

UNIVERSITY CLUB WILL INAUGURATE RADIO BROADCAST

Program Tomorrow Will Feature
Talks by Phil Hammer
And Billy Anderson.

PROGRAMS TO BE WEEKLY

The University club will sponsor the first of a series of radio programs over station WDNC of Durham tomorrow afternoon from 5:30 until 6:00 o'clock, it was announced yesterday by Jack Lowe.

Phil Hammer, chairman of the DAILY TAR HEEL editorial board and retired president of the University club, will present a brief address on the work and purpose of the University club.

Bill Anderson, former sports editor of the DAILY TAR HEEL, will talk on University sports, telling of coming features and games on the program. Both Anderson and Hammer appeared on the University club radio program last spring.

Music for the program will be supplied by Jimmy Fuller and his orchestra, which played at the University club freshman smoker during orientation week and which plays regularly at Gooch's cafeteria.

Music Feature

Featuring on the musical part of the program will be a presentation of Tennessee's alma mater by the orchestra.

Announcer for the first radio program of the season will be Jack Clare, University junior and member of the University club.

FRESHMEN HEAR DI, PHI LEADERS

Gibbs and Smithwick Extend Invitations to Freshmen to Join Literary Societies.

President A. Mason Gibbs of the Dialectic senate and Speaker Robert Smithwick of the Philanthropic assembly explained their respective societies and extended a membership invitation to freshmen at assembly yesterday.

Dean Bradshaw introduced the speakers and gave a brief history of the groups, saying that all the other organizations of the University had evolved from these first societies.

Benefits from Societies

President Gibbs said members of the Di senate get experience in public speaking, parliamentary procedure, and debating. He invited interested freshmen to visit a Di meeting even if they did not intend to join the senate.

According to Winthrop Duffee, chairman of the freshman membership committee for the Philanthropic assembly, who assisted Speaker Smithwick, interesting subjects are discussed and freedom of speech is allowed at the assembly meetings.

Initiation of new members will take place during this quarter twice besides at the meeting last night.

2,700 Are Registered

The total number of students registered up to yesterday at noon was 2,700, according to information obtained at the registrar's office. Of these, about 200 are graduate students.

THEY BUILT "GREEN PASTURES"

Here are the three men primarily responsible for "The Green Pastures," the dramatization of a Negro's conception of heaven. "The Green Pastures" was written by Marc Connelly, center above, from "Ol' Man Adam an' His Chillun," a novel by Roark Bradford, shown on the left, and was produced by Rowland Stebbins, right.

The original New York company, headed by Richard B. Harrison as "De Lawd," will appear here Monday night.

Bradford Made Possible "Green Pastures" Success

Noted Author from Tennessee
Has Ability to Recreate Negro
Habits and Temperament.

Wherever "The Green Pastures" is presented the names of Marc Connelly, Richard B. Harrison, and the Heavenly Choir receive most of the publicity, while Roark Bradford's name is relegated to an inconspicuous space in the articles concerning the play. But it is Roark Bradford who made possible "The Green Pastures," the greatest theatrical success of modern times.

Roark Wickliffe Bradford was born on the banks of the Mississippi in Tennessee. He received his early education at home, but later attended public schools. Just before the outbreak of the World War he achieved his LL.B. degree. He entered the army and was not discharged until 1920.

His first position was on the staff of the Hearst publication, The Georgian, in Atlanta. After two years there, he went to Louisiana, where he ran a country newspaper for six months. From there he went to New Orleans and became a copy reader for the Times-Picayune. He soon graduated to the night city desk, and finally reached the exalted position of Sunday editor. This post gave him enough leisure time to devote himself to creative writing.

Roark Bradford's first literary effort was "Child of God," which won for the author immediate fame and the Henry prize for the year. Since the appearance of this book in 1927, Bradford's works have met with pronounced success. He is the author of "John Henry," "Ol' King David and the Philistine Boys," "Kingdom Coming," and "Ol' Man Adam and His Chillun," which inspired the writing of "The Green Pastures."

Bradford understands the Negro nature and temperament, and it was this, coupled with his ability to recreate these people on paper, that earned him his well-deserved success. Marc Connelly read "Ol' Man Adam and His Chillun," and immediately realized the great dramatic possibilities of these sketches.

Although Roark Bradford is a famed author, he also deserves much of his credit for the success of a great play, for without the drama that he poured into his book, Connelly would never have written "The Green Pastures."

SENTENCE SURE FOR HAUPTMANN

Extradition Expected in Two Weeks; Jersey Governor
Confident of Conviction.

New York, Oct. 2.—(UP)—"New Jersey has sufficient evidence to convict Hauptmann," was the statement made by Gov. A. Harry Moore tonight.

Governor Moore said that within two weeks Hauptmann will be extradited to New Jersey. Jersey officials have proceeded with the utmost caution in preparing their case, making sure that they shall have enough evidence to secure conviction.

Charged with Murder

As soon as these truebills are signed, Hauptmann will be taken to New Jersey charged with the actual murder of the Lindbergh child.

Meanwhile in the Bronx, there is every indication that District Attorney Samuel Foley is prepared to go to trial on the extortion charges with the evidence already amassed.

Foley has said that at least three psychiatrists are to examine Hauptmann and that he wants several physicians to represent him at the test.

A mysterious man, whose identity was unrevealed, tonight gave authorities what he described as "an important angle" on the case. He was questioned for an hour and instructed to return tomorrow.

Nancy Gordon Is New Co-ed Vice-President

Nancy Gordon was elected vice-president of the Woman's association yesterday at a meeting in Graham Memorial to replace Jayne Smoot, elected last year but who did not return. Mary Pride Cruikshank was elected town representative.

Short talks were made by Elsie Lawrence, president of the Woman's Athletic association, who spoke on the co-ed athletic program for the coming year, and Jean Smith Cantrell, who outlined the campus activities open to co-eds.

Friday, October 26, was set as a tentative date for the annual co-ed dance.

Commerce Frosh to Meet

Dean Carroll will meet all commerce freshmen at 10:30 o'clock today in Memorial hall.

"Vault The Vols, Take The South"

With the battle-cry "Vault the Vols and Take the South!", loyal Carolina supporters are preparing for the fireworks of Saturday's all-important football match with Tennessee's Volunteers.

That such a powerful opponent is to be met in an early-season game has made it all the more necessary that students give their intense support to the brilliant 1934 team, it is felt. Some students even feel that upon the outcome of Saturday's engagement will depend the issue of whether Carolina will have a brilliant or mediocre season on the gridiron.

At any rate, University club officials and other spirited campus leaders have planned a huge torchlight parade for Friday night with a bonfire celebration following on Emerson field.

Willingham Speaks

Frank Willingham, new University club head, had this to say yesterday:

"We feel that if ever Carolina comes to the aid of its team with enthusiastic support in the form of cheering at the pep rallies and games, now is the time for that action. Tennessee will be tough and every student should give all they've got to back the team Saturday afternoon. Somehow, I feel that the proverbially-powerful Carolina spirit needs a little prodding. Let's get going and send those great Tar Heels crashing through Tennessee and the entire south this fall."

The cheering at the Wake Forest game was quite disappointing to Cheerio officials, who feel that members of the student body owe it to the gridders to put more pep in the stands at Kenan. Let's go, Carolina. "Vault the Vols and Take the South!"

SPEAKER OF PHI STATES PROGRAM

Smithwick Proposes Educational Lectures by Visitors; 65 New Members Are Initiated.

President Robert Smithwick discussed the past history of the Phi assembly and outlined a program for the future in his inaugural address last night.

He pledged his support to an extensive agenda comprising educational lectures by visiting speakers, the promotion of campus projects, and a calendar of bills of general interest for discussion.

Plan Dance

A social affair, probably a dance, was scheduled to be given at some time during the fall quarter.

Sixty-five new members were initiated into the assembly. Joe Patterson was made assistant-treasurer in a close election. The other nominees were Billy Seawell and Stewart Rabb.

FRESHMAN YMCA GROUP OUTFITS HEADQUARTERS

Members of the Freshman Friendship council are outfitting a room on the second floor of the "Y" building to be used as cabinet headquarters.

Jimmy Coan, head of the freshman cabinet, Jack Pool and Agnew Bahson, freshman advisers, and the remainder of the freshman executive board will have offices there.

P. U. Board Refuses To Appoint Two Men As "Finjan" Censors

Rushing Rules Stand

The action of the Interfraternity council yesterday afternoon in cutting the rushing period to Friday night was annulled last night when announcement was made that such action was contrary to a faculty ruling.

Fraternity rushing season, therefore, will remain the same as announced at the beginning of the year, extending until 12:00 o'clock midnight Saturday.

BERNSTEIN OPENS SEMINAR SERIES BY TALK TONIGHT

State Professor to Discuss Monetary Theory at 7:30 O'clock
In Bingham Hall.

SPRULL TO SPEAK NEXT

Dr. E. M. Bernstein of State College will present a discussion of "The Role of Money in Economic Progress" at the first of a series of economics seminars tonight.

The session tonight at 7:30 o'clock in Bingham hall begins a series of weekly meetings conducted by members of the department of economics and commerce.

Dr. Bernstein, trained at the University of Chicago and at Harvard, has in press now a manuscript on "Monetary Theory," in which recent developments are analyzed and appraised. Tonight he will propose and defend his own thesis of monetary control.

Plan

It is the plan of the committee this year to center the programs around the recent developments in economic and business theory.

Last year a series of discussions on the several features of the New Deal attracted considerable interest. Much of the material presented at that time was necessarily factual in character and somewhat limited in perspective owing to the rapidity of the movements then surveyed.

Speakers

The program, as tentatively outlined, will include the following topics and speakers: tonight, "The Role of Money in the Economic Process," by Dr. E. M. Bernstein; October 10, "Contemporary Monetary Experiments," by Professor C. P. Sprull; October 17, "Recent Popular Theories," by Dr. Clarence Heer; October 24, "The Role of Economic History in Theory," by Professor M. S. Heath; October 31, "Some Aspects of General Theory," by Professor J. S. Evans.

November 7, "Bank Credit and the Business Cycle," by Dr. J. B. Woosley; November 14, "Recent Foreign Trade Theory," by Dr. E. W. Zimmermann; November 21, "The Value and Limitations of Mathematical Methods in Economics," by Dr. W. F. Feger; December 5, "American Profit Theory," by Professor R. S. Winslow; December 12, "Business Practices and Theory," by Dr. G. T. Schwenning.

Graduate students in economics are expected to attend the seminar, and other interested persons are cordially invited.

Graham Says Board Is Not Under Obligation

Board Is Not Obligated by Precedent or Constitution to Handle Editorial Policy.

The Publications Union board yesterday disclaimed any right or duty to act as censors for the new "Finjan" by refusing to comply with the Student council's request to appoint two members for the campus board which will pass on the material to be published in the magazine.

The action came after a letter from President Frank Graham to one of the members was quoted. Graham advised the board that it was not obligated by precedent or constitution to entangle itself in matters of editorial policy.

Student Policy

The board also stated that it did not consider it in keeping with the policy of student control of publications to have two thirds of a censors board appointed by a group which itself has two faculty members.

Having abolished the Buccaneer and established a humor magazine devoted to a higher type of wit, the Student council had informed the Publications Union board that it was expected to appoint from its number or elsewhere two censors. A third censor was to have been named from the council itself.

In addition to disposing of several routine matters, the board also heard a report from one of the editors, and postponed action on a request from a last year's editor for a bonus which has not yet been awarded.

SENATE UPHOLDS PAYING ATHLETES

President Mason Gibbs Appoints New Committees
For Coming Year.

Subsidizing football players and fraternity rushing as now practiced were approved by the members of the Di senate last night.

The two bills discussed were: Resolved, That subsidizing football players should be condemned; and Resolved, That rushing of freshmen should be postponed. The first measure was defeated, 12-8, and the second upheld, 14-6.

Bill Weaver was elected substitute president pro-tem, in the absence of Fred Howard.

New Committees

President A. M. Gibbs appointed the following committees:

Committee on constitution: Chairman Vergil Lee, Eddie Kahn, and Don McKee.

Entertainment: Chairman Bill Weaver, Bob Williams, and Reed Sarratt.

Finance: Chairman Stern, Crowell and Rawls. Ways and Means: Chairman Bill Weaver, Phil Russell, and Charles Daniels.

The next meeting will be devoted to the initiation of new members, it was announced.

Student Directory at "Y"

A complete typewritten copy of the master directory has been placed on the desk in the "Y." Students should look up their names and make sure that all the data listed are correct.
