

HUDSON FINISHES ENGLISH RESEARCH

Survey of Comparative Standards in Freshman English Reveals Interesting Facts.

The department of English, which has recently completed a study of the records of the past three years in Freshman English, is today mailing each North Carolina high school principal who has sent as many as five graduates to the University since 1931 a statement concerning his students and the comparative showing of his school.

According to the results of the research, the students prepared in state high schools rank slightly less in their freshman English work than those from out-of-state institutions.

The best record in the class I-AA schools is held by the Greensboro high schools, which have sent 60 graduates to the University in the past three years.

The other institutions in that class are, alphabetically: Asheville, Charlotte, Concord, Durham, Elizabeth City, High Point, Lexington, Mount Airy, Raleigh, Roanoke Rapids, Sanford, Shelby, and Wilmington. The average standing of the students from these towns is considerably higher than the out-of-state record.

In class I-A, the Chapel Hill high school has the highest average. Other schools in this classification are: Asheville school, Chrisa's school, Hamlet, Hendersonville, North Wilkesboro, Oak Ridge, Reidsville, and Tarboro.

Carthage, Edenton, and Newton tie for first place in class 11-A, each having perfect scores as far as the standards of comparison are concerned because each has sent seven freshmen who have passed their first course in English and have not failed since. There are 40 other institutions in this class.

The English department invites high school principals who have not already done so to write for information concerning their graduates and their respective ratings in freshman English, addressing their communications to Dr. A. P. Hudson, who has directed the research.

Fast Field to take Part In Track Encounter

Many Shot-putters
Ray Rex of State holds a slight advantage over a close field of shot putters. There are six men in the state who toss over 44 feet and within 15 inches of each other. These are: Rex, who tops the list, two Williams brothers and Means of Duke, Tom Evins of Carolina, and Cochran of Davidson.

The pole vault also is close, with Don Jackson, Tar Heel with a vault of 12 feet 4 inches, leading the field which includes several nice 12 foot vaulters.

The 100 yard dash will be a nip-and-tuck affair although the record stands little chance of being shattered. Childers of Carolina and Evans of Davidson are scheduled to run a toss-up race. Childers has a 9.9 time as his best mark while the Wildcat has a 9.8.

Students will be admitted for 25 cents with their passbooks while outsiders will be 50 cents.

The state freshmen meet is scheduled to come along with the varsity competition, the frosh events being run off immediately following the varsity events. About 225 men are entered in the two meets to make the field not only the fastest but also one of the largest ever to be assembled.

The interviews were arranged through the co-operation of the University bureau of vocational information and placement:

All students who graduate this year and who have not been fortunate enough to locate a position are urged to register with the bureau, so that if any job in which they are interested or for which they are specially equipped may be brought to their attention.
