Tar Heel Teams Top

(Continued from page three) Big Five shows Carolina, 31/2 Duke and State, 21/2 each; and Davidson one half. Carolina wor in baseball, basketball, and track; Duke in football and cross country, and State in westling and golf, while Carolina and State tied in boxing and Duke and Davidson divided honors in tennis.

The Tar Heel baseball and track teams performed two especially noteworthy feats, the former setting a new record for Carolina nines by winning 20 out of 21 college games and the latter becoming the first team ever to sweep the state and southern indoor and outdoor championships in one year.

He is hesitant about making known any reforms which he desires to put through while in office. Dr. Murchison said that it was "a bit too early to make such statements" and that he would first rather confer with government officials before taking steps toward definite improvements.

The new federal director hopes to continue his writing while in office, although he re marked that his duties for the first month would be very pressing. His position will give him the opportunity to do a great Conference, Big Five deal of traveling. The commerce bureau has offices all over the country, and one of his duties will be to make speeches to labor and trade unions in order to point out to them the work of the commerce department. Along with his mention of employed labor, which seemed to remind him of the rehabilitation work now being done by the govern ment, Dr. Murchison stated that the NRA has been a greater success than most people think "It was started on such a large scale, of course, mistakes were inevitable. The main objectives of the NRA are undoubtedly in line with proved economic the

War a Probability

"Any chance of a war?" he echoed to the question, naturally following upon his discussion of international relations. "Yes, I think there is, although I don't speak as an alarmist. The situation in Europe today is very delicate, but, of course, this does not necessarily mean an armed conflict. A war today in Europe wouldn't cause any greater surprise than was caused by the struggle among nations which broke out in 1914."

From this interesting though serious discussion the economist passes easily to as equally an interesting discussion of his personal likes and dislikes. His favorite pastime and sport is golf, his favorite classes those on business cycles and money. Although apparently in contrast to his cheerfulness, he likes the somewhat glum sayings of Marcus Aurelius; Browning, his favorite poet, makes up for his pessimism. And the strangest contradiction of his up-and-coming appearance is his aversion to getting up early in the morning—the new federal director, who self-admittedly always tries to escape 8:30 classes!

The great amount of material, as well as desire for the most efficiency in judging the contributions, makes it necessary for each article to be read several times. First Dr. Coffman hastiat the Methodist church and will ly looks over it in order to determine the type of article. Then he sends it to an expert in the field which the study treats, Dr. Holmes reads the articles on Old French, Dr. Howe, those on the classics, and so on. Receiving the approbation of the expert with a short report, Dr. Coffman himself reads it and decides whether it is to be published. On account of the large number of contributions many articles which have been appproved cannot be published.
