, Will Be Remodeled Into University Art Gallery

Interior of Historic Edifice to Be Remodeled by Buildings Department Through Federal Aid Grant of $2,615 to University.

Person hall, now in process of being remodeled, is going to be developed into a University art gallery, according to an announcement made yesterday by Charles T. Woollen, University comptroller. The interior of second oldest structure of the University is being done over, the work being done under the direction of the building department.

According to present plans, the edifice will be divided into three sections and one room will be provided for instruction.

Labor on the gallery to be is being carried out by CWA workers and University students under the supervision of the building department through the $3,615 federal aid grant tended the University.

The wood floor in the middle section of the hall has been already removed and a concrete bottom will take its place.

The building will provide a place on the campus for the displaying and preserving of paintings and statues now in the University's possession. It will be the center of the study of art at the University.

The University has no place at present to display art features. The lobby of the music building and the library have been the only places suitable.

"The gallery will offer opportunity for a center of fine arts on the campus, emphasizing the painting end," states Woollen.

Playmaker scenery, which has been stored in the building for a number of years, has been removed to special rooms provided for their storage in the basement of Bynum gymnasium.

Person hall was presented to the University in 1797 by General Thomas Person. It has been used as the habitat of almost every type of University activity, serving as a meeting place for the Di and Phi literary societies, a chapel, chemistry department, medical school department, book exchange, and in numerous other capacities.

February Coldest Month Since 1905

According to Major Panton, who has charge of the government weather bureau here, records for the past month show that last month was the coldest Chapel Hill has been through since 1905.

The official thermometer showed that February 10, on which the mercury fell to 8, was the coldest day, and that the 15th was the warmest; on that day the temperature reached 70.

There were 23 days on which the temperature was below freezing, and eight days on which it was below 20. The mercury went as high as 50 on only eight days.

OLSEN ANNOUNCES DEBATE SCHEDULE

Two Teams Will Take Northern and Southern Trips During Spring Vacation; Complete Schedule Not Yet Arranged.

Professor William Olsen announced yesterday that two trips for the debating squad have been arranged for the spring holidays and running into the week of March 26.

The southern trip will include Georgia, Georgia Tech, Emory, Alabama, and Tulane. Plans for debating Newcomb College of New Orleans are being arranged. The following questions will be debated: subsidizing athletes, the NRA, and a humorous debate on the higher education of women.

Holiday Complications

The northern trip will include George Washington, Johns Hopkins, Vermont, and Boston. The rest of the schedule has not been compiled as yet since holiday complications have arisen. The following queries will be debated: increasing the powers of the president, boycotting of German goods, and a humorous debate on the higher education of women.

Tuesday night in room 209 in Graham Memorial, a discussion will be held on the query: Resolved: That it is to the best interests of the University of North Carolina to encourage the subsidizing of athletes.

Students interested in debating are urged to participate in five minute speeches on either side. Teams for the debate trips will be chosen shortly after the meeting Tuesday night.

Meyer Reappointed

Dr. Harold D. Meyer of the department of sociology has been reappointed chairman of the committee on recreation and leisure time for the North Carolina Conference of Social Service, of which Dean Justin Miller of Duke University is president. Meyer has associated with him many of the leaders in recreational work in the state, both lay and professional.

FACULTY CHANGES SPRING PROGRAM OF REGISTRATION

Upperclassmen to Register Before Spring Holidays; Freshmen and Sophomores to Register in Tin Can on March 26 According to Faculty Ruling.

WILL REDUCE CONFUSION

With the exception of freshmen and sophomores, students will register for the spring period the last week of this quarter, March 12 to March 17, in the offices of the deans of the various schools, it was announced yesterday by Dean A. W. Hobbs.

First and second-year men will register after spring holidays in the Tin Can Monday, March 26. Classes will start Tuesday, March 27.

Under this plan all scholars who had 15 credit courses at the beginning of the winter quarter this year may register before the spring recess.

Upperclass Registration

All students who had 15 courses before the opening of the fall quarter must register before the holidays. Failure to register during the regular period will result in a late registration fee of $5.

University officials urge all scholars, who are allowed to sign up for courses before vacation, to do so whether they expect to return to school for the next period or not, for registration involves no obligation.

Setting the registration period of sophomores and freshmen to be after the spring holidays is the result of a ruling made by the University faculty at a meeting February 6.

This change was made necessary by reason of the number of adjustments which had to be made during the last registration period.

CLASS FROM NCCW VISITS UNIVERSITY

Attends Demonstration of Anatomy in Medical School.

The class in mammalian anatomy at the Woman's College of the University in Greensboro, consisting of 32 girls and accompanied by three members of the faculty, visited the University medical school Thursday to attend a demonstration of the anatomy of the thorax and abdomen in the anatomical laboratory.

Dr. C. S. Mangum, dean of the school delivered the lecture while members of the first year medical class demonstrated the structures on the cadavers.

Visitors Are Welcome

Dr. Mangum stated yesterday that the school is always glad to make its facilities available in this way to the students of the other divisions of the University.

The class from the Woman's College has been visiting the University anatomy department every spring for the past five years.

Ten Take Temperature

The following students were confined to the University infirmary yesterday: J. R. Boyd, Walter Buffey, H. G. Conner, Jr., William Graham, M. Hoggard, Kathleen Krahenbuhl, R. D. McMillan, C. H. Thurman, B. L. Trubnick, and Ben Wyche.
