

COMMITTEE WILL OFFER 100 EXTRA BIDS FOR DANCE

Extra Bids to Junior-Senior Set Will Be Sold to Avoid Extra Levy on Upperclassmen.

TO GO ON SALE WEDNESDAY

Besides the regular bids that class members are to receive, 100 extra bids will be put on sale, according to the decision of the junior-senior dance committees at their joint meeting Thursday night.

This makes it definite that there will be no extra levy on class members, according to C. T. Woolen, Jr., chairman of the senior dance committee.

The action of the committee authorizing the sale of bids came about as a result of its efforts to finance the cost of securing amplifiers for the Tin Can, where Hal Kemp and his orchestra will play at the annual dances May 11 and 12.

Amplifiers Necessary

"With about 1,400 people on the floor," declared Woolen, "it will be impossible for everybody to hear the orchestra unless we install an amplifying system."

The sale of bids will also make it possible, he said, for third- and fourth-year men who do not pay class dues to attend the dances. Students in the pharmacy school, for example, will be given the opportunity to buy bids now that they have been put on sale.

The cost of a set will be $4. The extra bids will be available at the time that the regular bids will be given out to juniors and seniors, which will be from Wednesday to Friday of next week between the hours of 10:30 to 12:00 in the morning and 2:00 to 5:00 o'clock in the afternoon at the Y. M. C. A.

DRAPER QUARTET WILL SING HERE

Musical Presentation in Graham Memorial to Be Tomorrow At 5:00 O'clock.

The Draper Young Men's quartet composed of James Marlowe, Cecil Squires, Paul Tiller, and Irvin Squires will offer a program of quartet music in Graham Memorial tomorrow afternoon at 5:00 o'clock on the Union's spring entertainment series.

The men who make up this quartet have been singing together in the same arrangement for about five years. They have become quite popular in many parts of this state and Virginia as singers of Negro spirituals and sacred quartet numbers and recently gave a broadcast of Negro spirituals over station WDBJ in Roanoke, Virginia.

Cecil Squires is first tenor; Irvin Squires, second tenor; Paul Tiller, baritone; and James Marlowe, base.

Program

The program consists of: "Mary, Don't You Weep," "Steal Away Home," "Down by the Riverside," "Far Away in the South," "Fireside Memories," "Old Black Joe," "Juanita," "Jerusalem Morning," "Lord, I Want to be a Christian," "Hail, Jerusalem, Hail," "Hie Away Home," "Ethiopian Romanza," "The Bells of St. Mary's," "Rocked in the Cradle of the Deep."

The Fleet's In

Members of the University club will meet this morning at Everett dormitory at 10:00 o'clock to form the bulk of a group which will assemble to meet the Navy track team.

The club will also be on hand after the track meet, after supper, and before the dance in the Tin Can to show the visitors around the campus.

HONORARY ORDER ELECTS LAWYERS

Joel Adams Announced Student Editor-in-Chief of Law Review at Annual Banquet.

Three law school seniors were elected to the Order of the Coif, honorary legal society, at the annual law school banquet held last night in the Carolina Inn.

The men who won this honor, which requires a standing among the highest ten per cent in the third year class, are as follows: Hugh Lewis Lobdell, Rosedale, Miss.; Irvin Elsworth Erb, Harrisburg, Penn.; and Joe Colin Eagles, Wilson, N. C.

At the same time, Dean M. T. Van Hecke announced that Joel Barber Adams of Biltmore, N. C., will be the student editor-in-chief of the North Carolina Law Review for next year.

Board of Editors

Announcement was also made concerning the students whom the faculty has chosen to become members of the board of editors for the Review. Their names are as follows: Maurice Victor Barnhill, Jr., Rocky Mount, N. C.; William Robert Booth, Pollockville, N. C.; Joe Lee Carlton, Winston Salem.

Franklin St. Clair Clark, Fayetteville, N. C.; Franklin T. Dupree, Jr., Angier, N. C.; Thomas Horne Leath, Rockingham, N. C.; Frank Marion Parker, Asheville; and Newman Alexander Townsend, Jr., Charlotte.

The following were selected as faculty research assistants for outstanding proficiency in individual research: Joel Barber Adams, Biltmore, N. C.; Emmet Clive Willis, Jr., Southmont, N. C.; John Augustus Kleemeier, Jr., Greensboro; and Harry Woodrow McGalliard, Chapel Hill.

Co-eds Corner Celebrities

"Hey you! Are you a celebrity?"

Peaceful passers-by on Franklin street were startled to find themselves accosted by a pair of merry co-eds, who immediately broke themselves into a veritable barrage of sales talk.

"You see," they both explained at once, their words tumbling over each other, "the co-eds on the fourth floor Spencer are starting a museum for the advancement of fine arts at Chapel Hill, to fill a long felt need until Person hall is finished. We are beginning by collecting some personal effect from every celebrity on the campus. We've got a button off Ellis Fysal's shirt, a self-drawn portrait of himself playing a flute, by Lamar Stringfield, an autographed photograph of Norment Quarles, Leon Russell's tam and—"

At this point, they would gasp for breath and continue.

Van Hecke Explains Proposed State Constitution In Latest Law Review

Dean of University Law School Explains Veto Power Which Governor May Receive; Strongly Favors New Flexible Provisions To Replace Strict Taxation Specifications in State.

(Editor's Note: This is the first of two articles on North Carolina's new constitution as explained by Dean M. T. Van Hecke. Today's feature deals with the governor's veto power and taxation provisions, while tomorrow's will deal with judicial and local government changes and debt limitation clauses.)

Dean M. T. Van Hecke of the law school, one of the foremost authorities on jurisprudence in the south, gives a clear-cut explanation of proposed state constitutional changes and their relation to the old constitution in an article appearing in the North Carolina Law Review.

Dean Van Hecke's explanation comes at a particularly opportune time, since only five months remain before the citizens of the state vote to approve the new constitution in November. His is not only a very readable article, but one that is evidently intended to enlighten the people on a matter which will soon concern every citizen.

Governor's Veto

Perhaps best known of the new changes which he describes is the giving of veto power to the governor. "The last state in the Union to consider the adoption of the veto," writes Van Hecke, "North Carolina has been given an opportunity to profit by the experience in other states."

One of the major exceptions to the governor's veto power, he explains, is that he is unable to apply it to legislation that must undergo a referendum to the people. In addition to this, the veto power is circumscribed in other ways. It may be overridden by a majority vote of both houses, for instance.

Besides the veto power, the governor may recommend an amendment to a bill which he hesitates to pass on. However, a majority of members present in both houses must approve of it, else it will go back to the governor as though it were a new bill. All votes must be votes of record, he explains.

"The so-called 'pocket veto,'" declares the dean, "has no place in the scheme. . . . During the session, the governor is given five days in which to consider whether to sign or veto a bill. If at the end of that time he has done neither, the bill becomes a law automatically. After adjournment, the governor is given ten days in which to determine what to do with the bills passed during the last five days of the session. But he cannot veto after adjournment any bill presented to him 48 hours before adjournment. If a bill has not been signed or vetoed ten days after adjournment, it automatically becomes a law."

Taxation Changes

Van Hecke comments on the old taxation provisions to the effect that they "have become out of the joint with conditions which have developed since they were put into the constitution." The new ones, which he sums up under four divisions, will result in making the governor and the general assembly accountable to public opinion for their fiscal

KENNEDY AND STUDENT ATTEND MEETING TODAY

Professor Nelson O. Kennedy, of the University music department, will go to Greensboro today to attend the spring meeting of the state chapter of the American Guild of Organists.

Lee Sistaire, a student in the music department, will play a number in a series of recitals by students of the various organ teachers throughout the state. Mr. Kennedy will participate in another recital to be given by three of the organ teachers.

MUSIC STUDENTS WILL VISIT HERE

Five Music Students of Dover, Delaware, to Arrive Today.

The University music department will be hosts to a group of students from Dover, Delaware, today and Sunday. John W. MacFaddin, supervisor of music in Dover, is bringing these students to Chapel Hill.

MacFaddin came to the University summer school last summer at the advice of his teachers in a New York University, where he is doing graduate work, to take the special courses in music appreciation and music history offered by the music department here. It is in the interest of five of his students that he is bringing them down for the week-end.

The visiting students will be housed in one of the dormitories and will be guest at the track meet this afternoon.

Improvement Fund Given For Use by University Club

The Student Improvement Fund, started last year by members of St. Anthony Hall with money remaining from their lawn-cutting campaign, was yesterday turned over for use by the University club.

The fund, which amounted to slightly over twenty dollars, will be used in campus enterprises by the club this spring. It was announced that no money would be needed this year for the repair of the mowers which last year caused the buildings department to delay the mowing of the lawns several weeks.

Tomorrow To Be "Church Day"

Sermons of Special Interest to Feature First Annual Program of Y. M. C. A.

Sermons of special interest to students have been announced from the town churches as a special feature for Students' Church Day tomorrow, the first of a series of annual programs sponsored by the University Y. M. C. A.

The worship services will be directed primarily to students, and individuals in the University will participate in several of the programs. The programs will start at 11:00 o'clock and will continue one hour.

Sermon Topics

"Keeping Men on their Feet," will be the subject of Reverend Albea Godbold in the Methodist church. Reverend O. T. Binkley of the Baptist church will preach on "Jesus' Appeal to Youth."

In the Presbyterian church, "Disturbing Religion" will be the subject of Reverend W. M. Cooper's presentation. Reverend A. S. Lawrence of the Episcopal church will speak on "Understanding." The topic of the sermon to be given in the United church has not as yet been announced.

Inaugurated by Freshmen

Student Church Day was inaugurated by the Freshman Friendship council this year in an attempt to interest University students in the opportunities offered them in attending church programs.

The cabinet has received the hearty co-operation of the local ministers, and has held discussions with several of the town pastors to study the matter of church attendance.

The committee in charge of Students' Day is composed of: Jim Daniels, chairman, Eli Joynor, George MacFarland, and Phil Kind, Jr. Advisers to the group are Tom Nisbet and Haywood Weeks.

Symphony to Play Last Music Series At Guilford Today

To Present Same Program in Hill Music Hall Tomorrow.

The University Symphony orchestra will go to Guilford College tonight to give the final program on a series that constitutes a four day musical festival there.

The orchestra's appearance will be the featuring presentation of the festival.

The program to be used at Guilford will be repeated here at Hill Music hall at 4:00 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. Special attention is called to the fact that the hour is moved up to 4:00 o'clock, instead of later as formerly scheduled.

The program to be used by the orchestra on these two occasions will consist of an overture by Beethoven, a symphony by Mozart, and smaller miscellaneous numbers. Two special features will also be given: a violin concerto in which Thor Johnson will be soloist, and a symphony by Dr. A. M. White, professor of chemistry.

Open House at Castle

The Order of Gimghouls will have open house and a display of spring flowers at the castle tomorrow afternoon from 4:30 to 6:00 o'clock.

SCIENCE ACADEMY CONTINUES TODAY IN LAST SESSIONS

General Section to Convene at 9:00 O'clock; Various Departments to Meet Separately.

SEVERAL EXHIBITS OPEN

The thirty-third annual meeting of the North Carolina Academy of Science, which began here yesterday, will continue through noon today.

The program for today consists of a meeting of the general section of the academy at 9:00 o'clock in room 206 of Phillips hall which will be followed by separate meetings of the various departments of natural science.

At 9:30 o'clock the mathematics and physics sections will convene in rooms 358 and 250 of Phillips, and the chemistry section in room 206 of Venable hall. The latter serves also as the spring meeting of the North Carolina section of the American Chemical Society.

Yesterday at the meeting of the general section some 43 papers were presented out of which the University was represented by ten presentations. The subject matter for these papers ranged from a discussion of doubled headed snakes to fossil whales of North Carolina.

Wells Speaks

Last night in Swain hall Professor B. W. Wells of State College, as retiring president, delivered an address on "Galls and 'Galls.'" Dr. J. W. Lasley, Jr., member of the mathematics department, gave the address of welcome.

Several exhibits sponsored by members of the academy have been placed on display. In room 204 of Phillips hall there are various displays pertaining to physics, including a commercial exhibit by Phipps and Bird of Richmond. In Davie hall there is an exhibit of wild flowers and in the Geological Museum exhibits of whale remains and of maps showing craters.

The object of the academy is to promote study and scientific research.

CO-EDS TO HONOR NAVY WITH DANCE

Woman's Association to Entertain Trackmen from 9:00 to 12:00 Tonight in Tin Can.

A dance in honor of the visiting Navy trackmen will be given by the Woman's association of the University tonight from 9:00 to 12:00 o'clock in the Tin Can. Bill Allsbrook and his band are scheduled to play for the affair.

It was formerly expected that the Order of the Grail would sponsor a dance tonight until it was decided to turn the night over to the co-eds at a meeting Wednesday morning of the Grail, Woman's association, and University club officials. Bids for the affair may be procured by telephoning Janie Jolly at 212 Spencer hall.

The dance is one of the entertainments originally planned by the University club for the week-end. Before the affair the visiting trackmen will be guests of E. Carrington Smith at the Carolina Theatre. The team will leave Chapel Hill at 12:40 o'clock tomorrow morning.
