

Noted Violinist Will Appear Here On Entertainment Series

Zimbalist Will Give Concert December 6

Musician Also Composer; Born In Russia But Is Now American Citizen.

HAS VARIETY OF INTERESTS

Efrem Zimbalist, one of the most famous violinists in the musical world today, will appear here in a concert December 6.

His appearance will be the second entertainment sponsored by the Student Entertainment Committee this quarter.

Although Russian by birth, Zimbalist is in many respects an American artist. He is an American citizen, makes his winter home in New York City and his summer home in Connecticut and has two children born in this country.

Debut in 1911

Zimbalist made his American debut on October 27, 1911, with the Boston Symphony Orchestra. On this occasion he played the Glazounow Concerto in A minor for the first time in America.

Since his debut he has also established himself as a composer. His most recent composition is a symphonic poem called "Daphnis and Chloe," which was given its world premiere by the Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra under Stokowski.

With all his passionate devotion to music, he has many other interests. His collection of rare editions of old books is considered remarkable by connoisseurs.

His prize is a dingy paper-covered book that looks ready for the waste basket. The storekeeper in a little shop in Adelaide, West Australia, remarked when Zimbalist asked him about it, "What, that old thing? You can have it for a shilling."

Zimbalist paid the shilling and left the shop. The book was a first edition of "Tales of a Grandfather" by Sir Walter Scott.

MUSIC COMPOSED FOR GREEN PLAY

Lamar Stringfield Writes New Musical Score for Playmakers' "Shroud My Body Down."

The production of Paul Green's "Shroud My Body Down" by the Carolina Playmakers next week will feature a new musical score by Lamar Stringfield, noted composer and director of the North Carolina Symphony Orchestra.

Stringfield has combined his original work with a number of old folk songs collected by Green into a very effective score, according to the production staff for the new play.

Admirably Suited

"The new music is admirably suited to the marionette-like action of several group scenes and adds much to the stylistic action throughout the play," stated Playmaker authorities.

The Carolina Concert orchestra, under the direction of Earl A. Slocum, will play the scores for the production from the theatre pit. Phoebe Barr is directing the dancing and ensemble movements.

Stringfield assisted Green with the musical scores for "Tread the Green Grass" which was produced elaborately at the University of Iowa several years ago.

Musician

Efrem Zimbalist, noted Russian violinist, who will appear here December 6 on the second program sponsored this quarter by the Student Entertainment Committee.

Harvard Refuses Mellon Donation

University Feels That German Traveling Scholarship Linked With That of Hanfstaengl.

Cambridge, Mass., Nov. 27.—(UP)—Harvard University has rejected a $1,500 German traveling scholarship offered by Matthew T. Mellon, Harvard divinity school student and nephew of former Secretary of Treasury Andrew Mellon, because the offer was linked with one made last summer by Dr. Ernst F. S. Hanfstaengl, Hitler aide.

The Hanfstaengl scholarship was rejected several months ago because of the connection of Hanfstaengl, Harvard '09, with a regime which has "struck at principles we believe to be fundamental to universities throughout the world."

Mellon, according to a statement by Secretary Jerome D. Green of the Harvard Corporation, "freely chose to identify his intentions so explicitly with those of Dr. Hanfstaengl . . . that the corporation felt compelled, after the most deliberate consideration and with every desire to do justice to Dr. Mellon, to decline the offer made by him."

The Harvard Crimson, which revealed the incident in a copyrighted story today, said it found in an October 11 issue of the "Deutsche Allgemeine Zeitung," a German newspaper, a printed cable sent by Mellon to Hanfstaengl reading: "As an American citizen, I should like to place my services at your disposal so that your good intentions will be acknowledged in America."

Mellon, Princeton graduate and holder of a Ph.D. from the University of Friedberg, plans to offer his scholarship again "with absolutely no strings attached," the Crimson says. He is already the donor of a $5,000 gift to the Harvard philosophy department.

"Christmas Carol"

Professor Frederick H. Koch is scheduled to go over the hundred mark this week when he reads again Dicken's memorable "A Christmas Carol."

You're Welcome

With this morning's issue the Daily Tar Heel discontinues publication during the Thanksgiving holidays (God bless 'em). Work will be resumed Monday and the next issue of this popular campus publication will appear Tuesday morning. Thank you.

PHI HAS ANOTHER STORMY MEETING

Assembly Rescinds Bill to Condemn Anti-War Conference; Will Not Aid Delegate.

In another stormy session last night, the Philanthropic Assembly voted down by a count of 22 to 16 the re-opened bill: Resolved, That the Phi Assembly condemn the work of the local Anti-war Conference.

Fines were levied right and left by Speaker Robert Smithwick, who stood fast in his opinion that the authority of the chair should not be questioned.

Illuminating Comments

The fact that communists were among those in membership of the local conference was again the basis for argument by proponents of the bill. "The communist plan calls for revolution," stated Representative Wylie Parker, "and that always calls for bloodshed."

Members enjoyed a good laugh when Speaker Smithwick referred to Representative Winthrop Durfee as "representative Dirtee." Other tidbits of repartee included: Representative Drew Martin: "The best boys on the campus belong to the Phi Assembly."

The assembly defeated by a vote of 24 to 21 a motion to aid financially in sending a delegate to Geneva as a representative of the University.

Pictures for the Yackety Yack were taken by Wooten-Moulton. Harper Barnes answered innumerable questions in regard to the Anti-war meeting, explaining that the Red Cross had never been condemned.

United States Relief Bill Is $7,500,000,000

Washington, Nov. 27.—(UP)—Relief and recovery have cost the United States government more than $7,500,000,000 to date, the treasury figures showed tonight.

More than half this sum, however, treasury officials said, would ultimately be recovered when the various recovery agencies had liquidated.

The total monetary cost of the depression to the United States government exclusive of lost tax revenues, was set by treasury experts at $7,523,928,063. However, $4,123,915,017 of this sum was listed by the treasury as "recoverable."

League Conciliation

Berlin, Germany, Nov. 27.—(UP)—A new conciliatory attitude and a willingness to return to the League of Nations seemed apparent in Nazi headquarters today, on the consideration that France and other allied World War powers overlook the Reich's re-armament.

Joachim von Ribbentrop, Hitler's special envoy, is returning from London this week in order to go to Paris next week to confer with Foreign Minister Laval concerning the matter.

ACTION BY POLICE HELD AS UNJUST BY MRS. O'BERRY

Asheville Arrest of 54 Transients Condemned by Relief Head.

Raleigh, Nov. 27.—(UP)—Mrs. Thomas O'Berry, state relief administrator, this evening protested the arrest of 54 men who were staying at the Asheville transient home earlier in the day.

Police gave as the cause of the arrest repeated hold-ups in the vicinity of the transient bureau. All were fingerprinted. W. J. Everett, Asheville chief of police, said, "We will hold the men until we hear from Washington as to the results of the fingerprints."

Mrs. O'Berry feels that the wholesale arrest was unjustified and outrageous. She said that she would protest to authorities against the police's entering the transient home without search and seizure warrants, and for illegally taking fingerprints of men charged with no specific crime.

Class Schedules

Class schedules showing the winter quarter, 1934-35, course offerings are expected to be available for unrestricted distribution in room 101, South building, during the week beginning December 3.

Every student is urged to come in and secure a copy of this course scheme so that he may be assisted in determining for himself the best possible course outline for the approaching quarter. Catalogues will be available for reference purposes at the same office.

Self-help students in particular can gain advantage from careful study of the schedule, adjusting their courses to suit their needs from the standpoint of outside work.

Fairley Heads Committee To Inspect Service Plants

Gridgraph Tomorrow

There will be a gridgraph of the Carolina-Virginia game in Memorial hall at 2 o'clock tomorrow, for the benefit of students remaining on the Hill during the holidays. A direct wire has been arranged to the Virginia stadium, and the progress of the game will be depicted on the gridgraph, play by play, a few seconds after each play has been run. Admission will be 25 cents.

Felix Grisette Said To Be Responsible For Securing Coach

Article by Louis Graves Tells How Grisette Became Familiar with Snaveley's Work.

"It is not generally known, but Felix Grisette is probably more responsible than any other one person for Carl Snaveley's being here," says Louis Graves in the current issue of the Chapel Hill Weekly.

Editor Graves points out that Mr. Grisette, now director of the Alumni Loyalty Fund, who became well acquainted with Coach Snaveley while working on a Pittsburgh newspaper, was the first person to suggest the new coach's name to members of the University Athletic Council. From then on, according to the Weekly's story, Mr. Grisette played a prominent part in the negotiations that led to the three-year contract which Coach Snaveley signed.

Reporter

"When he (Grisette) was a reporter for the Pittsburgh Gazette-Times, about seven years ago, the team of Bellefonte Academy, undefeated through two seasons, won national fame in school football circles. In the Christmas holidays it went on a tour of the southwest, and Grisette's paper sent him along."

"The Bellefonte coach was Carl Snaveley. The correspondent shared a room with him at every stop on the tour, and they became close friends. They kept up their friendship after Snaveley went from Bellefonte Academy to Bucknell College.

"Grisette made no move to bring Snaveley here until it was settled that there was to be a new coach. Then he urged the selection of Snaveley with all the persuasive powers at his command. The public was informed that Snaveley came here to confer with the committee, but it did not know that this was his second visit to Chapel Hill. He had made a visit a little while before, at his friend's invitation.

Detailed Information

"In the weeks that preceded the final decision, Grisette not only told the committeemen what he had observed of the Bucknell coach, but he saw to it that they received all the detailed information about his record.

"Therefore I should say that, when the final whistle blew in the Kenan stadium last Saturday, a small dark-haired spectator, whose name was never heard through the amplifiers, and who was unknown to most of the throng, had good reason to feel a personal pride in the result."

GROUP APPOINTED BY STUDENT HEAD

Begin with Investigation of Laundry; Hammer and Winslow Also on Committee.

With a tour through the University laundry, a student committee, appointed by Virgil Weathers, student body president, and headed by Francis Fairley, began an inspection of the entire University Consolidated Service yesterday.

The committee, which, in addition to Fairley, includes Phil Hammer and J. D. Winslow, was appointed upon the recommendation of the administration, and is to investigate the operation of plants, the method of procedure in bookkeeping and accounting, and the personnel of all branches of the Consolidated set-up.

Purpose

The purpose of the investigation, as outlined by Fairley last night, is to aid the students in gaining an unbiased viewpoint as to the aims and services of the Consolidated by means of this committee.

During the investigation, Fairley said, the student body will be kept informed of the progress through the medium of the DAILY TAR HEEL, and at the conclusion of the tours, a complete report will be made and published, whether it is favorable to the present set-up or not.

"After gaining a working knowledge of how the set-up works," said Fairley last night, "we are to make any recommendations we see fit."

Chairman Fairley welcomes the suggestion of any student who may desire to have certain phases of the Consolidated Service investigated.

The investigation will be resumed after the holidays Tuesday. Members of the committee will meet with Fairley at 2 o'clock on that day.

MANY FEATURES IN NEW ENGINEER

Current Issue of Carolina Engineer Will Be Distributed During Chapel Today.

The Carolina Engineer, magazine of the University engineering school, will be distributed during chapel period this morning in the halls of Venable and Phillips buildings and in the senior electrical room during the day.

Included in the issue will be articles on soil erosion, by Tom Gordy; a discussion of the activities of the water resources and engineering division of the department of conservation, by W. C. Morrison; a feature on a cotton mill that operates its own power plant entitled "Who Said It Will Not Pay?" by Dan Field.

Floating Road

The floating road, which is being constructed near Elizabeth City, by Jack Pruden; and civil engineering progress in China by Tsu-Yuan Koo, a Chinese student here, are also among the articles in this issue.

The magazine will also contain an editorial on engineering work and an activities section of the various engineering societies.
