

S. A. E. IS WINNER FOR HOMECOMING DAY DECORATION

Alfred Williams Wins Award for Novelty; Stetson "D" for Merchandising Appeal.

EXHIBITS DRAW VISITORS

Displaying a combined exhibit of birds of the air and beasts of the field, S. A. E. fraternity captured first prize for the best decoration and display offered by the Homecoming Day committee headed by Jake Snyder.

The exhibits, which were for the most part originated by the fraternities themselves, drew large crowds of visitors, and excited much comment here yesterday.

Novel Decorations

Among the exhibits that attracted much attention were D. K. E.'s likeness of Mae West, labeled "Beat Kentucky or Bust;" Phi Gamma Delta's moving figure of a Carolina football player booting the Kentucky Wildcat; and Sigma Nu's NRA sign.

First prize offered to the merchant in Chapel Hill who had the most novel or most artistic window display was won by the Alfred Williams Co., with their miniature train built of stationery.

Second prize was taken by Lyon Hardware Co.'s window with a likeness of Captain Barclay as the central figure.

In the field of merchandising appeal, the window at Stetson 'D,' with a cardboard portrait of Captain Barclay drawn by M. M. Timmons, took first prize. Second prize was won by Ledbetter-Pickard Stationery store's perpetual-flow bottle of Scrip.

ORIGINAL DRAMA BILL IS SELECTED

Tryouts for Program of Experiments Will Be Conducted Tuesday Afternoon.

The first bill of experimental plays to be produced this quarter by the Playmakers has been selected for presentation November 1.

These plays are written by members of Professor Koch's playwriting class and will be presented with the assistance of the Playmaker production staff.

Plays Selected

From the one-act plays submitted by members of the playwriting class, the following have been chosen for production:

"Sea-Psalm," a tragedy of the North Carolina coast, by Charles Edward Eaton; "New Anarchy," a play of a banking crisis, by Philip G. Parker; "New Nigger," the tragedy of a giant among small men, by Fred E. Howard, Jr.; "Clam-Digger," a play of Maine sea-folk, by Jean Ashe, and "Hunger," a tragedy of Carolina farm-folk, by Ella Mae Daniel.

Open try-outs for the plays will be conducted at 4:30 o'clock Tuesday afternoon in the theatre.

PRESS INSTITUTE WILL MEET HERE JAN. 23-25

The North Carolina Press Institute will meet here January 23-25, it was decided by the executive committee of the N. C. Press association, meeting yesterday morning in President Graham's office.

Bolivia Magazine Describes Latest American Arms In Attractive Terms

By PETE IVEY

"There will be wars and rumors of wars," and the magazine, Bolivia, to be found in the library, abounds in both.

Containing advertisements of American munition makers, Bolivia presents everything from tear gas to dirigible bombs in its advertising columns, and many of the most readable features of the magazine concern the Chaco War between Bolivia and Paraguay.

On the inside front cover is an advertisement of the Curtiss-Wright Airplane Export Company. A picture of the latest Curtiss-Wright "Osprey" military plane appears. Beneath it is the following caption: "A considerable quantity of these planes are being used in the air forces of a number of Latin-American countries." The ad continues in rapturous recitation of the maneuverability of the plane and its virtues for fighting.

Elsewhere, under the display caption, "Federal Gas Munitions," occurs a list of war implements. These include gas weapons, bullet-proof vests, armor plate shields, sub-machine guns, gas masks, aerial bombs, mortars, and smoke screen apparatus. Under this is the inviting sentence, "Write for descriptive catalogue."

Remington rifles and Colt automatic pistols are advertised as handy and inexpensive.

The American Armament Corporation of America, located in New York City, advertised its wares in the following way: "We are manufacturers and purveyors of aerial bombs, grenades, field, naval, anti-aircraft and airplane guns. Artillery ammunition of the most advanced designs for all types of American and European guns, rifles, machine guns and war vessels."

'Y' TO CONSIDER CURES FOR WAR

Professors Woodhouse and Pegg To Talk on Militarism and Nationalism Tomorrow.

Professors E. J. Woodhouse and Carl H. Pegg will continue the series of Y. M. C. A. discussions on war and peace at the sophomore and junior-senior cabinet meetings tomorrow night at 7:15 o'clock in the "Y" building, taking up cures for armed conflicts.

Professor Woodhouse will lead the discussion in the sophomore group on "Defense of Militarism," and Dr. Pegg will discuss "Nationalism: Is it the Way Out," in the junior-senior group.

Joint Supper

A brief pause will be made in the war and peace discussions October 29, when a joint outdoor meeting is scheduled at which members of "Y" groups from the Woman's college and State college will be invited.

This convocation will be the first Greater University of North Carolina "Y" meeting this year, but plans are being made to follow up the idea with additional sessions of this type.

Following the break in the series, the war and peace meetings will continue with "Is Socialism a Cure for War," on November 5. Dean Elbert Russell of Duke University will speak on the Monday following Armistice Day on "Should Christians Support War."

The remainder of the fall quarter meetings will be on disarmament, armed intervention, and international co-operation.

YACKETY YACK MEN

The student activities division of the Yackety Yack will meet tomorrow afternoon at 3:00 o'clock, it was announced yesterday.

The following are requested to be present: Dave Thorpe, Bob Howison, Bryan Caldwell, T. Daniel, W. C. Blackmore, Frank Justice, and Margaret McCauley.

LATE BULLETIN

Raleigh, Oct. 20.—(UP)—State Superintendent of Public Instruction Allen died late this afternoon of kidney disorders at Rex hospital.

Special Notice

On behalf of the University club, Jake Snyder, chairman of the Homecoming Day committee, desires to thank Chapel Hill merchants and townspeople, the student body, the alumni, and the athletic association for the whole-hearted co-operation in making the Homecoming celebration a success.

COUNCIL TO HAVE PICNIC TOMORROW

Dr. English Bagby Will Talk at Weiner Roast for Freshman Friendship Council.

Members of the Freshman Friendship council will meet at 6:15 o'clock tomorrow night at the Y. M. C. A. building to go on a hot dog roast.

The weiner roast will be in the woods behind the home of Harry F. Comer in Westwood.

Bagby to Speak

Opportunities for fellowship will be the feature of the program, and Dr. English Bagby of the psychology department will make a brief address.

The meeting will be presided over by Jimmy Coan, president of the Freshman Friendship council, and other members of the cabinet will take part in the program.

Jack Pool, adviser to the first-year Y. M. C. A. council, urges all members of the cabinet to be at the "Y" promptly at 6:15 o'clock so that the entire group may walk out together.

Phi Creates New Office of Efficiency Expert

Speaker Robert Smithwick Will Make Appointment.

The Phi assembly will have a new officer, efficiency expert, to be appointed by Speaker Robert Smithwick.

The efficiency expert will conduct debates and deal with criticisms rising from the debates. The new officer is expected to change the form of the discussion of bills.

Representative Winthrop Durfee introduced the motion to create the new office. Passing it at the last meeting by a large majority, the assembly gave Speaker Smithwick power to appoint the officer.

KIDNAPER FACES ORDEAL CALMLY

Hauptmann Jokes with Guards While Awaiting Trial for Murder in New Jersey.

Flemington, N. J., Oct. 20.—(UP)—Housed in a bare cell on the second floor of Flemington's mob-proof jail, Hauptmann tonight calmly awaited arraignment on charges of murdering and kidnaping the Lindbergh baby.

The alien carpenter, who was brought here last night a few hours after his fight against extradition met a final defeat, will probably be arraigned Monday, it was indicated.

Appeal Debated

Hauptmann's appeal over Bronx Justice Hammer's refusal to grant a writ of habeas corpus after Governor Lehman had signed the extradition papers was denied by the appellate division of the New York supreme court last night.

Appearing less perturbed than at any time since his arrest in New York a month ago on charges of extortion in connection with the Lindbergh case, Hauptmann joked with his guards, ate and slept, and seemed ready for the ordeal which may end in the electric chair.

DUKE PROFESSOR TO TALK TONIGHT

Dr. Elbert Russell to Speak Here at Union Service.

Dr. Elbert Russell, dean of the school of religion at Duke University, will speak at the Methodist church tonight at 8:00 o'clock on "What My Religion Means to Me."

This is the beginning of a series of six special Sunday night services at the Methodist church. The church will invite a theologian, a scientist, a business man, a Catholic, a Negro, and a Jew to speak at these services on this same subject, "What My Religion Means to Me."

These programs will be union services. They are sponsored by the Methodist, Baptist and Presbyterian churches of Chapel Hill.

There will be a discussion period at the close of the address each Sunday night.

The public is cordially invited to these special services.

Former Playmakers Are Prominent In Broadway And "The Provinces"

The house lights dim, the music fades out from a crash to a whine, the audience stops rustling and murmuring—it is the moment before the curtain goes up. This drama within a drama is enacted hundreds of times every night all over the country—and often the curtain goes up on people who got their dramatic training in Chapel Hill with the Carolina Playmakers.

Sheppard Strudwick, whose work was reviewed in a recent DAILY TAR HEEL article, heads the list. He, however, is not the only home-grown actor playing leads at present. Bill Clifford, who left two years ago, is playing leads in Claire Tree Major's company. At present, he's in "Under the Lilacs."

Our Little Eva

Eugenia Rawls, who rose to fame here as "Little Eva" in "Uncle Tom's Cabin," has traveled with a children's Theatre company, also sent out by Claire Tree Major. During the past

Ehringhaus Opens Homecoming Program With Open Air Address

Murchison Visits Chapel Hill Over Week-end

"Strictly Pleasure Trip," He Says; Leaves Tomorrow.

Dr. Claudius T. Murchison, director of the federal bureau of foreign and domestic commerce and formerly a member of the University commerce school faculty, is a visitor in Chapel Hill this week-end.

Dr. Murchison arrived from Washington Friday night and attended the Carolina-Kentucky Homecoming game yesterday. "Here on no official business," he said. "Simply to have a good time this week-end."

The former economics professor will, however, go to Durham tomorrow where he will address the Rotary club on reciprocal tariff agreements at a luncheon. He plans to return to his duties in Washington tomorrow afternoon.

JURY CHARGES 3 STOLL KIDNAPERS

Mrs. Stoll's Testimony Brings Speedy Indictment by Federal Grand Jury.

Louisville, Oct. 20.—(UP)—A special Federal grand jury today indicted three persons in connection with the kidnaping of Mrs. Alice Speed Stoll after hearing the testimonies of Mrs. Stoll and others involved in the crime.

Mrs. Robinson, Jr., and Robinson, Sr., who were indicted along with Mrs. Robinson's husband, are now held in jail here.

Quick Action

The jury acted quickly after Mrs. Stoll testified for more than a half-hour as to the treatment she received at the hands of her abductors.

This was the first public appearance that the young Louisville society matron has made since she was returned home.

Meanwhile Robinson himself is the subject of extensive manhunt as Federal and state authorities keep a close watch on the Canadian border as numerous reports indicate that the insane kidnaper has turned his flight northward.

N. C. Leaders Welcome Alumni and Kentucky Governor and Other Notables Address Crowd of 2,000 in Franklin Street.

With a hearty welcome to Carolina's alumni, students, and friends, Governor John C. B. Ehringhaus, delivering the principal address to an assembled throng of 2,000 gathered on the main street of Chapel Hill, officially opened Homecoming Day exercises here yesterday morning.

The governor opened by complimenting the cheering of the students, who had just completed a series of "spell Carolina" and "spell Kentucky" yells. "In many ways," said the governor, "Carolina is the same. But when I was a student here we joined in giving the new students a rousing welcome, which usually lasted from sundown of their first day till the following morning. The faculty had a polite word for it. They called it hazing. But with the rise of Archibald Henderson and the advent of polysyllabic words over monosyllabic words, hazing was changed to 'helping freshmen get oriented.'

"Your president will probably tell you that the reason for his late arrival today was the meeting that he attended in Asheville," said the governor adding a touch of humor, "but there is no doubt in my mind that he was telling the story of Mrs. Spencer's bell-ringing to the football team.

Welcomes Alumni

"All we can say to you," said the governor in conclusion, "is that we looked for your coming to Chapel Hill, and we welcome you."

Governor Ehringhaus, who was editor of the DAILY TAR HEEL in 1901, the year of his graduation from the University, was co-author of Carolina's Alma Mater song, "Hark the Sound."

Major L. P. McLenden, manager of the Carolina football team on 1912, and former mayor of Chapel Hill, was the first speaker introduced by Master of Ceremonies Carl Goerch. He recalled how his old Negro servant, Bill Craig, who worked for him during his stay here, describes the police by saying: "Mr. Mayor, I think the law is just too darn scrutinizing.

"Chapel Hill," said Major McLenden, "is as old as the oldest state University, and as young as its freshman class. Today all of us will be rejuvenated, some in spirit, some with spirits. But all of us will feel at home."

House Speaks

Executive Dean R. B. House spoke for the University in "saluting her sister institution in Greensboro and her brother institution in Raleigh on this Homecoming Day."

Speaking for the student body of Carolina, Virgil Weathers of Shelby, president of the student body and outstanding southern athlete, extended an official welcome to the visitors in Chapel Hill.

Lieutenant-Governor Sandy Graham, graduate of 1912, and a trustee of the University, also addressed the group.

Following the governor's greeting, President Frank Gra-
