

ALBRIGHT MAKES ANNUAL STUDENT UNION STATEMENT

December Report Shows Profit of $124 for Six Preceding Months; Union Has Twice Made Loans to German Club and Entertainment Committee.

PRESENT NEEDS LISTED

Discussing finances, equipment, management and concessions, Mayne Albright, manager of Graham Memorial, yesterday gave his yearly report on the memorial to the DAILY TAR HEEL for publication.

The union building, Albright began, having formally opened its doors at the freshman reception in September, 1931, has been open every day since, greatly influencing every student organization on the campus.

The first part of the report, dealing with the use of the union building, contained a list of the activities assigned space for their exclusive use, and made the statement that the activities have no vested rights (that is, the board reserves the privilege to make any changes in the allotment of space or the use thereof), that no rent is charged, and that no alterations may be made without permission.

December Statement

In explaining the finances, the December statement was used and showed that, during the preceding period of six months, $3,298.16 had been received in fees and concessions, and $2,867.46 spent for general expenses and maintenance, leaving a net profit of $124.08 and balance or net worth of $3,892.56.

It was also stated that the Union has twice made loans to the German club which have been repaid in full with six per cent. interest. Loans at the same rate and totalling $700 have also been made to the entertainment committee and will mature during the next scholastic quarter.

Discussing present needs of the memorial, the report stated that the following could well be used: a new grand piano for the lounge; drapes, lights, and furniture for the lobby on the

Bradshaw Reports Only Negative Results In Search For Missing University Senior

Only negative results have been thus far obtained in the search for George Malone, missing University senior, it was reported yesterday by Dean of Students Francis F. Bradshaw.

Several clues have been followed up by the dean's office in co-operation with the special agent secured by the boy's parents. The detective is taking the initiative in the search proceedings, and the office is working with him in following trails.

Malone was reported to have registered at State College in Raleigh, but, according to Dean Bradshaw, telephonic communication with the dean at State revealed that Malone was not enrolled at the Raleigh institution in his own name. A further check-up to determine whether or not he is there under an assumed name will be made.

Suicide Not Intention

Board To Consider Barring Lawyers, Graduates From Student Presidency

A proposal that professional and graduate students be made ineligible for the student body presidency heads a list of four questions scheduled for discussion tomorrow by the Administrative Board of the Division of Student Welfare.

The board will meet at luncheon in Graham Memorial at 1:00 o'clock, and the gathering will adjourn at 2:30 o'clock.

The proposals for discussion follow:

1. A recommendation made by the dean of the University law school that students in the professional schools and the graduate school be made ineligible for the presidency of the student body on the ground of conflict with the requirements of their academic work in those schools.

2. A proposal to inaugurate an experiment in drivers' licenses among students of the University. The North Carolina Automobile club has been asked to submit specifications, but it is planned to add to such specifications academic requirements as well as examination of the automobile in question, so that not only may there be performed here an experiment that may be of interest to the state before the next legislative session, but also in order that student life, both physical and academic, may be safeguarded.

3. A suggestion that the standards of fraternity life, formulated by the National Interfraternity conference, be used as a basis for rating fraternities, and that the comparative rating on matters of fraternity morale as well as scholarship, be published.

4. Announcement of the workings of the Federal relief program for students here, and plans for a conference on guidance, to be sponsored here by the National Occupational conference during the last week of this month.

DOGWOOD EVENT SCHEDULE MADE

Committee Rounds Off Program for Annual Festival April 14; Special Dances and Arts and Crafts Exhibit to Feature.

For the Dogwood Festival, which is less than two weeks off, on April 14, plans have taken definite shape. There will be a morning program in the Forest theatre and an afternoon one confined to the Playmakers theatre. In case of bad weather the entire program will be given in the theatre.

Among the special attractions will be a team of eight couples from Rose Hill, in the heart of the strawberry country, who will give exhibitions of fancy steps in square dancing. They will be led by H. G. Ward, Jr., a University graduate. Other dances will be directed by Richard Chase.

Western Representatives

Representing the western part of the state, two celebrated mountain musicians will be here in the shape of Henry Whitter and Worth Taylor. The latter is a boy of 16 who is said to have the reputation of being able to "snatch a banjo bald-headed."

Whitter is the author of the famous ballad, "The Wreck of No. 97," to which he several years ago established his rights after a lawsuit with a rival from Virginia.

The arts and crafts exhibits, which drew such crowds last year, will again be housed in Graham Memorial, while artists of the state will be represented by an exhibition in Hill music hall. These attractions will be open on April 13.

Juniors And Seniors Will Meet Jointly Tuesday To Discuss Plans For Dance Set

The joint meeting of the junior and senior classes for discussion of the annual dance set sponsored by these two classes has been set for 7:00 o'clock Tuesday night in Memorial hall, it was announced yesterday by Charles Woollen, dance chairman of the senior class.

It is especially necessary according to the statement, that every member of both classes who is interested in the dances be present since the question in discussion is of utmost importance to all members of the classes.

The combined junior-senior dance committee has been carrying on negotiations with dance orchestras and has announced that there is a choice between two nationally known dance orchestras.

Freddy Martin and his Mariners, who have played in Atlantic City and New York and now play Sunday nights over the radio with the Marx Brothers, can be engaged to furnish the music without exceeding the budget which was voted by the two classes.

Hal Kemp, Carolina graduate who with his orchestra has been furnishing the music at the Black Hawk restaurant in Chi-

Yale Glee Club Formed In 1813

Group to Sing Here Wednesday Under Direction of Marshall Bartholomew.

The Yale Glee club, which will appear here Wednesday under the direction of Marshall Bartholomew, celebrates its one hundred and twenty-first birthday this year.

The club was organized by the members of the Junior class in 1813, and was called the Yale Musical society, with a limit of twelve men. The popularity of campus singing was growing at the time, and this club soon found that it had a definite place in undergraduate life.

In 1850, the Beethoven Society, with a membership of 25 men, supplanted the first club, and carried on the work of that organization along more extensive and ambitious lines. In 1866 the name was changed to the Yale University Glee club.

Trips Abroad Are Success

The most significant accomplishment of the club has been the overwhelming success of its European trips. Invading the music centers of six European countries and England in 1928, for the first time, the club received the approval of the most critical audience in the world. Again in 1932 the club made a second tour of Europe. The reputation of the club has been greatly increased by the large amount of favorable publicity which these trips brought forth.

In 1930 the Yale Glee club inaugurated the custom of taking an Easter trip to Bermuda and so popular has this practice become that last year four college glee clubs spent their spring vacation at this resort.

set and is prepared to come at a more reasonable price than he usually charges. However, engaging him, as is the hope of many dance-goers, will necessitate an extra charge of 75 cents for each member of the two classes.

It will be left to the students attending the meeting Tuesday night to decide which arrangement will be made effective. It is the opinion of the dance committee that for dance-goers Hal Kemp would be the better man to engage, although the extra cost might be prohibitive for some of the students.

To avoid any complications and criticism such as arose last year over a similar situation, the officials of the two classes emphasize the importance of every interested junior and senior being present. Arrangements must be completed soon and the meeting Tuesday night in Memorial hall will decide what moves will be taken.

Freddy Martin plays this evening over the NBC system with the Marx Brothers' program and Hal Kemp broadcasts from WGN Chicago soon after midnight and both of these may be heard to judge their merits.

NO ASSEMBLY TOMORROW

There will be no freshman assembly tomorrow morning but a meeting will be called sometime later in the week, it was announced yesterday by James Williams, assistant dean of students.

"BOSS" HILL PATRONS

Students who have articles of clothing at "Boss" Hill's tailoring management on Rosemary street are requested to come to his home and receive them. Due to serious illness, "Boss" has temporarily closed his business.

OFFICIAL TO GIVE PROPOSED STATE TAX PROVISIONS

State Revenue Commissioner Will Discuss Taxation Under Proposed North Carolina Constitution in Bingham Auditorium at 7:30 O'clock Tonight.

TO AID CLUB'S RECOVERY

A. J. Maxwell, state revenue commissioner, will discuss "The Taxation Provisions of the proposed North Carolina Constitution" tomorrow evening at 7:30 o'clock in the auditorium of Bingham hall under the joint auspices of the North Carolina club and the law school.

A member of the commission which wrote the new constitution, Mr. Maxwell had a considerable part in the drafting of the article on taxation, debt limitations, and finance. Only minor changes in this article were made by the General Assembly of 1933 in submitting this constitution to the voters.

At the suggestion of Governor J. C. B. Ehringhaus in his mid-winter address here, the North Carolina club as a major part of its study of state government is conducting a survey of the proposed new constitution. Mr. Maxwell's address tomorrow and the address of Judge John J. Parker two weeks ago were in accordance with this program.

Article by Dean

The interest of the University law school in the basic law for the state is manifested in an article by Dean M. T. Van Hecke which will appear in the April issue of the North Carolina Law Review entitled "A New Constitution for North Carolina."

This article, which will come from the press tomorrow, critically examines the major provisions of the new instrument, and concludes with the hope that the voters of the state will adopt it next November. This hope is based on the writer's belief that, notwithstanding particular objections to certain clauses, the instrument as a whole is a constructive step toward the improvement of state and local government in North Carolina.

DI TO INAUGURATE OFFICERS TUESDAY

The Dialectic senate will hold its first meeting of the quarter for the inauguration into the presidency of Elmer Oettinger, Tuesday night. Other senators who will assume office are: Ernest Hunt, president pro tem.; T. W. Blackwell, critic; Fred Howard, clerk; J. S. Gentry, sergeant-at-arms.

Since active co-operation of the members is necessary to carry out this plan, all senators are requested to be present Tuesday night.
