

FURTHER PAVING FOR THE STREETS OF CHAPEL HILL

Tarvia Process to Be Completed Soon for Pittsboro and Rosemary Streets; Preliminaries Finished.

FRANKLIN TO BE WIDENED

Between the work of the CWA and that of the PWA, Chapel is soon to present an almost unbroken layout of hard-surfaced streets.

With the aid of funds from the government administered through the CWA, Pittsboro street, four blocks on Rosemary street, and several streets between Rosemary and Franklin are now being treated with Tarvia.

The final coating of rock has been placed on the greater part of the area to be covered on Rosemary, and the final section should be completed within a week; the state of the weather will determine that. Preliminary operations have been finished.

To Widen Franklin

The widening of the concrete surface of Franklin street from the President's house to the city limits on Stroud hill has been announced as a part of the spring schedule of the state highway commission. The road will be concrete from curb to curb.

The project is one of those financed by the Federal government under the emergency legislation of last year, and it must be approved by the Public Works administration before the contract can be let. Work is expected to be begun about the middle of April.

The lowest bid for the work, $14,372, has been submitted by J. S. Bowers of Whiteville.

"Roman Scandals," Eddie Cantor's latest laugh-bag, will be shown at the Carolina theatre today. Appearing with Cantor are Ruth Etting, David Manners, and Gloria Stuart.

The action of the picture takes place against a background of magnificent scenery, made to resemble buildings of ancient Rome. Prominent in the movie are the Goldwyn Girls.

"Death Takes a Holiday," adapted from the famous stage play of the same name, will be offered for tomorrow's showing. The cast is headed by Frederic March, star of the recent "Design for Living," and "All of Me."

Also in the cast of "Death Takes a Holiday" are Evelyn Venable, Sir Guy Standing, the noted English actor, and Kent Taylor.

Robert Montgomery, star of "Fugitive Lovers," which played here recently, appears Friday in the "Mystery of Mr. X," which was taken from a Crime club story. In the supporting cast are Lewis Stone and Elizabeth Allan, import from the English stage.

Saturday Jimmy Durante, with a "schnozzle" that has now become as famous as that of Cyrano de Bergerac, appears in "Palooka."

LOCAL WRITERS' BOOKS DISPLAYED

Works Written by Faculty Members During Period from 1925 To 1934 Included in Exhibit in Library Lobby.

A collection of books written by members of the University faculty during the period 1925-34 has been placed on display in the lobby of the library.

A variety of fields of knowledge is covered in the exhibit, although it contains only a part of the publications written by the faculty.

Periodical articles, pamphlets, bulletins, and monographs appearing in such a series as the James Sprunt Historical Studies have not been included, according to R. B. Downs, librarian, because if this were done, the list would require a separate volume in itself. Thus there is omitted the bulk of the scientific writings from the departments of botany, chemistry, geology, mathematics, medicine, pharmacy, physics, and zoology, since most of the contributions in these fields, as well as those of members of other departments, appear only in periodicals.

In the list prepared by the library the books are arranged by department or subject, alphabetically by author, then chronologically by work. There are on the list 176 books written by 81 men and women connected with the University either for the whole or for a part of the ten-year period.

Musicians Expected At Dogwood Festival

Among the visiting musicians expected to be here for the Dogwood Festival April 14 are Charles G. Vardell, Jr., and James C. Pfohl, directors of music at Salem College and Davidson, respectively. Mr. Pfohl appeared at the University during the early part of the past quarter.

The Festival committee has announced that in the event of inclement weather, the entire program of the event will be transferred to the Playmakers theatre.

The deadline for entries in the poetry contest has been set as April 9. Pictures for the photograph contest are due April 12. Chairmen of these contests are Mrs. Phillips Russell (poetry), and Miss Josie Pritchard (photographs).

Profit-taking days are frequent in the market, indicating speculators are following the poet's advice to "gather ye rosebuds while ye may."—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Innards Removed From Person Hall

Only the Walls Remain; New Interior to Be Constructed.

Work on the remodeling of Person hall into a University art gallery progressed rapidly during the holidays. The structure has been completely devastated, and only the walls remain standing.

Workmen are now busy furnishing the interior of the building with the necessary rooms and offices for the museum. A roof of slate and steel will be made, and new windows and proper skylights are to be installed.

The remodeling of the building is one of the CWA projects for the University. The work is not financed entirely by the government, however; something over half of the necessary sum is to be raised by contributions from friends of the University.

Mrs. Katherine Pendleton Arrington of Warrenton is leading the campaign for funds to supplement the allotment from the government.

Alfred Williams Co. Now In New Location

Alfred Williams and company, local office supply store, has moved to the building formerly occupied by Randolph-McDonald clothing company. Frederick M. Prouty of Chapel Hill will act as manager for the establishment.

The work of changing location was completed during the holidays, and the store is now prepared to serve both students and townspeople.

Alfred Williams will offer a complete line of office supplies and incidentals for college work. A full assortment of various types of stationery is now on display. Repair service on all makes of typewriters is also available.
