

WAKE FOREST OPENS "BIG FIVE" GRID SEASON WITH 62-0 VICTORY

BAPTIST TROUNCE GUILFORD ELEVEN IN SCORING ORGY

Captain Swan, Kitchin, and Edens Lead Deacons' Grid Machine to Win.

VICTORS IMPRESS SNAVELY

(Special to the DAILY TAR HEEL)
Gore Field, Wake Forest, N. C., September 22.—Wake Forest's gridiron machine rolled over a much smaller Guilford eleven here this afternoon to score a top-heavy 62-0 victory.

With Walton Kitchin, son of Wake Forest's President Thurman Kitchin, quarterback of the Baptist steam roller, the Demon-Deacons turned on all their power to display a powerful offense and equally effective defense.

Kitchin, Edens Star
Young Kitchin combined with "Tex" Edens, giant fullback, in many long gains through the Quakers' line, smashing through the line easily.

Kitchin's passing ability rifling long and short passes through the impotent Guilford defense was without peer.

Captain Pat Swan starred in the line for Wake Forest.

Coach Jim Weaver's proteges looked strong for an early season contest, and the victors showed the results of good coaching.

The DAILY TAR HEEL interviewed Coach Carl G. Snavely, North Carolina mentor, last night following the Wake Forest triumph. The Tar Heel coach was favorably impressed with the Demon-Deacons' eleven.

"Those boys have a mighty good team, and we'll find them hard to beat next Saturday. They have a bigger line, weighing—I should say, over 200 pounds. Their backfield is also heavy and especially effective, using the kicking and passing game. I believe their passers and kickers surpass my boys. Wake Forest has a strong team."

The Carolian coaching staff went over to scout the Wake Forest club which will open the University's season Saturday in Kenan stadium.

Grantland Rice Says—

New York, Sept. 22.—Grantland Rice, noted sports writer and commentator on various athletic subjects, lamented here tonight the resignation of Col. Dan McGugin as head football coach at Vanderbilt. McGugin is to become Director of Athletics, and his resignation will not be in effect until the termination of this season.

In regard to McGugin, Rice paid a striking tribute to the "Grand Old Man" of Dixie gridiron. He said: "In the resignation of Dan McGugin as head football coach Vanderbilt not only loses one of the ablest football coaches of all time but also an unusual human being."

"McGugin for thirty years has been something more than one of the finest coaches in the game. He has had a marvelous influence over thousands of young men. An influence that counts heavily later on in after years. As a builder of character he has had no superior in the history of the game."

Rice concluded with: "His resignation will not only be a big loss to Vanderbilt University but also to the game itself as he has always stood for the best and finest in sportsmanship."

Ends May Prove N. C. Success

Two juniors and two sophomores who guard the flanks of the Carolina line may hold the key to the success of the Tar Heel machine this fall.

The center, guard, and tackle positions are well fortified with veterans and regulars from last year. If the play of the ends is up to par, Carolina should definitely have a strong rush-line.

Here They Are

The leading candidates for the important flank positions are Bill Moore and Gene Barwick, who won their letters as understudies with the varsity last fall, and Dick Buck and Buck McCarn, who manned the ends for the freshman eleven.

Moore and Buck, who weigh around 175 pounds, have been running first string. Barwick and McCarn are slightly heavier.

Buck has distinguished himself especially for his pass-receiving and heady defensive play at left end. He is also proficient in blocking.

McCarn's work in the blocking drills of late has been particularly good. He is a big, powerful boy, but Moore's experience and all-round ability still give him a slight edge over McCarn at the right flank.

Barwick is another big, strong boy, weighing around 185 pounds, who played some good ball last year and who is looked to for much service this fall.

The Carolina ends are being drilled intensively, along with the other linemen, as Coach Snavely seeks to lay a defense for Wake Forest's massive line and hard-running backs.

Dan McGugin Expects To Retire As Vanderbilt Football Mentor

"Grand Old Man" of Dixie Grid Coaches to Become Commodore Athletic Director.

By JAMES E. CHAPPELL (Birmingham News)

Daniel Earl McGugin, who came to Vanderbilt as football coach in September, 1904, will retire from active coaching duties at the close of the 1934 football season, after completing his thirty-first successive season in that capacity.

He will remain as Athletic Director of Vanderbilt University, according to announcement of the Athletic association today, with "general supervision over all athletic activities of students, responsibility for schedule-making, including the development and supervision of the intramural program." He will also

Rainbow Wins Again

Newport, R. I., Sept. 22.—(UP)—Harold S. Vanderbilt skippered Rainbow, sleek U. S. defender, to another victory over T. O. M. Sopwith's blue-hulled British challenger, Endeavor, today. But the New York Yacht club racing committee received a protest from the challenger following the race.

The victory for the U. S. entry evened the count in the series for the most famous of the yachting trophies, the historic America's Cup. The Endeavor won the first two contests, and the Rainbow rallied to tie the count. Four out of seven wins are necessary to win the cup.

DUKE BACKFIELD ABOUT SETTLED

Cornelius, Tarrall, and Alexander Pretty Sure of Positions For Opening Game.

Durham, N. C., Sept. 21.—With the exception of one position, Duke university's starting backfield against V. M. I. in Lexington, Va., a week from tomorrow appears to be about set.

Of course there may be changes but, according to the way things look now, the blocking back post will be occupied by Elmer Tarrall, sub end and blocker last season, one half-back berth by Corky Cornelius, that great side-wheeling half-back, and the fullback job by Jack Alexander.

The lone place that is still very much indefinite is the half-back job pairing with Cornelius. The two chief candidates are Jule Ward, sub back last year, and Clarence Parker, sophomore.

Looking for Punter

Parker may get the call due to his ability to punt. Ward has worked hard this fall and has looked good, but Parker has any other man on the squad and the Duke mentor may be forced to start him. The punting has been poor at Duke this fall.

Alexander, the midget full-back, has shown much fight this fall and has been performing his duties well. In addition to his line-busting job, he also has the signal calling assignment. Little is known about his field generaling.

Tarrall has been running at the blocking back post most of the time since practice started but he still has a candidate close on his heels—Sam McCaskill, 1933 reserve—and Coach Wade may elect to make a shift there at any time.

THREE VETERANS AT VIRGINIA ENDS

Cavaliers Have Little to Worry About at Flanks.

University, Va., Sept. 21.—The one member of Virginia's varsity coaching staff who has little to worry him is Bob Lawson, who is tutor of the ends.

The Cavaliers have three veteran flankmen, John Leys and Cully Wilkin, who are playing in their old positions, and Ken Morton, who has been shifted down the line to guard where material is badly needed.

Wier Tucker and Don Fitzhugh, regular ends on the '33 freshman eleven, have been filling the second string wings, with Jim Peabody, George Wood and Henry Hundley fighting their way up. Coach Lawson thinks that Wood may make a name for himself before the mid-season has rolled around.

Two of these ends, incidentally, have come the longest distances to play on the Virginia squad. Wilkin is from Salt Lake City, Utah, and Wood from Littleton, Colorado.

DURHAM PLANNING FOR GEORGIA TECH GAME IN OCTOBER

Chamber of Commerce and Embassy Club Work on Plans For Tech Invasion.

Durham, N. C., Sept. 22.—Plans for the largest downtown celebration in the history of Durham on the morning of the Duke-Georgia Tech football game, October 13, have been made by officials of the local chamber of commerce and the Embassy club.

The two organizations plan to co-operate in extending visitors a rousing before-game welcome. Manufacturers and merchants will be asked to furnish floats for participation in a mammoth parade.

Winning Float

According to the plans, the winning float will parade around the football field between halves with the Yellow Jacket and Blue Devil sponsors leading the procession. Three bands—the Durham high school, Duke and Georgia Tech aggregations—will take part in the parade.

Interest is also high in this and other states. The athletic and alumni offices report the largest advance reservation of tickets this far preceding a contest in the history of the university. Hundreds of alumni are expected to return for the annual alumni Home-coming Day program.

Aromatic Turkish tobacco

On the sunny slopes of Smyrna..in the fertile fields of Macedonia..from the shores of the Black Sea..that's where the best kinds grow.. the kinds used in making Chesterfields.

THERE are about as many kinds of Turkish tobacco as there are kinds of apples—but they all have a spicy aroma and flavor which seems to "season" a cigarette better than any other kind that grows.

The right Turkish is costly—but it adds something to Chesterfield's milder better taste.

When you go on your next cruise, stop at Smyrna and visit our tobacco factory. We think you will find it interesting.
