

'SOCIAL FORCES' PUBLISHED HERE BY SOCIOLOGISTS

Howard W. Odum's Quarterly Journal Contains Articles by Five Professors on Topics of Regionalism, Marriage and Social Planning.

GROVES IS CONTRIBUTOR

The March issue of "Social Forces," quarterly sociological journal of which Dr. Howard W. Odum of the University department of sociology is the editor, contains several articles by members of the University faculty.

Dr. Rupert B. Vance of the Institute for Research in Social Science has an article entitled "What of Submarginal Areas in Regional Planning." In speaking of the problem offered by these areas he presents an examination of the concept of submarginal lands, a review of the methods of locating submarginal areas, a classification, and an examination of the goals of planning for such areas.

Tennessee Project

An article by Dr. T. J. Woofter appears on "The Tennessee Valley Regional Plan." Woofter, who is head of social science research under the Tennessee Valley Authority, tells how the Authority is working on engineering plans, agricultural plans, and social plans with the hope that they may in some measure be co-ordinated.

Dr. Howard W. Odum, head of the southern regional study, in an article "Regionalism vs. Sectionalism in the South's Place in the National Economy" points to certain fundamental distinctions between sectionalism and the developing cultural and administrative regionalism of the United States which have a particular bearing upon the southern regions in the national economy. He gives a thorough discussion of the problems thus presented.

"The Marriage Panacea"

The journal also contains an article by Dr. Ernest R. Groves treating the subject of "The Marriage Panacea." He speaks of this cure-all as sex technique. In telling of problems offered by the hazards of marriage and parenthood, he brings out the fact that sex technique has its place in the marriage preparation program but that it is not and cannot become the guaranty of matrimonial success for modern men and women.

Bibliography

Dr. Lee M. Brooks and his wife, Evelyn C. Brooks, have prepared a bibliography which is included in this issue of the periodical of books and magazine articles pertaining to social planning. It appears under the title of "A Decade of 'Planning' Literature" and is accompanied by a preliminary article presenting a broad review of the material contained in the bibliography. This list of titles is the second which Dr. and Mrs. Brooks have published; the two lists together contain 1598 titles each of which is briefly annotated.

Editorial Board to Meet

There will be a meeting of the editorial board of the DAILY TAR HEEL at 7:00 o'clock tonight in Graham Memorial. All members should be present.

HARTFORD SPEAKS TO A. S. M. E. TODAY

Will Discuss Work and Future Plans of Organization.

The assistant secretary of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers, Ernest Hartford of New York, will speak to all student members of the local chapter this afternoon at 2:00 o'clock in room 216 of Phillips hall.

Hartford has been attending the third annual southern student conference of the society at Atlanta and is expected to discuss the work and future plans of this organization.

All members are urged to be present at this meeting.

BOOK BY SHARPE TO BE PUBLISHED

Dr. Sharpe's Work, "The Real War of the Theatre," Is Sympathetic Treatment of Development of Elizabethan Stage.

A new book by Dr. R. B. Sharpe of the English department, "The Real War of the Theatres," will be published this fall by the Modern Language Association of America as one of its monograph series.

The book, the first to treat the subject so systematically, will be a chronological survey of the theatrical events of the last decade of the Elizabethan reign, containing a season-by-season account of the happenings of the stage and their complex inter-relationships with those in the nation.

Shakespearean Rivalry

The author intends the book to be a study of the rivalry between Shakespeare's company and the other theatrical companies and their dramatists for the supremacy of the London stage.

Special attention will be given to the literary results of this competition in the molding of the plays of the period to advance the interests of the participating companies. The politics of the patrons also will be shown to be involved.

An effort will be made to define, though not too dogmatically, Shakespeare's political attitude as a playwright as distinct from his opinions on mankind.

"Y" COUNCIL OFFICERS TO MEET THIS MORNING

Officers of the freshman friendship council and chairmen of the various committees will meet this morning at 10:30 o'clock in Harry F. Comer's office in the Y. M. C. A. building to draw up plans for the spring quarter.

The group will plan a meeting for next Monday, work on formation of a deputation team, and make arrangements for the work the council is to perform here in connection with high school week.

Band Practice Tonight

The music department announced yesterday that band practice for the spring quarter begins tonight at 7:00 o'clock. Because of several public engagements for the quarter it is very important that there be a full attendance.

Grail Meeting Tonight

The order of the Grail will meet tonight at 10:00 o'clock in the Grail room of Graham Memorial.

WINTHROP DURFEE

FORNEY RANKIN

Pictured here are members of two debating teams of the University which employed the holidays for trips to meet northern and southern groups. Edwin S. Lanier and Donald R. Seawell, both of Chapel Hill and William R. Eddleman of Gastonia wended their way northward, while Phillips Russell of Asheville, Winthrop C. Durfee of Boston, and Forney A. Rankin of Belmont took the southern swing.

PLAYERS ENTER FOLK-ART FETE

Playmakers Accept Invitation to Produce Original Dramas for National Folk Festival During May 1 and 2 in St. Louis.

Professor Frederick H. Koch, director of the Carolina Playmakers, announced yesterday that the organization has accepted an invitation to be present at the National Folk Festival to be held May 1 and 2 in St. Louis, Missouri.

A group of folk-plays, taken from those written by members of the Playmakers, will be presented in two performances.

The festival is being held this year in connection with the dedication of a new municipal auditorium and community center in St. Louis. The objective of the festival as well as of the center is to promote folk music, dances, plays, arts, and crafts. Many unique groups will appear on the program.

Spanish Plays

Spanish actors from New Mexico will present "Los Pastores," an old Spanish play handed down for 400 years by word of mouth. Indians from Oklahoma will appear in dances of their tribal rituals. Sea chanteys will be sung by sailors, and ballads will be presented by cowboys from Arizona.

Maurice Weil, president of the National Folk Festival, in urging that the Carolina Playmakers attend the gathering, stated that this organization holds a pre-eminent position in its field, and that it would be one of the outstanding features of the festival should it accept his invitation.

Educator Visits Here

Dr. Charles S. Johnson, professor of sociology at Fisk University and author of some of the best material on the Negro in American life, stopped in Chapel Hill yesterday for conferences with several members of the sociology faculty and the Institute for Research in Social Science.

GIRLS WILL STAR IN CUP DEBATES

Girls Outnumber Boys on Triangular Debate Teams from 195 State High Schools, Finals for Aycock Cup to Be Here.

Girls will outnumber boys as contestants in the 22nd annual series of triangular debates to be conducted throughout the state under the auspices of the high school debating union, according to E. R. Rankin, secretary.

Statistics just drawn up show that 195 high schools, out of the total 200 participating schools, will be represented by 424 girls and 356 boys.

The query for discussion is: Resolved: That the United States should adopt the essential features of the British system of radio control and operation.

Contest Here April 12-13

The schools which win both debates in tomorrow's preliminary contests will send teams here April 12 and 13 to take part in competition for the Aycock cup, donated by the debaters of the University.

The 200 member schools of the union have been grouped into a total of 72 triangles or pairs for the state-wide contests.

Eighty-one schools will be represented by teams of two boys and two girls; 44 by teams of three girls and one boy; 25 by teams of four girls; 30 by teams of three boys and one girl; and 15 by teams of four boys.

Stamp Club to Meet

The Chapel Hill Stamp club will meet tonight at 7:30 o'clock in 112 New East. J. S. Davenport will speak on "The Ten Most Beautiful Commemorative Stamps."

Frosh Meet Friday

There will be a meeting of the freshman class Friday morning at 10:30 o'clock in Memorial hall. The proposed freshman dance will be discussed.

Y WILL PRESENT LAST DEVOTIONAL

Freshman Attendance Required At First Spring Chapel.

Devotional services, sponsored by the University Y. M. C. A., will make up the freshman assembly program tomorrow morning at 10:30 o'clock in Memorial hall, it was announced yesterday by J. D. Winslow, "Y" secretary.

This program will bring to a close the series of worship services the Y. M. C. A. has been sponsoring daily in Memorial hall during the Lent season.

The convocation will be the first one of the spring quarter and attendance will be checked as usual.

SECOND ENGINEER ISSUE RELEASED

Two New Features by Walter King and Whoosis Appear in Carolina Engineer; Also Prize-Winning Technical Article.

The second of the three yearly issues of The Carolina Engineer, professional journal of the school of engineering, is now available to all students registered in that school.

This number carries three leading articles written by students. The first, "Public Utility Regulation in Southern States" by W. L. Ridenhour, electrical senior, is the same that won third prize of student papers at the Regional Southeastern conference of the A. I. E. E. at State College last January.

On Local Reservoir

In "The Construction of the Chapel Hill Reservoir" F. E. Culbern, senior in civil engineering, gives a short history of various ways that Chapel Hill has been supplied with water. He ends with a rather detailed account of the building of the present reservoir.

The last article written by R. M. Dailey on "Blasting in Highway Construction" deals with the means and difficulties in laying road-beds for the more important highways.

Two new features appear in this issue. "Here and There in Engineering" as written by Walter King, Jr., is mainly a series of short incidents that pertain more or less to the human side of engineering. "Philandering Around Phillips" written by the anonymous Whoosis, friend of the famous, concerns the gossip in and around the engineering building.

ENGINEERING STUDENT AWARDED $50 PRIZE

Paul R. Hayes, senior in the mechanical department of the school of engineering, Tuesday won first prize of $50 for a technical paper reciting results of "an investigation of the failure of cast iron pistons in an automobile engine" in a competition at the southern student conference of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers. Hayes is expected to return to the campus today.

Buccaneers to Meet

All members of the art, business, and editorial staffs of the Buccaneer will meet this afternoon at 4:00 o'clock in front of Graham Memorial for the Yackety Yack picture.

UNIVERSITY CLUB WILL SELECT NEW MEMBERS TONIGHT

Candidate Committee to Report Results of Session Last Night to Consider Suggested Members; May Make Final Decisions at Next Meeting.

SOCIALS ARE SUCCESSFUL

The University club convenes tonight in Graham Memorial at 7:00 o'clock for its first meeting of the spring quarter.

At this meeting candidates for membership in the club next year will be selected. The candidate committee met last night to discuss new members, and will make its report tonight.

Each member is requested to bring the name of a member of his dormitory or fraternity, whom he would like to recommend to the club. Final selections of members may not be completed until next week.

Socials Successful

During the holidays the efforts of the University club met with even more success than had been anticipated. A final check-up has not been completed as to the success of the socials sponsored by club members in their home towns, but the results so far have been gratifying.

Asheville is reported to have had a very successful program with an attendance of about 115 persons.

At Winston-Salem, Coach Carl Snively spoke to a group of about 125 alumni and high school students. New Bern had a large turnout and a worth while program. Rocky Mount, Lexington, and Fayetteville also reported successful programs.

Students from the University and from the high schools gave talks on most of the programs, and refreshments were served at many of the towns.

Part of the towns that were unable to sponsor a program at this time have made plans for the future. In Greensboro the Alumni association has promised a barbecue to prospective students and University men at the end of the school year.

A final report on the project is expected tomorrow, but it is deemed worth while by the results so far.

WILEY B. SANDERS RETURNS TO HILL FROM CONFERENCE

Meeting Held to Discuss Problem of Juvenile Delinquency.

Dr. Wiley B. Sanders of the school of public administration returned to Chapel Hill yesterday from a regional conference on juvenile delinquency held in Atlanta Monday and Tuesday.

The conference was primarily for the purpose of working out a joint program between the state and federal governments for the handling of cases of children who violate federal laws.

Some of the primary decisions of the conference were that every state department of public welfare should have some qualified person to supervise juvenile courts throughout the state, and that the state department should assume the responsibility of improving the juvenile court situation, of collecting juvenile court statistics, and of certifying the qualifications of persons for juvenile court work.
