

AFFAIR PLANNED FOR GREENSBORO BY ALUMNI CLUB

Greensboro Organization Schedules Barbecue for Students And Prospective Pupils.

THREE HUNDRED INVITED

Members of the Greensboro alumni club will give a special program for University students from the city of Greensboro Friday, June 15.

The affair will take the form of a barbecue of an informal nature, but the place for the celebration has not as yet been announced.

J. Maryon Saunders, University alumni secretary, will be present at the affair and will take part in the program. The full entertainment exercises are not definite as yet.

300 Invited

Invitations to attend the convocation have been mailed out to approximately 300 University students with homes in Greensboro, who are attending school here at present or who have been at the University in the past.

Pat Gaskins, newly-elected editor of the Buccaneer, is in charge of making arrangements for the entertainment, and Judge E. E. Rives, president of the alumni organization, is in charge of the program for the affair.

Members of graduating classes of the Greensboro high schools and prospective University students will also be entertained at the barbecue. This affair is part of the program of the alumni to interest more people in attending the University.

YMCA DELEGATION APPLICATIONS DUE BEFORE SATURDAY

Joint Y. W.-Y. M. C. A. Conference Opens June 9.

Students interested in going to Blue Ridge should make application in the Y. M. C. A. office to Harry F. Comer before the end of the week.

The conference will start Saturday, June 9 and will last until June 18. The convention will be a joint affair attended by women and men from the Y. M. C. A.'s and Y. W. C. A.'s from 11 of the southern states.

The University Y. M. C. A. has procured a cottage for five years on the Blue Ridge grounds and will use the cabin to house the delegation from the University.

The registration fee is $7 to the conference, and food will cost approximately $1 a day. Delegates from the University, making the organization's cottage their headquarters, will not have to pay room rent, which will subtract approximately $10 from the usual cost of attending the session.

The cost of attending the convention as a University delegate is the cheapest it has ever been, according to Harry F. Comer, general secretary who has been to 26 summer meetings at Blue Ridge.

Reports seem to indicate that the University will send a large delegation this year to the conference, as the organization has obtained rooming quarters on the grounds. A few members of the cabinets have already signed up, and attempts are being

'Y' Will Hear House In Place of Graham

President Graham will not speak at the annual hillside meeting of the Y. M. C. A. scheduled this afternoon at 4:00 o'clock in the Forest theatre. Robert B. House, executive secretary of the University, will speak instead.

Due to the death of Edmund Patterson, prominent University alumnus of Winston Salem, at whose funeral President Graham is to be a pall-bearer this afternoon, he will be unable to address the meeting.

In case of rain, the meeting will be held in the old Episcopal chapel.

SUMMER SCHOOL FACULTY CHOSEN

University Men and Visiting Professors Form Strong Personnel for Summer Session.

A strong faculty has been secured for the two terms of the University summer school, the first term beginning Wednesday, June 13, and ending July 24, the last beginning July 25 and ending August 31.

Inquiries being received at the office of Dean W. C. Jackson, director of the summer schools for the Greater University, and Dr. Nathan W. Walker, director of the Chapel Hill unit, indicate a large attendance.

In addition to 110 members selected from the University's regular instruction staff there will be 18 visiting instructors from institutions ranging from New York to Louisiana.

Visiting Professors

Among the visiting professors are: Eber Malcolm Carroll, associate professor of history, Duke University; Jack Stiles Dendy, teacher of science, Washington, D. C. high school; J. Will French, associate superintendent of high schools, Tulsa, Okla.; Johanne Gjerulf, teacher in American Institute of Dal Croce Eurythmics, New York City; James E. Hillman, director of certification, state department of education; Roger Philip McCutcheon, professor of English, Tulane University.

John Willis McFaddin, supervisor of music, public schools, Dover Del.; Esek Ray Mosher, professor of secondary education, College of the City of New York.

GARDEN EXHIBIT

The Garden club will meet tomorrow afternoon at 4:30 o'clock in the home of Mrs. Preston Farrar, where a flower show will be conducted.

In connection with the flower display, ribbons will be awarded in the following classes: best single specimen of rose, greatest variety of roses, best arrangement of mixed flowers in a pottery container, and best arrangement of mixed flowers in an antique container.

Each entry should be delivered at Mrs. Farrar's before 3:00 o'clock with a card containing the name of the exhibitor and the class in which the arrangement is to be entered.

Union to Remain Open

Mayne Albright yesterday announced that Graham Memorial will remain open during the summer months, during which time the North Carolina Symphony orchestra will probably play several concerts there.

COMMERCE BUREAU HEAD WILL LEAVE FOR CAPITAL

Foreign League Board Will Meet Tomorrow

There will be a meeting of the executive board of the Foreign Policy league tomorrow night at 8:00 o'clock in Graham Memorial.

This meeting will be for the purpose of deciding a general outline for the program and the policy of the league for next year and to determine the exact date of the next meeting, which will be the last before the closing of school.

Those on the board are: Agnew Bahnson, chairman, Ezra Griffin, John Barrow, John Acee, Bill Eddleman, and Albert Ellis. Ralph Gardner, president of the league, through the nature of his office acts as chairman ex-officio of the board.

PROFESSORS EDIT LANGUAGE READER

Stoudemire, Adams Publish 'Selections from Perez de Ayala.'

Professors Sterling A. Stoudemire and Nicholson B. Adams of the romance languages department have compiled a text book, "Selections from Perez de Ayala," which has just been published by W. W. Norton & Co. of New York.

Senor de Ayala, who is now Spanish ambassador to Great Britain, is a notable figure in contemporary European literature, although his works have not been made available to the American student until now. He has written poems, essays, novels, and short stories.

For their volume Adams and Stoudemire have chosen the three works of fiction most suitable for reading by students: "El Professor Auxiliar," "La Caida de los Limones," and "Tigre Juan."

Accompanying the text are the introduction, numerous notes on unusual constructions, and a vocabulary.

WILL NOT FINISH SPRING QUARTER

To Teach Last Classes Monday; Granted Leave of Absence For Term of Office.

WILL DO MUCH TRAVELING

By DON MCKEE

"Ambition? My ambition is to do as good a job as possible. Besides this, I have no great ambition except to come back to Chapel Hill again," declares Dr. Claudius T. Murchison. The University director of research in commerce, newly appointed head of the federal bureau of foreign and domestic commerce, seemed genuinely amused at the question of whether he was interested in a governmental career.

"No, I'm sorry but I won't be able to finish teaching my courses this spring at the University," said Murchison. "The last time I will meet my classes will be tomorrow, for I'm due in Washington Tuesday to take up my duties."

Dislikes Leaving

Dr. Murchison's evident interest in teaching and the regret he expressed at not being able to continue his classes show that it will mean a small sacrifice, if a better position, for him to go to Washington. During the last few days he has been especially pressed for time, having just returned from the Capitol by airplane where he had been called by governmental officials.

The economics expert steps into his position as director at a critical time. The ousting of the Republican Dr. Thorp, brain trust from Amherst, left the bureau without a regular head, and consequently it has been in an unsettled condition recently. Dr. Murchison's genial determination to "do as good a job as possible" reflects the confidence that the administration, by his

"Studies In Philology" Is Scholarly Publication Of International Note

A publication of the University which distinguishes North Carolina among scholars is one of its least known functions to undergraduate students. This is "Studies in Philology," a distinctive feature of the graduate work in the humanities, a learned journal which includes articles based on studies of classical and modern foreign languages, and English and American literature.

"Studies in Philology," says Editor Dr. G. R. Coffman, is intended to do for the graduate scholars what the Carolina Magazine does for undergraduate creative writers—that is, to provide a medium of expression. Its success in this line is evidenced by the fact that the editor receives three or four times the amount of material that he can use, articles representing universities all over the United States and other English-speaking countries. Occasionally contributions are sent by European scholars, especially from France, Germany, and Spain.

The first issue of this publication was a Ph.D. dissertation printed under the general editorship of the Philological club. For several years thence the theses of graduate students of the humanities were the sole content of every number of the magazine.

Then an editorial board was appointed, consisting of Professor Edwin Greenlaw of the University English department, Professor Morton Dey of the French department, and Professor George Howe of the Classics department. Later Greenlaw was made editor with an advisory board. This group fostered the types of shorter, scholarly articles which now appear, in lieu of the former dissertations which originally made up the journal.

A few years ago, however, Greenlaw joined the faculty of Johns Hopkins, leaving a vacancy for the editorship. Dr. James F. Royster, who was appointed to fill his place and, after him, Professor Foerster continued to encourage the latter kinds of articles. The present editor is Professor G. R. Coffman, with Dr. W. D. MacMillan as assistant editor.

Grown Tremendously

During this time "Studies in Philology" has greatly increased both in size and in circulation. One volume now includes the issues of one year, where the

Di Senate Will Elect Next Fall's Officers

The Di senate will meet Tuesday night at 7:30 o'clock in the senate chamber in New West in executive session for its final meeting of the year.

At this meeting officers for next fall will be elected and reports will be made by all committees which have served during the quarter just past, standing and temporary. All committee chairmen must have a complete report to present to the senate or be subject to fine. No bills will be discussed, though the president of the group, Elmer Oettinger, has requested all members who can possibly do so to be present.

HICKERSON PLANS INSPECTION TOUR

University Engineering Professor Will Travel Over Country During Summer.

Professor T. F. Hickerson, head of the department of civil engineering, has made definite plans for an extensive trip across the United States this summer for the purpose of inspecting and studying various engineering projects.

He will first go to Cornell University, where he will attend the annual meeting of the Society for the Promotion of Engineering Education. Also at this time he will serve on the committee of summer schools for engineering teachers, an appointment that was made last December.

Boulder Dam

From Cornell he will travel west and stop at the Boulder Dam, one of the largest engineering projects of the present day, where he will make an inspection of its construction.

On the west coast he plans to attend the annual convention of the American and Canadian societies of civil engineering, to be held this year at Vancouver, B. C., and in San Francisco he will make a study of the construction of two of the largest bridges in the world.

Professor Hickerson will return to North Carolina via the Panama Canal.

BOOKS ON SURGEON

A collection of books and pamphlets about Dr. Crawford W. Long, who is famous for his discovery of anesthesia for use in surgery, was presented to the University last week by Miss Emma Long through Mrs. Lyman Cotten of Chapel Hill.

In the collection are photographs of Long's birthplace and a house in Jefferson, Ga., where he performed his first operation with ether. The collection also shows Long's statue in the Capitol in Washington.

Miss Long is the daughter of the famous surgeon and was visiting in Chapel Hill during the past week at the home of Mrs. Cotten.

Infirmary List

The following students were confined to the University infirmary yesterday: Irvin Boyle, W. M. Daniel, J. D. Lewis, A. S. McMillan, John Physioc, and D. G. Wetherbee.

Senior Executives

There will be an important meeting of the senior executive committee at 12:00 o'clock today in the student government office.

GARBER TO PLAY FOR FINALS HERE ON JUNE 7 AND 8

Emerson Gill Not Yet Secured For Last Dance Due to Conflict in Engagements.

IS UNIVERSITY ALUMNUS

Jan Garber, who brings his popular radio, recording and dance orchestra to the University for the German club finals on June 7 and 8, is another of the Carolina students who has attained national prominence as a band leader.

Garber has been engaged to play for the first two days of the dance set, but the German club has not yet heard definitely from Emerson Gill, who was to have furnished the music for the dances on June 9.

According to Charlie Wollen, treasurer of the German club, there was some conflict between the engagements made for Gill by his manager which will probably prevent his being here for the last day of the finals.

Began at 14

Garber, who was born in Indianapolis and later moved to Louisville where he attended grammar and high school before enrolling in the University, began his musical career at the age of 14 when he took up the study of the violin.

Later his parents sent him to Combs Conservatory in Philadelphia where he studied to become a concert violinist and joined the Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra, which featured him at recitals in Witherpoon hall.

Following the war, Jan entered

MUSIC STUDENTS TO PRESENT LAST RECITAL OF YEAR

Jane Forgrave and Lee Sistaire Will Perform Tuesday.

Jane Forgrave, pianist, and Lee Sistaire, organist, will present a joint recital at 8:30 o'clock next Tuesday evening in Hill Music hall.

Both of these musicians are juniors in the music department.

Miss Forgrave will play the following numbers: "Sonatine," by Ravel; "Les Collines d'Anacapri," by Debussy; "In der Nacht," Schumann; arranged for piano. Mr. Sistaire, organist, will play "First Sonata," by Barowski; and "Harmonies du Soir," by Karg-Elert. The numbers for organ and piano are: "Prelude," "Fugue," and "Variation," by Cesar Franck.

Wednesday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock in Hill Music hall an orchestra will present the works of the students in instrumentation and orchestration. These two recitals will be the final programs of the year, and will be open to the public.

In Memoriam

A group of hymns will be played in the campanile this afternoon in memory of Edmund Patterson, brother of Rufus L. Patterson, one of the donors of the bell tower, at 2:30 o'clock. Edmund Patterson's funeral will take place at the same hour in Winston-Salem.

The hymns to be played are: "Lead Kindly Light," "Abide with me," and "Nearer My God to Thee."
