

DEMOCRATS WILL MEET IN RALEIGH FOR CELEBRATION

Hordes of Young Democrats to Assemble for Jackson Day Festivities in War Memorial Auditorium in Raleigh Today; Will Have Prominent Speakers.

ABOUT 1,000 WILL ATTEND

Approximately 1,000 Democrats are expected to gather in Raleigh today for the Jackson Day celebration sponsored by the Young Democratic clubs of North Carolina. The affair will take place at the War Memorial auditorium.

A large number of persons from Chapel Hill is expected to attend the rally. The sale of approximately 600 tickets here has been reported.

Three events are scheduled for the program: a reception at 6:00 o'clock dinner at 8:00 o'clock, and a dance immediately after the dinner. Tickets at one dollar cover the entire program.

Clark to Speak

Senator Bennett Champ Clark of Missouri will appear as principal speaker of the evening; others who will make talks are Governor J. C. B. Ehringhaus, Jesiah William Bailey, senior senator from this state, and J. Wallace Winborne, chairman of the State Democratic party.

The Young Democratic clubs of the state will be represented by Ed Hudgins, one-time president of the student body and Rhodes scholar from the University.

A feature of the entertainment program at the dinner will be a series of dance numbers presented by Phoebe Barr's University dance group. "The Battle Hymn of the Republic" and other numbers fitting to the event will be given.

Significant Politics

In the past few years, the Jackson Day dinners have been sponsored by the executive committee of the State Democratic party; the celebrations have been recognized as significant affairs in the current politics of North Carolina.

This year, in recognition of the work of the Young Democratic clubs in interesting young people in political goings-on, the official organization of the state party turned over the sponsorship of the celebration to the Young Democrats.

Official Party Meeting

Although the program is being staged by the younger members of the party, the rally will be an official meeting of Democrats.

The program has been arranged for the interest of Young Democrats. The reception will be conducted from 6:00 to 8:00 o'clock, at which time the dinner will begin, and dancing will start at 10:00 o'clock. The affair will be informal.

It is hoped by the official party organization that through the rally young citizens of North Carolina will take the opportunity to become acquainted with leaders in state affairs.

Tickets for the celebration may be secured in Raleigh.

Dr. Manning at Meeting

Dr. I. H. Manning of the medical school attended a meeting of the fifth district medical society in Winston-Salem Tuesday afternoon and night.

TAR HEEL TOPICS SENT TO PARENTS

March Issue Features Numerous Outside Activities on Campus Setting Forth Advantages of Student Participation.

Setting forth the numerous outside activities available to students at the University, the March issue of Tar Heel Topics, written largely by campus leaders, was distributed to parents of students yesterday.

"The entire student body is the supreme authority in student government," states Harper Barnes, president of the University student body, in an article stressing the way the honor system is an incentive to character building.

Emphasizing the training afforded and requirements necessary for membership in the four campus publications, the paper brings out the organization and work of the DAILY TAR HEEL, Yackety Yack, Carolina Magazine, and Buccaneer. The work of the University club during the past year and the program carried on by the Y. M. C. A. is given prominence.

Scholarship Story

An announcement concerning scholarships to the University is carried. A feature gives the history of the University, bringing out the fact that it is the oldest state University in the country.

On the back of the sheet articles appear on the Carolina Playmakers, the literary societies, and the coming high school contests. An editorial by Editor J. Maryon Saunders tells of the advantages of extra-curricular activities at the University.

Y COUNCIL PLANS DEPUTATION TRIP

Makes Arrangements Also for Meeting Monday When Final Preparations Will Be Made for High School Week Activities.

Making arrangements for the regular meeting next Monday and for a deputation team which will be sent out this spring, officers and advisers of the Freshman Friendship council met yesterday in the Y. M. C. A.

The entire program next Monday will be devoted to training members of the group in the part they are to play here during high school week, and all freshman "Y" men are urged to be present.

Rankin to Speak

E. R. Rankin of the extension division who is in charge of high school week affairs will speak briefly before the organization.

The Freshman Friendship council will be responsible for securing rooms for approximately 250 boys who will be here for the debating and other competitive events. The visiting girls will be placed in rooms in town directly by extension officials.

Next week after the convocation on Monday, members of the freshman "Y" group will canvass the campus and find extra rooms where visiting individuals may be stationed.

During high school week members of the council will maintain

Virgil Weathers, Senior Class President, Announces Meeting for Tuesday or Wednesday; Each Class to Contribute $700 for Annual Social Affair.

WILL SELECT ORCHESTRA

Although a definite date for the annual Junior-Senior dance set has not been set, there will be a joint meeting of the two upper classes either Tuesday or Wednesday to discuss plans for the affair, it was announced yesterday afternoon by Virgil Weathers, president of the senior class.

The purpose of the meeting will be to make all arrangements for the spring social event, including the selection of an orchestra. Earlier in the year the total expenditures for the set were limited to $1,400 when the classes voted that each contribute $700 for the dances. Budgets were approved accordingly.

Kemp Might Play

A movement has been underway recently to obtain Hal Kemp, former Carolina maestro, to play for the dances, thus increasing the costs. Kemp's appearance will cost the classes $1,600, necessitating an extra charge to members of both classes who wish to attend.

Last year there was considerable difficulty and disagreement aroused through an attempt to raise the amount of money to be expended on the junior-senior affair. The ar-

Group Continues Session At Duke

The conference on public documents, sponsored by the University, the University of Virginia, and Duke University, got underway yesterday with a morning and afternoon session ended by an informal dinner and roundtable discussion at the Carolina Inn. The second part of the conference will be a session this morning at Duke University.

Yesterday morning R. B. House, executive secretary of the University and former secretary of the North Carolina Historical society, addressed the conference. S. H. Hobbs, University professor of rural-social economics, made an address at the same session on the subject of the use of documentary material in his field.

Professors Speak

In the afternoon Dr. A. F. Kuhlman, associate director of the University of Chicago libraries and chairman of the American library association's public documents committee, Dr. J. G. de R. Hamilton, director of the Southern Historical collection at the University, and Dr. H. W. Odum, director of the institute for research in social science at the University spoke.

The speakers today at Duke University will be: Dr. J. Fred Ripley, professor of history at Duke University, Dr. A. R. Newsome, secretary of the North Carolina historical committee, Dr. W. K. Boyd, director of the Duke University library, and possibly Dr. Clarence Poe, the editor and author, will speak.

There will be a luncheon at the Duke University union, and possibly an afternoon session, depending on the amount of unfinished business to be transacted.

Old Nassau Favors Blue Eagle Tonight

Forney A. Rankin and Ben C. Proctor will compose a debate team representing the University to meet Princeton University's declaimers at Gerrard hall tonight at 7:30 o'clock on the question of the NRA.

E. A. Gullion of Hawaiian Islands and E. F. Pritchard of Virginia will represent Old Nassau in the intercollegiate non-decision affair. They arrived in Chapel Hill yesterday afternoon.

Clever advertisements by the debate council's witty Professor W. A. Olsen have announced the debate on the campus for several days. A capacity crowd is expected.

Tulane University sent a team here Monday night to engage in a similar debate. Carolina upheld the affirmative of the question favoring the NRA. In tonight's encounter Princeton will argue for the Blue Eagle.

LAWRENCE TALKS AT GOOD FRIDAY FROSH ASSEMBLY

Preacher Delivers Sermon on "Ignorance" Yesterday.

Good Friday services in freshman chapel yesterday morning were in charge of the Reverend A. H. Lawrence, who delivered a short sermon on "Ignorance."

The text of the sermon was taken from the Gospel of Christ, which took place on the day that is now known as Good Friday. Reverend Lawrence declared that this act was done through the sheer ignorance on the part of the persons who had Christ crucified.

"The World War, probably the greatest of the catastrophes that has ever taken place in the world, was caused through ignorance of the actual acts that brought on the war," he said. The speaker also urged the students to take care to cultivate the soul as well as the body and mind.

Although it had been previously announced, no discussion of the forthcoming freshman-sophomore dance was held.

Extension Student From Wisconsin To Have Short Stories Published

Minister Will Bring Out Volume Containing Tales Submitted to Dr. Raymond Adams for Credit for Correspondence Course; Stories Treat Norwegian Pioneers in America.

Occupation—Lutheran minister. Residence—Madison, Wisconsin. In 1932, Erling Ylvisaker, ignoring the excellent extension department in his own state, enrolled in the University of North Carolina as a correspondence student. The course was one in short story writing conducted by Dr. Raymond Adams.

The Norwegian minister's first efforts were not unusual. His routine exercises were good, but had no great promise. Then his short stories were turned in to Dr. Adams. They were sketches that he had gleaned from his Norwegian friends—tales of the early pioneer days, the customs of the old people, and the tendencies of the younger generation. Dr. Adams immediately recognized the excellence and value of these sketches and suggested to Ylvisaker that he should arrange them in an order for publication.

Now, two years later, the

CASTS SELECTED FOR FOLK PLAYS

Tentative Listing for Three One-Act Plays to Be Produced by Playmakers at St. Louis Festival Are Chosen.

Tentative casts for three plays to be presented by the Carolina Playmakers at the National Folk Festival in St. Louis May 1 and 2 have been chosen and rehearsals will start soon.

"Job's Kinfolks," by Loretto Carroll Bailey, will be presented with the authoress playing the part of Kizzie. The remainder of the cast is: Kate, Muriel Wolfe; Katherine, Nan Norman; Estelle, Ora Mae Davis; Carl, Alton Williams.

Stout's Play Cast

Wilber Stout's "In Dixon's Kitchen" has the following cast: Hiram, Alton Williams; Ma, Muriel Wolfe; Annie Lee, Nan Norman; Gil, Vermont Royster; Jack, Billy Koch; Lem, Carl Thompson.

"Quare Medicine," written by Paul Green for the opening of the Playmakers theatre in 1925, will conclude the program. The cast is as follows: Old Man Jernigan, Bob Proctor; Henry, Carl Thompson; Mattie, Ora Mae Davis; Dr. Immanuel, Harry Davis.

The Playmaker staff, the actors comprising the casts of these plays, and a small technical staff will make the trip. It is interesting to note that Maurice Weil, president of the festival, personally guaranteed the Playmakers a thousand dollars to appear. This is the only organization which will be paid for its appearance on the program.

Nothin' Doin'

The city editor of the paper for today was greatly handicapped in the display of his journalistic versatility yesterday afternoon when it was authentically reported that no students were confined in the University infirmary. He was treated at said infirmary late last night for under-exertion of cranular mass.

STATE DRAMATIC GROUPS TO MEET HERE NEXT WEEK

Finals in 11th Annual Festival And Dramatic Tournament of North Carolina Dramatic Association at Chapel Hill April 5, 6, and 7.

MRS. FUSSLER IS DIRECTOR

More than 40 dramatic organizations from all parts of the state, survivors in preliminary statewide competition, will meet at Chapel Hill next week, April 5, 6, and 7, for participation in the finals of the 11th annual festival and dramatic tournament of the North Carolina Dramatic association.

In competitive productions at the festival are entered 12 county high schools, six city high schools, four junior colleges, four senior colleges, and seven little theatres. Preliminaries for a number of schools so distantly located as to warrant meeting theretofore inadvisable will take place during Thursday and Friday mornings of the festival.

Great Performance

On Friday morning, as a special feature an organization from the Male High School of Louisville, Ky., under the direction of Robert W. Wunsch, long-time worker of the association, will present a guest performance of "Judges Lynch," by J. W. Rogers, Jr.

On Wednesday evening, April 4, at 8:00 o'clock, three Negro colleges, St. Augustine of Raleigh; Bennett College of Greensboro; and Shaw University of Raleigh, will give guest performances. These performances are on the evening preceding the opening of the festival proper and are not in competition.

According to the secretary of the association, Mrs. Irene H. Fussler, under whose direction the tournament is progressing, there will be drama of all types.

Season tickets issued at one dollar for all attractions will be on sale at Alfred Williams and at the Playmaker theatre Tuesday. Admission to individual performances is fifty cents at night and twenty-five in the afternoon.

Search Continues

No information was received yesterday by officials conducting the search for George H. Malone, University commerce senior, who disappeared Wednesday night, March 21.

A private detective who has been engaged to locate Malone had nothing to report. He is following several clues which may prove effective in the search.

Malone was last seen on the day of his disappearance on Franklin street about 11:00 o'clock in the morning. No reason has been advanced for his departure although several possibilities have been uncovered.

He was well known on the University campus and active in extra-curricular activities, formerly serving as a member of the staff of the DAILY TAR HEEL.

Dr. Mangum Ill

Dr. C. S. Mangum, dean of the medical school, has been confined to Dr. McPherson's hospital in Durham for the past several days with ear trouble. He will return to Chapel Hill at an early date.
