FIFTH OF SERIES ENDS DANCE SET

Formal Dance in Tin Can Brings To Close Fourth Annual May Frolics Dances.

May Frolics ended last night at 12:00 o'clock when Noble Sissle and his New York orchestra completed their engagement here for the fourth annual dances. About 200 couples participated in the series, which was held in the Tin Can with the exception of the luncheon dance at the Washington Duke hotel in Durham yesterday.

Prior to last night's affair there was an afternoon dance from 4:00 to 6:00 o'clock yesterday. No apparent decrease in the crowd was evident, even though there was a larger number than was anticipated at the opening dance Thursday afternoon.

Given by Seven Lodges

Given by seven campus fraternities, the May Frolic dances are known throughout the state as an outstanding event on the social calendar. Noble Sissle's 15-piece orchestra, which offered novelty numbers and featured two singers for the occasion, was enthusiastically received.

Last night's dance, which lasted from 9:00 until 12:00 o'clock, was distinguished from the four other dances that comprise the set by the figure, in which May Frolic sponsors, their escorts, and presidents of each of the seven fraternities took part.

The leader of the figure was T. A. Upchurch, Sigma Chi, with Miss Susan Kennedy, of Camden, S. C. The other couples, in order, were: Miss La Verne Dawson of Fort Smith, Ark., with Maurice H. Long; Miss Patte Evans of Memphis, Tenn., with Dick Lewis; Miss Hilton Roller of Fort Defiance, Va., with Bob Reynolds, president.

ERNEST R. GROVES AIDS WITH TEXT

Sociology Professor Writes Introductory Text with Ruth Gavian and A. A. Gray.

"Our Changing Social Order: An Introduction to Sociology" by Ruth Wood Gavian, A. A. Gray, and Dr. Ernest R. Groves has just been released by D. C. Heath and Company.

Miss Gavian was formerly an instructor at Sea Pines school in Brewster, Massachusetts. Gray is head of the department of social science at Berkeley high school in Berkeley, California, and Groves is research professor in the department of sociology at the University.

The book is a text to be used in senior high schools. It makes the high school course in problems more profitable by a concomitant consideration: (1) of the culture that produced them and (2) of human nature in terms of the needs of the individual. It deals with such topics as human nature, population, housing, leisure, crime, heredity, waste, poverty, political bosses, war, and education.

Vital Issues

The problems are limited to a consideration of vital issues which confront the United States today. These are constantly related to each other and to the earlier portions of the book. The authors have included much material which might be of aid in helping the individual student in his own adjustments to society.

Although Dr. Groves disclaims credit for the material included and the structure of the book, it has been largely through his efforts that its publishing has been made possible. At one time Miss Gavian, one of the authors, studied the problems which she is now presenting to the public under his tutelage.

Delegates Vote to Organize Southern Occupational Conference to Formulate Plans.

DIRECTOR SKETCHES AIMS

One of Most Successful Regional Meetings Sponsored by National Occupational Conference.

A long step forward in the promotion and development of a vocational guidance program for the southern states was taken here yesterday at the closing session of the first Southern Regional Conference on Vocational Guidance and Education when the delegates voted to organize a Southern Occupational Conference with the view to formulating a program of occupational adjustment in this section.

On motion of C. J. Hyslop, acting supervisor of education in Virginia, Dean F. F. Bradshaw, dean of students and director of the Bureau of Vocational Information at the University, was named temporary chairman of a committee to effect a southern organization and this committee in turn named Kendall Weisiger, assistant to the president of the Southern Bell Telephone company, Atlanta, chairman, and Mrs. Chase Going Woodhouse, director of the Institute of Women's Professional Relations of the Woman's College of the University, secretary.

Adopt Reports

The conference also adopted reports brought in yesterday by three groups representing secondary schools, state departments of education, and colleges and universities. The reports stressed the view that vocational guidance should be accepted as integral part of the educational program and that regular courses should be included in curricula.

Consensus of the delegates was that this conference, which was attended by more than one hundred delegates, comprising vocational guidance and personnel directors and industrial leaders, was one of the most successful regional meetings yet sponsored by the National Occupational Conference.

Speakers at the final session included Dr. Franklin J. Keller, director of the conference program, who sketched the aims of the Vocational Occupational Conference, showing how it grew from a luncheon discussion group in New York several years ago in response to an ever increasing need for a nation-wide occupational adjustment program. The conference is financed largely by the Carnegie Corporation.

The delegates were entertained last evening with a program of dances presented by Phoebe Barr's pupils in the Playmakers theatre.
