

ANNUAL GERMANS CONTINUE TODAY WITH TEA DANCE

Isham Jones' Orchestra Is Popular at Opening Affairs; Formal Dance Ends Set Tonight.

DANCE TO FOLLOW GAME

The annual fall German Club dances continue today after the Duke-Carolina football game with a tea dance from 5 to 7 o'clock in the Tin Can.

The final dance of the series, formal, begins tonight at 9 o'clock, ending at 12 o'clock.

Jones Makes Hit

Isham Jones, who, according to statements by some of those present, has one of the best bands ever to play on this campus, is furnishing the music for the dances.

The Tin Can has been attractively decorated for the occasion in red and black.

Tribute was paid to the popular orchestra yesterday afternoon when everybody sat down and listened for a while instead of dancing.

Leaders Tonight

Leading the dance tonight will be: Bob Drane, Zeta Psi, leader, accompanied by Miss Margaret Lewis, Durham; Garvin May, Kappa Sigma, assistant leader, accompanied by Miss Celeste Moore, Athens, Georgia; and Alec Hanes, Delta Kappa Epsilon, assistant leader, accompanied by Miss Jane Hess Weaver, High Point.

Bids for graduate students, alumni and Duke visitors will be on sale at the door.

The annual set opened yesterday afternoon with a tea dance from 4:30 to 6:30 o'clock in the Tin Can.

Following the tea dance the formal sophomore German ball was held last night from 9 to 1 o'clock at the same place.

Heading the sophomore German last night were: Henry

Notables Expected At Game

Ehringhaus and Two Former Governors of North Carolina, Presidents of Rival Universities Will Head List of Visitors.

Two former governors of North Carolina, as well as the present chief executive, the Hon. J. C. B. Ehringhaus, are expected to be on hand this afternoon for the Duke-Carolina football game.

Hon. A. W. McLean of Lumberton, governor during 1924-28, and Hon. O. Max Gardner of Washington, D. C., governor from 1928-32, are among those who will occupy the guest box on the north side of Kenan stadium.

President W. P. Few of Duke University and President Frank P. Graham of the Greater University of North Carolina will probably see the game between their schools also from the guest box.

The deans of the two schools, Dean W. H. Wannamaker of Duke and Dean R. B. House of Carolina, are expected to be there, with Dean W. C. Jackson of the Woman's College in Greensboro and Dean J. W. Harrelson of the University at Raleigh.

Trustees

The Board of Trustees of the University will be represented by Col. J. F. Burton, chairman, of Wilson; and J. Sprunt Hill, of Durham. The recently appointed archivist for the United States, R. D. W. Connor, with Mrs. Connor, of Washington, D. C., will probably be present, as will Judge Walter P. Stacy of Raleigh, chief justice of the North Carolina Supreme Court and head of the recently created federal labor relations board.

RED CROSS PLANS PRE-GAME PARADE

Players, Legionnaires, Bands, Scouts and Co-ed to March.

Immediately before the opening kick-off of the Carolina-Duke game today the Chapel Hill chapter of the American Red Cross, with the assistance of the combined Duke and Carolina bands, will stage a parade across the playing field.

The American and state flags will lead the parade, with an American Legion color guard. Playing the part of a Red Cross nurse and accompanied by two small children, Miss Alta Mae Simms, a Carolina co-ed, will come next.

A huge Red Cross flag will follow, borne by 11 members of the freshman football team, wearing red jerseys with the Red Cross emblem on them.

A patrol of Boy Scouts, carrying stretchers, will march after the flag; and the Duke and Carolina bands will bring up the rear.

SERVICE TONIGHT HONORS VENABLE

Birthday of Late Francis Preston Venable Will Be Commemorated This Evening.

A commemorative program honoring the birthday of the late Dr. Francis Preston Venable, noted chemist and former president of the University, will be held this evening in Gerrard hall at 8 o'clock.

Dr. H. M. Wagstaff, chairman of the program committee for the memorial services, announced the speakers as Dr. Charles H. Herty of New York and Dr. Henry V. Wilson of the University faculty.

Associates to Speak

Dr. Herty, a former member of the teaching staff here, will present Dr. Venable as a scientist in an address on "The Enduring Satisfaction of Research." Dr. Wilson will recall the late president as a colleague speaking on "Dr. Venable as I Knew Him."

The memorial service committee is composed of Dr. Wagstaff, chairman, Dr. Wilson, Dr. J. M. Booker, Dr. W. C. Coker, and Dr. A. S. Wheeler.

Dr. Herty wishes to meet any old friends of Dr. Venable at the home of Dr. Wheeler at 714 East Franklin street after the program.

FOOTBALL CROWD TO BREAK RECORD

Shepard Expects 30,000; General Admissions Left.

Although the estimate of the Charlotte Observer for the crowd which will attend the Duke-Carolina game does not exactly agree with that released by athletic association officials, there will be a record number of people in Kenan stadium today.

The sale of reserved seats fell off somewhat yesterday. Approximately three sections of reserved seats remain unsold.

Coach "Bo" Shepard places the number of spectators at between 27,000 and 30,000.

Infirmary List

These students were confined in the infirmary yesterday: Meares Harris, Tom Jimison, Felix Hamrick, M. E. Smith, D. W. Frye, Paul Whitney, Helen Rosser, C. H. Thurman, John Munyan, C. W. Blackwell, J. C. Dillon, and F. W. Ashley.

SPONSORS NAMED FOR GAME TODAY

Virgil Weathers to Welcome Duke Visitors; Burke of Duke Will Make Reply.

Sponsors for the Duke-Carolina game were announced yesterday by Jake Snyder, chairman of the arrangements committee. The sponsors will be presented between the halves of today's game.

A welcome to the Duke student body will be extended by President Virgil Weathers at the same time on behalf of the University, and Bill Burke, president of the student body at Duke, will make a reply of acceptance.

Duke Sponsors

The following have been named as sponsors for Duke University: Miss Beatrix Tennis, Washington, D. C., with Bill Burke of Meriden, Conn.; Miss Sue Powell, Gastonia, with Sam Bell of Charlotte, who represents the O.D.K. fraternity and the Red Friars, the two highest honorary societies on the Duke campus.

Miss Anita Knox, Manhasset, L. I., president of the Duke Woman's Association, with Byron Hawks of New York City; and Miss Hazel Emery, Jacksonville, Fla., sponsor for the Duke football team, with Bill Siceloff of High Point.

Carolina Sponsors

Sponsors for North Carolina are: Miss Elizabeth Hewitt, Shelby, with Virgil Weathers, Greensboro, with Frank Abernethy, Greensboro, president of the Golden Fleece and the Order of the Grail.

Miss Lucy James, Greenville, N. C., with Frank Willingham, Winston-Salem, president of the University Club; Miss Maryellen Holbrook, Van Wert, Ohio, sponsor for the Carolina football team, with Frank Sisson, Potsdam, N. Y.

Flowers for the sponsors have been presented by Doyle, Florist, of Chapel Hill and Durham.

Louisiana Hails Huey I, King In "Land Of Free"

Baton Rouge, La., Nov. 16.—(UP)—Realizing a life-long ambition, Huey Long put the finishing touches on his political masterpiece tonight and assumed the powers of a monarch over the two and one quarter million of his subjects in Louisiana.

Commenting on his victory, Huey pronounced it "the greatest triumph for human uplift and sober government this country has ever witnessed."

King Huey's Corpus Legis

The cause for this modest statement by "King Huey" came when his subservient state legislature obediently enacted no less than 44 new laws, extending Long's dictatorship over every village, farm, and cross-road in Louisiana.

The constables, police, public utility corporations, tax and election machinery, even down to the commissions which pick juries in New Orleans and the men who serve warrants for arrests, were placed at the end of the strings held by "Huey I."

"Share the wealth" is Huey's slogan. "Sock the rich, especially the big corporations, and give the little man a chance" is his creed.

Carolina Rooters Yell, Shout "Beat The Devil Out Of Duke"

SPONSORS' NOTICE

Sponsors for the Carolina-Duke game and their escorts will meet in the North Lounge of Graham Memorial this afternoon at 1 o'clock. It is imperative that they meet promptly to go to the stadium in a body.

Anti-war Group Did Not Condemn Red Cross

Motion to Withdraw Support Was Tabled, Not Passed.

The action taken Thursday night by the local anti-war group concerning the charges made against the American Red Cross in the November issue of the American Mercury has brought a response from R. M. Grumman, chairman of the Chapel Hill chapter of the Red Cross.

Mr. Grumman's statement reads: "Two of the headings of the anti-war group story appearing in the DAILY TAR HEEL yesterday are misleading in that the motion referred to was tabled rather than being passed, as the headings indicated."

"Because of recently published statements derogatory to the American Red Cross I wish to announce that the local chapter will be glad to make available to anyone interested factual information concerning the national organization."

The DAILY TAR HEEL acknowledges the mistake made by its deskmen in placing misleading headings on the story.

Notice: Red Cross

All students who solicited Red Cross memberships are asked to hand in their reports to the "Y" office immediately.

"Act Like Gentlemen" Asks Harper Barnes

Judge Reeves of Greensboro, Coach Bob Fetzer, and Virgil Weathers Other Speakers.

WEATHERS: "WE'LL WIN"

A bonfire-lit Emerson stadium filled with the enthusiasm of 1,500 loudly cheering students last evening gave vent to Carolina's hopes for a victory over arch-enemy Duke this afternoon.

Led by Head Cheerleader Ostrow and his assistants, the student pep meeting proved the noisiest and most successful of the year.

Coach Bob Fetzer, representing the coaching staff, claimed that Carolina's team will be fused into a unit pulling for Carolina against Duke. "There will be two games going on out there tomorrow," he said, "one out there on the gridiron and one in the stadium."

Happiest College in South

Virgil Weathers, president of the student body, urged that the students support the good playing of both teams with their cheering.

"If we beat Duke, there is no doubt that we will be the happiest college in the south," Weathers said. "It is my firm conviction that we are going to win tomorrow. So let's go out there and leave every bit of dignity we have up in our rooms," he concluded.

Judge "Scrubby" Rives, class of '22 and announced as cheerleader for four years, said that if Carolina plays tomorrow like she did against Tech, "we're going to upset the dope and beat the devil out of Duke."

Harper Barnes requested that Carolina students act like college men and not like a group of high school boys.

Duke And Carolina Renew Rivalry Of Half Century

University and Trinity First Met on Gridiron in 1888; "Bandy" Or "Shinny" Only Game Corresponding to Football to Have Been Played Before Then; Sport Forbidden.

By DONOH HANKS

The ancient rivalry which will be renewed here today when the Duke Blue Devils meet the University of North Carolina eleven dates back 46 years, when Duke was Trinity College and spirit between Trinity and Carolina students flamed so high that football was forbidden at Chapel Hill.

The Trinity football team and the Tar Heels met for the first time in the winter of 1888.

Until then, football was played much as it is described in "Tom Brown at Rugby," with as many playing as were willing to engage in it. The custom of a limited number of men on each side was not at all common, and at Trinity and Carolina until about 1880 was unknown. The game, before the day of intercollegiate contests, was played on the campuses, two captains choosing up sides after matching a coin or tossing a stick for first choice.

The game was extremely rough, rivaling an older sport of bandy, or shinny, which was vigorous form of hockey adopted by students from Scottish highland immigrants in North Carolina. Football rapidly supplanted shinny and gave quite as much outlet for the collegiate desire to break a nose or an arm.

Carolina Defeated

The Trinity team soundly walloped Carolina in the first encounter. Neither team knew much about football, although the Trinity players had the advantage of having been coached by their college president, Dr. Crowell, who has a graduate of Yale and had played football there in his undergraduate days. The Trinity team was led by Captain Tom Daniels, former state commander of the American Legion.

The players at the University were accustomed to playing in interclass games at Chapel Hill, and had often chosen up sides for an afternoon of sport, but this was their first year of intercollegiate play.

The University team, before meeting Trinity, had already lost one game to Wake Forest. Carolina team members sent for printed rules of the game, and after two weeks of practice under the rules without a coach, met Trinity ingloriously. Captain Bragaw of the Carolina team was severely injured.

The need of a coach was seen

Relativity's Dr. Henderson Is Authority On Football

Einstein-Theorist Is Among Most Enthusiastic Followers of Great American Sport; Abandons Time-Space Calculations Each Week-end to Watch Activities of Country's Gridsters.

By LOUIS GRAVES, Editor
The Chapel Hill Weekly

Just after nightfall on every Saturday evening at this season of the year a tall, slender man with an eager look is to be seen walking back and forth along the short stretch of sidewalk between the Sutton drugstore and the Gooch cafe. He looks up and down the street, and he has the air of impatiently waiting for somebody. All at once his face lights up with happiness.

The man is Archibald Henderson, and the reason he is happy is that he has heard the first shout of the newsboy bearing the Pink Edition of the Durham Sun. This is the edition that carries the reports of the afternoon's football games. When Mr. Henderson has bought his paper he takes a stand beside the nearest lit-up show-window and proceeds to read. For the next few minutes he is far away from Chapel Hill. He is a spectator in one grandstand after another—in the south, in California, in the middle west, in New York and New England—thrilled by the assaults upon the line, the sweeps around the end, the blocking and the tackling, the passes and the punts.

For a long time I have marveled at the vast volume of work that this man manages to get done, and the marvel grows now that I learn of the attention he gives to football. The session with the Pink Edition is only the beginning of the orgy. He reads the more detailed reports Sunday morning, in one of the North Carolina dailies; his Sunday New York Times arrives Monday and after the midday meal he buries himself in the football pages of that journal; and Tuesday he reads football again in the Sunday New York Herald Tribune which has been passed along to him by his sister, Mrs. Lyman Cotten. He reads not only the news of the matches, but the comments of sports editors—Jake Wade and Mitchell and Haney and McKevlin here in the state, and Kieran in New York, and I don't know how many more. And now and then I hear him mention having read some football article in a magazine.

From conversations with him,
