"Pretty Boy" Floyd's Death Ends Search for Perpetrators of Massacre of Four Officers.

STRUCK BY 14 BULLETS

East Liverpool, Ohio, Oct. 22.—(UP)—Charles "Pretty Boy" Floyd, prairie desperado, was shot down by Federal agents here late today.

Floyd died as the result of a relentless search by operatives of the United States department of justice who shot to kill as soon as they saw the outlaw.

The notorious Oklahoma gunman lies tonight on a slab in a local funeral parlor with 14 bullet holes in his back and sides. Hundreds of townspeople, many of whom served on the posses searching for him, struggled to view the body.

Killed Four Officers

With Floyd's death, Melvin Purvis, ace department of justice man who got Dillinger, virtually ended the search for the perpetrators of the Union Station massacre in Kansas City where four Federal officers and a prisoner were felled by Floyd and his cohorts.

Police found Floyd near the farm of Mrs. Ellen Conkle, seven miles north of here.

While searching the surrounding woodland, they saw Floyd about to enter the car of Stuart Dukes, brother of Mrs. Conkle, and recognized him.

The bandit made for nearby woods but was pursued and shot down by Purvis and his men. A few minutes later he was dead.

Floyd had last been seen near Wellsville, Ohio, where he escaped after a gun battle with Chief J. H. Fultz and two citizens who sought to arrest him.

At this encounter, Floyd's companion, Richetti, was taken and is now held at Wellsville where he denies that the man who escaped was Floyd.

After breaking loose, Floyd appropriated a car belonging to George MacMillan, who reported that the gunman had two bullet

Estimated That Betting Reaches $1,000,000 Mark Each Week; Grads Heavy Bettors.

New York, Oct. 22.—(UP)—An unprecedented wave of betting on college football is sweeping the United States.

A United Press survey completed tonight disclosed that a wagering fever unequalled in football history from the day Princeton played Rutgers in America's first intercollegiate game back in the sixties, has gripped every section of the country.

Betting on each week's crop of football contests completely overshadows that on the entire World Series, according to those who make the sport their business.

Here in New York, the betting may be done with all the dignity attendant upon buying cotton bales, wheat futures, or blocks of Tel. and Tel.

$100,000 Turnover

Robert Darnell Company, a brokerage firm of nearly 20 years' standing, reports that it's a dull week which does not see a turnover of $100,000. This money represents wagers ranging from $20 each to $1,000. It covers all contests in which there is any serious fan interest.

The Darnell Company makes no bets itself.

"We'll accept any bet, no matter how large," a representative of the company told the United Press. "But we get a 'coverer' for it. We don't risk any of our money. Our profits come from the 5 per cent commission."

Darnell, incidentally, should show a neat balance in black ink. Figure it up: 5 per cent of one hundred thousand comes out right close to $5,000 which would

Anti-War Conference Planned

"Call to Action" Issued to Campus Organizations; Demonstration Is Scheduled to Take Place November 9 and 10.

A "call to action" has been issued to campus organizations to co-operate in an anti-war conference to be held here November 9 and 10, under the instigation and auspices of the American League Against War and Fascism.

Bill Levitt, Carolina freshman and local representative of the league, recently sent notices to campus groups asking them to send delegates to an arrangements committee meeting next Tuesday night in Gerrard hall. Levitt at that time will discuss the plans for the conference and the committee will arrange details.

Endorsed by Leaders

The conference, which has been endorsed on this campus by Harry F. Comer, A. T. Dill, Joe Sugarman and Ralph Gardner, will be one of many planned on most of the major American institutions, according to Levitt. A country-wide organization is now at work in preparation for the various gatherings.

Last spring considerable interest was manifested on the campus in the problems of war, embracing a movement culminating in the establishment of the Foreign Policy league, of which Gardner is president.

This year the Y. M. C. A., through cabinet meetings and public programs, has endeavored

BANKERS ATTACK 'FIRESIDE' SPEECH

Roosevelt Unfair in Criticism of Bankers, Annual Convention in Washington Says.

Washington, Oct. 22.—(UP)—The American Bankers' association at its annual convention here tonight said that Roosevelt's "fireside" criticism several weeks ago was uncalled for and unfair.

Robert M. Hanes, Winston-Salem banker, was the first to accuse the administration and press, saying that their failure to distinguish between the good and bad banks had made the position and work of all bankers more difficult.

President Roosevelt's high praise of British bankers also came in for a great deal of criticism.

The convention was of the opinion that the President had unjustly accused American bankers of not co-operating with the government in its debts and had been wrong in lauding English financiers when they hold only 11 per cent of their government's debt.

More than four thousand bankers of the United States are here tonight to participate in the important sessions of the convention.

Internationalism Is Goal, Speakers Say

Pegg Condemns Nationalism While Woodhouse Upholds It If "It Is Properly Used."

"Nationalism is an emotional fusion of nationality and patriotism," stated Dr. Carl H. Pegg last night at a joint meeting of the sophomore and junior-senior Y. M. C. A. groups, in a discussion of "Nationalism: Is It the Way Out?"

Professor E. J. Woodhouse, University professor of government, also aided in the discussion.

"To be a way out, nationalism has to be made a stepping stone to internationalism, and internationalism is sure to come," Pegg went on.

Nationalism Detrimental

"So far down through history, the fruits of nationalism have been detrimental. Nationalism has given rise to narrowness and uniformity. It has directed the attentions of the people to war and preparedness for armed conflicts," he said.

Nationalism has also given rise to a new imperialism and has bound itself up with militarism, according to Pegg.

In his discussion of the definition of nationalism, Pegg stated that "patriotism" was an old characteristic of people, but that "nationality" was a comparatively recent force.

Woodhouse Speaks

In discussing nationalism and war, Woodhouse pointed out that it was just as easy for nations to settle arguments with armed force as it was for individuals to adjust disputes with their fists.

"Nationalism is a good principle if used properly," Professor Woodhouse said in considering the question as to whether nationalism could form a foundation for internationalism and world peace.

"To pave the way for internationalism, people have to treat nationalism with intelligence, not with emotionalism," he added.

"Only one person in a thousand is informed on international questions," Woodhouse said. This is the reason why people allow the armament firms, the merchants of death, to ply their
