

BRUNO IN BAKERY ON FATAL NIGHT

Wife Claims He Was at Home When Ransom Was Paid.

Flemington, N. J., Jan. 30.—(UP)—Two witnesses today testified that Bruno Hauptmann was in a bakery on the night of the kidnaping.

Mrs. Hauptmann claimed that he came after her at the bakery and took her home at 9:30 p. m.

Elbert Carlstrom said that March 1 was his birthday and that he visited the bakery of Christian Fredricksen in New York City, seeing Hauptmann there.

Mrs. Hauptmann also testified that her husband was home on the night that Jafsie paid the ransom money. State Prosecutor Wilentz will continue his cross-examination of Carlstrom tomorrow.

Consolidation

science curricula and industrial management, and graduate, are not complete and all tie together in the working out of both an educationally and functionally sound basis of consolidation.

"We are making progress in the business of trying to be fair and intelligent with an eye to the special values and functions of each institution and the long-run educational interests of the whole state.

Decisions Unanimous

"Thus far every decision made with regard to consolidation has been unanimous, whether recommended by the Commission on Consolidation and adopted by the board or made by the executive committee and ratified by the board or recommended by the president and the administrative council and adopted by the executive committee and ratified by the board."

President Graham said he "had hoped to make a recommendation at this meeting of the board for a principle and long-run plan of consolidation which would meet head on some of these remnant problems of the department of education and science and business, the major problem of engineering, and those allied and basic problems of the curriculum of the first two years, the curriculum of the second two years and the graduate years. These are all tied together. When we make a recommendation which is going to be so comprehensive as to include these problems, we should know the ground on which we stand and on which a whole university can stand in the highest and widest educational service through all the generations to come.

More Time Needed

"The acting chairman of the trustees committee on consolidation advised me that it was wise that we take until June to make our decision. The committee studying the departments of education reported they needed more time for so important a matter. The state committee on engineering at first leaned toward two engineering schools and then recommended by a six to five vote for the consolidation of the two schools in Raleigh. The committee of out-of-state experts had recommended consolidation at Chapel Hill.

"Committees on graduate studies are not yet ready for their recommendation. The administrative council, composed of the faculty representatives of all three institutions recommended that the decision with regard to the next step in consolidation be made in the June meeting.

"As one of the faculty representatives phrased it in interpreting the view from which there was no dissent, in a few more months we can likely hammer out a program and decision that will be fair, wise, and acceptable to the most thoughtful in all three institutions and the state.

"Such a consummation is devoutly to be wished and is worth waiting five months for, especially in view of the fact that even the most drastic decision possible would in fairness and intelligence take two years for adjustment."

Following President Graham's speech, the trustees took up the routine business of their annual meeting. The report of the committee on escheats was made by A. B. Andrews, chairman of the committee.

The board then heard the report of the finance committee, of which James A. Gray is chairman.

The trustees approved resolutions of respect to the memories

23-22 lead.

Score Tied

Red Meroney, Tar Baby center, fouled Rennie on the next play, and before a hushed gathering the State guard scored his lone tally of the night, with a clean toss that deadlocked the panting quintets at 23-all.

The extra period opened with Carolina jumping into a three point advantage, as Ruth converted two free tosses and Grubb duplicated with his single grat shot. However, Berry took matters into his own hands, opening with a pivot shot from underneath to score two points. He immediately tied the count by sinking a foul given him when Pete Mullis hurled himself into the State center in a vain attempt to regain the ball.

Berry then pivoted again with a minute to go to send his team into the lead for the first time since the opening whistle. He settled the tense issue by calmly netting the ball again on a foul, with but fitting seconds left on the time clock.

The frenzied final attempt to score by the Tar Babies was smothered by their rejuvenated opponents and halted by the gun, settling the doom of the formerly unbeaten frosh.

Berry ran wild on the court to take scoring honors with 17 points, and he was followed by Swan of his squad with 9.

Earl Ruth, playing his usual heady and remarkably smooth game, led the Carolina team with 9 tallies, five by the gratis route. Red Meroney followed with 6, and Mullis with 4 completed the high scoring for the Tar Babies.

The frosh team played an improved game and were sailing on smooth waters until the sudden bombardment in the dying moments. Potts, Boone and Grubb, the other Babies to see action, played splendid games, but it proved inadequate against the solo work of Berry and Swan.

Troop School

The next session of the 316th Field Artillery troop school for Chapel Hill and vicinity will be held tonight at 7:30 in Davie hall. The subject to be discussed is "Instruction Preparatory for C. M. T. C. Duty."

of Drs. Bell, Venable, Cobb, and Toy of the University at Chapel Hill; of Professor Whitener of State College; and of Mrs. Martin of the Woman's College.

In verbal reports on the situations at their respective institutions, Deans House, Harrelson and Jackson enlarged upon the details of President Graham's message.

Controller C. T. Woolen presented a report on the items of the budget request.

points. Aitken's eye was also on the basket as he dropped in four beautiful long shots plus a foul for nine.

Aside from these two, the rest of the Phantoms likewise played top ball all the way. Jason Glace had a great jumping and backboard duel with Flythe; both men turned in four points, although Flythe had to leave the game on fouls.

Lambeth Best Wolf

Lambeth was by far the shining light of the losing club, as he really went to town during the second half to run up nine points, 8 of them coming during State's successful 12-point rally. Lambeth topped both out-fits in scoring with 13 points.

Aycock, Lambeth's running mate, turned in a good game as did the entire Red Terror team. Aycock counted six points over Jim McCachren and then held his opponents while on the defense to only two points.

State Opens Hot

State took its 6-0 margin at the start as Lambeth, Flythe, and Aycock got successive shots. Here the Tar Heels came back with McCachren clearing the way. Glace made two fouls and Mack dropped in a clean long throw. Captain Snooks made good from left corner, and McCachren got a fast crisp and a free shot to run the count up to 9-6.

Flythe finished his scoring with a long one from the right corner, but McCachren shot a one-hander at full speed and Nelson got up steam with two beauties. McCachren dropped in a foul and then Lambeth broke loose under the basket for a crisp leaving the score 16-10 at the half gun.

Dalrymple and Lambeth swished long ones, before McCachren with a long one, Nelson with a free throw, and Paul Kaveny with a hook crisp could run the score up to 21-14. Here the Wolfpack showed the most fangs of the night as Aycock tallied from mid-court and then Lambeth got his three action shots in a row, all left-handed push baskets from the right side of the court.

With the count 22-21 against them, the White Phantoms, led by the forward combination, quickly pulled away. Nelson tied things up by making good on a foul. Aitken then got another long one and Nelson a beautiful hook from the right.

Aitken swished from the right corner, Nelson scored a free throw, and Captain Snooks put the ball in again as he charged toward the basket from the right side.

Here the rally stopped with Carolina leading as Lambeth made a foul and Aycock a beautiful action throw while being guarded. Glace and Aitken made fouls and Rex his two lonesome free throws to finish the point-making.

President's Ball

Bridge and ballroom and square dancing features of the President's Ball held last night in the Carolina Inn.

Coleman Woodard and his student orchestra from Riverside, Ga., donated their services for the ballroom dancing; and the Cates Quartet from Carrboro played for the square dancers.

Ninety dollars was cleared from the sale of tickets.

Washington, Jan. 30.—(UP)—Surrounded by his family, President Roosevelt tonight joined the nation in celebrating his 53rd birthday.

Although a big grayer about the temples, and with lines of care in his face a shade more pronounced, Roosevelt nevertheless entered the new year in the pink of condition as he greeted White House guests at a dinner party.

In the heavyweight ranks, Lammie Alderman boxed two rounds with the frosh heavy, Leake, and two rounds with Jack Lowe. Alderman has improved rapidly and looked good in his long workout.

Captain Giddins and the classy Joe Fisher also took a few fast rounds. However, the proceedings were halted when Giddins' shoulder, which had been sore, started aching him.

married only by an intersectional 16-16 tie with the strong Navy grapplers.

The Generals have an enviable record in the mat sport. During the past five seasons they have won something like 35 victories in 37 starts. Their last defeat came at the hands of Carolina in 1930.

Although little is known of the Generals' present strength, the Tar Heels realize that they will have plenty of opposition. The hold-overs from last year's fine aggregation are Crew, 125; Hodges, 165; and Bonino, unlimited. It has been reported that Thomas, brilliant bantamweight of the 1933 mat crew, is back in school this year. Bonino and Thomas are former Southern Conference champions.

Coach Quinlan has a quintet of excellent sophomores, along with Efland, only letterman from last year, and two varsity reserves to combat the Virginians.

Library Given Books

The North Carolina Episcopalian Diocese has deposited with the University library about 750 volumes of biographies, church histories, and collections of the works of famous churchmen. These books come from the diocese library which was built by two former clergymen, Bishop J. B. Cheshire and Bishop T. B. Lyman.
