

PHI DELTA THETA QUARANTINED BY INFIRMARY ORDER

Whole House Under Seven-Day
Quarantine Due to Munyan's
Developing Scarlet Fever.

NO CAUSE FOR ALARM

Members of the local chapter of Phi Delta Theta have been confined under a seven-day quarantine placed on them following the development of scarlet fever by one member of the fraternity.

The afflicted student, John Munyan, is in the infirmary with a slight case of the disease. Unless the malady breaks out among the other members of the group, they will be released from the quarantine next Thursday.

To Receive Test

The confined students will be given the Dick test today. This test is given to ascertain the susceptibility of anyone to scarlet fever. Any member who shows by the test that he is immune will be released from quarantine.

"Since the use of scarlet fever anti-toxin has become common the severity of the disease has been considerably lessened," said Dr. Berryhill yesterday, "and scarlet fever is not one of the diseases most easily caught from contact." He stressed the fact that there is no need for alarm.

It was announced late yesterday that University officials will make necessary arrangements for the quarantined students to make up all class work which will be missed during the quarantine period.

UNIVERSITY CLUB NOT TO SPONSOR CHEERING RALLY

Co-ed Dance and Freshman Game
Conflict with Plans.

The University club met last night in its club room in Graham Memorial and decided not to sponsor a pep rally tonight. Since so many students will be occupied with the co-ed dance, and many will be going to Greensboro for the night game between the Carolina freshman and the N. C. State first-year men, it was deemed advisable to call the rally off.

Instead of having the rally, it was decided to send Lester Ostrow, chief cheerleader, and Francis Campbell, an assistant, to Greensboro to lead cheering at the game there.

The club unanimously voted down a request presented by the American League against War and Fascism that it send a representative to a local convention of that organization next month.

Several members paid their fee for the Yackety Yack picture and those who were not at the meeting are asked to pay that fee to Roy Wilder, treasurer, as soon as possible.

Frank Willingham, president, thanked all members for the fine work done on the Homecoming program.

Infirmary

Speaks in Chicago

Director To Address A. A. U. Convention

W. T. Couch, director of the University of North Carolina Press, will speak before a meeting of the Association of American Universities in Chicago today.

The subject of Couch's address will be "The University Press as an Aid to Scholarship." Couch received nation-wide fame last year as editor of "Culture in the South." He expects to be gone until November 1.

Lending Money Breaks Kingfish

Will Borrow from La. State Student Loan Fund to Send Students to Tennessee.

New Orleans, Oct. 25.—(UP)—It was rumored tonight in Louisiana political circles that Huey Long's using the football junket to Nashville means that he is announcing his candidacy for the Presidency of the United States on a "share the wealth" platform.

Baton Rouge, La., Oct. 25.—(UP)—Senator Huey P. Long, benefactor of Louisiana State University students, ran out of money when hundreds of students called at his hotel suite for seven dollar loans to follow the Tiger football team and the cadet regiment to Nashville, Tenn., this week-end.

"I'm all out of money and all my gang is too," said the Kingfish. "However, I've arranged to get it from a student loan fund out at the University."

Senator Long said Business Manager E. N. Jackson of the university would have funds available Friday for all the students who wish to make the trip.

"The Payoff"

Long, discussing his "payoff" yesterday when he "loaned" seven dollars to each of several hundred students to make the football junket, said he thought nearly every person to whom he supplied money would make the trip.

Meanwhile stories were current of townspeople who got loans, of boys who went three and four times and got enough to buy a new suit, or shop girls posing as co-eds to borrow money from the Kingfish.

Long said he supposed that "15 or 20 thieves were run in on me and I made some loans which did not go to students."

"But I don't think I lost more than a hundred dollars like that," he said. "I'd rather loan money to students than anybody in the world."

FOOTBALL COACH SPIKES REPORTS

Men Will Be in Good Condition
For State Game Tomorrow
Despite Poisoning.

Rumors that a half-dozen varsity football players would be unable to play tomorrow due to accidental poisoning were spiked last night when Coach Carl Snavely reported that the afflicted players were in fairly good condition and would be in good shape for the game.

The poisoning occurred when dye in the indelible ink used in numbering the jerseys ran when moistened and was absorbed into the blood of many members of the team. The jerseys had been freshly marked and the ink presumably had not dried sufficiently so that moisture spread the dye over the players' skin.

Analysis

Dr. Berryhill's technical analysis last night of the poisoning episode was as follows:

"Physiologically the condition is a result of the partial replacement of the hemoglobin (the part of the red blood cells which carries oxygen to the tissues) by a more stable compound of methemoglobin. This compound results on absorbing aniline dyes into the blood stream. The available oxygen supply to the tissues is reduced, a blue color of the lips, hands, and skin resulting. The symptoms of weakness, dizziness, headache, shortness of breath, and occasional nausea are evident."

The ink is being analyzed by Dr. McChesney of the medical school, as well as blood from some of the more severe cases.

Bicycle-U-Driveteer Invades Chapel Hill

He didn't ride twenty-three bicycles, one of them a "bicycle-built-for-two," all the way from Purdue. But somehow Mr. Phillips, bicycle-U-driveteer, arrived in the village Wednesday afternoon and parked twenty-three brown and blue vehicles in the front yard of the Tourist House next to Graham Memorial.

He is a slim, brown, out-door fellow with persuasive blue-gray eyes and he rents bicycles as though he had majored in bicycle-renting in his college days, a few years back. He has been in the business for a year, going into it because of the depression and the sudden increase in the popularity of bicycles.

Surprised

"I am surprised that the students here are not acquainted with bicycle riding. They seem to be puzzled and amused at my business. It's quite a rage up north, out west, and further south. While I was in Chicago this summer, everybody hired bicycles."

Phillips is on his way from Purdue University. From the time he arrived there until the evening he departed he seldom saw his bicycles, so quickly did the men and women students rent them out. Asked why he picked Carolina for his business, he said he had heard—(possibly from Agnew Bahnson?) of the appropriateness of Chapel Hill, with its woody lanes and level roads, for pedaling about. As soon as Jack Frost nips the noses and ears of his customers too severely he will journey, on his twenty-three bicycles, toward Florida.

LEAGUE TO HELP RELATIONS GROUP

Frazer and Griffin Speak at First Meeting of Foreign Policy
League This Year.

The Foreign Policy league, at its first meeting last night, decided to co-operate with the Human Relations Institute, which will meet this spring under the sponsorship of the University Y. M. C. A. An attempt will be made to secure some nationally known speaker for the session.

Outlining the policies of the group for the coming year, Dr. K. C. Fraser of the University faculty said that besides co-operating with the Institute, the league would unite with leagues on other camps in their work.

Griffin Speaks

Ezra Griffin, a student in the University, then gave a short talk on the article "Arms and the Man." In his discussion, Griffin told of the tremendous influence that the munitions corporations in various parts of the world exert over their respective governments. "Approximately $1,500,000,000 is spent annually for armaments," Griffin said.

The meeting was presided over by President Ralph Gardner, who appointed Francis Fairley as the group's representative to the first meeting of the local division of the American League Against War and Fascism.

President Gardner said that he was pleased to see such a large attendance and that he hoped more students would attend in the future. The meetings are open to all students.

Future programs will be decided upon by the executive committee, headed by Agnew Bahnson. An announcement of the future programs will be made shortly. It was decided by the group that meetings would be scheduled for 8:00 o'clock each Thursday evening.

Legionnaires Demand Immediate Payment

Miami, Oct. 25.—(UP)—The American Legion aimed its full strength tonight in opposition to two Rooseveltian policies by voting in favor of immediate bonus payment and opposing Russian recognition.

Claiming control of three million votes, the Legion overwhelmingly passed resolutions demanding immediate cash payment of the bonus and a withdrawal of Soviet recognition if Russia continues to disseminate communistic propaganda in America.

North Carolina cast her 19 ballots solidly for the bonus.

Frank Belgrano, San Francisco banker, succeeded Edward Hayes of Decatur, Ill., as national commander by a unanimous vote.

Co-ed Elections

Sallie Page of Chapel Hill was elected president of the co-ed freshman delegation yesterday afternoon at a special meeting of the class. She was unopposed for the office.

Ruth Greene of Washington, D. C., was also unopposed in the vote for vice-president of the class.

Virginia Lee of Lockport, N. Y., was elected secretary over Helen Poole, and Nell Booker of Chapel Hill won the election for treasurer over Jean Walker.

Resigns Position

Simmons Patterson, senior prominent in University activities, who yesterday announced his resignation from the office of chairman of the Human Relations Institute.

'R. U. R.' OPENS '34 PLAYMAKER YEAR

Rossum's Universal Robots Inaugurate Stage Season with Futuristic Comedy.

The Carolina Playmakers opened their current season last night with a presentation of Karl Capek's "R. U. R."

Performances are scheduled again for 8:30 o'clock tonight and tomorrow night.

Dr. Meno Spann, of the University German department, and Ellen Deppe, a new student at the University from the Biltmore Players in Asheville, are playing the leads in the Playmakers' production of this fantastic comedy. They are supported by an admirable cast of fifteen men and three women.

17-Piece Orchestra

The music department of the University, co-operating with the Playmakers, are lending a 17-piece student orchestra under the direction of Earl A. Slocum to furnish music for the production each night. The orchestra, under the name of the Carolina Concert orchestra, plays from the theatre's submerged pit.

The spectacular costuming and scenery effects of the production mark it as one of the most unusual things that the Playmakers have ever done for a Carolina audience. Sam Selden, of the Playmakers staff, directs the play; Wilbur Dorsett and Henry Pearson are in charge of the futuristic settings.

The theme of the play is the revolt of the machine age, a prophecy made when the play first appeared in 1923. Rossum's Universal Robots, for whom the play is named, rebel against their inventors and the result is hair-raising melodrama. The story of man's probable annihilation and his fight to perpetuate human life is a convincing social satire.

OUR ERROR

In yesterday's issue of the DAILY TAR HEEL, it was mentioned that "Dr. J. B. Crutchfield" would address Tau Beta Pi last night and that Dr. Archibald Henderson was president of the local chapter and would preside. Crutchfield has not received a doctor's degree and Dr. Henderson is in no way connected with the local chapter of Tau Beta Pi.

HUMAN RELATIONS GROUP CHAIRMAN RESIGNS POSITION

Too Much Work Forces Simmons
Patterson, Outstanding Senior,
to Quit Post.

NO SUCCESSOR IS NAMED

Simmons Patterson, prominent member of the senior class, resigned this week the chairmanship of the Human Relations Institute, it was announced here last night.

Patterson was elected to the position last spring and he would have been in charge of the Institute which will meet at the University, April 7-12, 1935.

He gave as a reason for his action the excessive amount of outside work that he was already doing, in addition to his heavy scholastic schedule preparatory to his entrance into the medical school next year. He felt that he could not successfully carry the responsibility of arranging for the Institute program due to these reasons.

No Successor Yet

No successor has yet been chosen for the post. Harry F. Comer, general secretary of the University Y. M. C. A., has been attempting to secure funds for carrying on the work from various philanthropic organizations including: the Carnegie Foundation, Phelps-Stokes Foundation, Weil Lecture Fund, and other such bodies.

These organizations will consider the University's proposals sometime this fall. A maximum budget of $5,000 has been set for the Institute.

When the Institute meets, the University will be host to the leading authorities in various fields from all over the United States.

DUKE COLLEGIANS TO PLAY TONIGHT FOR CO-ED DANCE

Bids to Go on Sale This Morning;
Number Unlimited.

Johnny Long and his Duke Collegians will play for the first co-ed ball of the year tonight in the Tin Can from 9:00 until 1:00 o'clock. The dance will be formal.

Bids for the affair may be secured from 9:30 until 11:00 o'clock this morning and from 2:00 until 5:00 o'clock this afternoon at the Women's association room in Graham Memorial. Bids will also be on sale on the first floor of Spencer hall tonight from 7:00 until 9:00 o'clock.

A limited number of bids will be on sale at the door for $1.00 each for purchase by men students, it was announced yesterday by Betty Durham, Women's association president.

Co-eds buy their bids and invite their escorts. This year as many bids as desired may be purchased, although in former years the co-eds have been restricted to two bids each.

One dance each quarter is given by the co-eds. The date for the winter function has not been announced.

Union to Sponsor Poet

Graham Memorial will sponsor the appearance of James Stephens, Irish poet and novelist, in the Union Sunday afternoon, November 11. Stephens will also give a talk during the evening Monday, November 12.
