An Editorial

Those students who met at President Graham's request last night and heard his plea for improved after-dance conduct made a gratifying response to his wishes.

Three things, which show definitely that the students themselves have taken the initiative in ending disorder after dance hours, were accomplished at the meeting: (1) President Will Sadler of the Interfraternity council announced that his organization undertook complete responsibility for student conduct; (2) Virgil Weathers, president of the student body, declared his willingness and that of the student council to cooperate in the matter; and (3) both dormitory residents and non-fraternity men voiced their approval of a higher standard of after-dance conduct.

Such a unanimous response on the part of this representative portion of the student body certainly appears to justify the confidence that President Graham places in the students themselves. "Throughout the entire time that I have been at this University," he said, "whether as teacher, dean, or in my present capacity, I have always felt that when students are faced with a problem such as this one, they can do a better job of handling it than anybody else."

The student group that heard President Graham make this statement last night took the first step towards showing him that this confidence was well-founded. They showed their willingness to see that after-dance conduct is improved. But the responsibility does not stop there. It rests upon every student in the University. And judging from the whole-hearted realization of this responsibility on the part of the student group last night, we believe that the entire campus will show the same spirit and will see to it that student conduct during both final dances and future dances is vastly improved.

INTERFRATERNITY GROUP CONTROLS STUDENT ACTIONS

To Be Responsible for Conduct of Members After Dances.

The Interfraternity council voted to take over the responsibility of regulating student conduct in fraternities at its meeting last night in Graham Memorial.

The council will exercise its power immediately and will take charge of student conduct during the final German club dances next week.

Backing has been assured the Interfraternity council's project by the University Student council and the dormitory council, which met yesterday and agreed to support the plans of the interfraternity group.

The council will have the power to impose penalties on violators of rules concerning fraternity and after dance conduct. Members of the council will assume the duty of reporting to the Interfraternity council heads any violations of rules in lodges.

The action of the council came about after the executive committee of the organization unanimously approved of the plan of the council's supervising student actions in lodges.

No rules will be made by the council this year in regard to fraternity conduct, but the rules in effect at present will be enforced.

Members of the council felt that it was their duty to regulate student actions in lodges and after dance conduct.

HALF OF ANNUALS TO BE DELIVERED TO STUDENTS SOON

Will Be Given Out Wednesday; Others June 11.

One thousand of the 1934 Yackety Yacks will arrive and be distributed at Graham Memorial Wednesday, it was announced yesterday by John Barrow, business manager. The other 1,000 books will be distributed Monday, June 11.

Due to an unforeseen difficulty, the printing of the annuals was delayed.

Barrow requests that all seniors and others who are planning to remain here for commencement wait until June 11 to get their annuals in order that those who will not be here at that time may be sure of getting a book.

All students who do not receive their copy Wednesday and will not be here June 11 are requested to leave their names and summer addresses with Barrow so that their annuals may be mailed to them later.

The names and addresses should be placed on a card and put into the door of the Yackety Yack office in Graham Memorial if Barrow cannot be reached in person, or they may be mailed to box 727.

Students who have been enrolled in the University for only one or two quarters will have to see Barrow and pay the difference in the price of the book before they can secure copies.

It will be impossible to secure any of the books before Wednesday.

MONOGRAM CLUB NAMES GARDNER AS PRESIDENT

Reduced Membership Fee Open to Seniors

Seniors may join the General Alumni association and receive its official magazine, The Alumni Review, for their first alumni year for the reduced fee of one dollar, it was announced yesterday by J. Marvon Saunders, secretary of the University Alumni association. Regular alumni dues are $3 annually.

Arrangements have been made with the business office so that seniors who wish to join the organization may pay their dollar membership fee when their diploma fee is paid. Seniors may also join by paying their fees at 208 South building.

BUREAU TO HELP JOBLESS SENIORS

Graduating Men Should Make Employment Application Immediately in 316 South.

Graduating seniors who have not received employment for next year may be aided by the Vocational Placement bureau, by registering immediately with Herman Schnell, director of the bureau, in 316 South building.

Blanks will be filed for each senior registering and will be available to interested employers.

The executive committee of the retiring senior class is considering a proposal to publish a special issue of Tar Heel Topics, to be mailed to more than 600 employers. The issue will be financed from the surplus of the class treasury.

Will Bring Results

Dean F. F. Bradshaw, meeting with the committee yesterday to report on the plan, stated that commerce seniors at the University of Kentucky tried the plan successfully several years ago. Bradshaw pointed out the plan will bring definite results in the future, if not immediately.

Temporary plans have been made for the publication, which will include qualifications of seniors in all schools of the University.

Prospects for increased employment of seniors were reported favorable. The fact that ten personnel managers from various firms have visited the campus this spring in search of prospective employees, as compared with four last year, was mentioned as indicating increased business activity.

CAPERS SET FOR TOMORROW NIGHT

Only Playmakers Invited; No Admission Charge.

The Playmaker Caper will be held in the Playmakers' theatre tomorrow night at 8:00 o'clock. The final dress rehearsal for all those in the Caper will be tonight in the theatre.

Only those who have done any work in any way for the Playmakers are invited. All others are asked not to come. There will be no admission fee.

The program will consist of skits, dances, musical numbers, etc. The program is called "Freddie's Follies of 1934."

After the stage program there will be cakes and ale in the green room. There will be dancing on the stage after the refreshments.

BROGDEN SPEAKS TO ORGANIZATION

Jackson, Blood, Hubbard and Abernethy Also Elected at Meeting Last Night.

FETZER ADDRESSES GROUP

Ralph Webb Gardner of Shelby was elected president of the Monogram club at an election of the group last night in Swain hall. Gardner, the new president, has served on the varsity football team as center. Son of the ex-governor, he is the president of the Foreign Policy league, and a member of Golden Fleece and the Order of the Grail.

Don Fletcher Jackson of Sanford, Florida, was elected vice-president of the group; Ernest Benjamin Blood of Passaic, N. J., treasurer; Charles Spence Hubbard of Sanford, secretary; and Frank Pierce Abernethy of Greensboro, representative to the University Athletic council.

Brodden

Comparing athletics at the University to the game of life, Judge W. J. Brogden of Durham addressed the club. Brogden, University alumnus and author of the Monogram code, stressed teamwork both in college athletics and in life as a basis of success.

Athletic certificates were awarded to members of the club for excellence in University sports by Frank Abernethy, retiring secretary.

Coach Bob Fetzter introduced Brogden and made a talk later on in the program emphasizing the necessity of choosing a good man as representative of the club on the Athletic council.

George Brandt, retiring president of the organization presided at the session and officially turned the duties of office over to Gardner, who pledged to serve the group to the best of his ability.

Brandt Speaks

Brandt made a brief speech stressing the necessity of the group's co-operating and pulling together, and plans for work next year were discussed.

Next year the organization aims to co-operate with the University club and other campus societies to be of real service to the University campus and student body.

Members of the University coaching staff were guests at the convocation. Refreshments were served after the session.

Retiring officers of the association are: George Brandt, president; Gorge Barclay, vice-president; Frank Abernethy, secretary; and Dave McCachren, treasurer.

No More Work

With this issue of the paper, the Daily Tar Heel ceases publication for the current year. Work will be resumed in the fall quarter and the next issue will appear about September 22. Members of the staff are requested to report to the office for assignments on registration day next fall.
