Laundry Installs Sock-Darning Machine; Laundry and Book Ex Offices to Move.

TO SCREEN SOME DORMS

Many of the recommendations made by the Student Advisory Committee regarding campus service systems have been adopted and carried out by the business administration, Phil Hammer, secretary of the committee, announced yesterday.

A new sock-darning machine has been installed in the University laundry and has begun its attack on student socks. According to an unofficial announcement, the machine has been used overtime during the first week, due to the "sorry condition of almost every sock in the University."

To Move Office

The office of the laundry is being moved to a new central location in the main service plant building on Franklin street. This change will make it possible for students to receive all laundry bundles held by the laundry and to make all business negotiations without the necessity of leaving the campus to do so, as was the case when the office was located at the laundry site on West Cameron avenue.

It is planned to move the office of the Book Exchange to the same location, so that a complete centralization of office routine can be effected. J. S. Bennett, now head of the electric and water division of the Consolidated Service Plants, will be made supervisor of the entire service organization, acting directly under R. B. Rogerson, assistant comptroller of the University.

Screens for Dorms

Other improvements resulting from the committee's recommendations are the screening of certain dormitories for summer school inhabitants and the offering of a flat rate to cover tuition, board and rent to these same students. It is probable that these changes will be adopted for the regular sessions next fall, with screening of all dormitories and other building improvements extremely likely.

Rogerson stated yesterday that almost all of the recommendations have definite possibilities for adoption, work having actually been started on several of the most important. In addition, certain other administrative and service systems have been changed as a result of the general committee report.

Sees in Huey Long Potential Dictator

Socialist Prophecies America Must Adapt Government to New Social Order.

"NEW DEAL NOT SOLUTION"

That America must choose between Fascism and Socialism was the conclusion of Norman Thomas, who packed Memorial hall yesterday afternoon when he spoke on the Human Relations Institute program.

"Your generation can help to make an effectual choice," said the Socialist leader who warned against America drifting toward an American form of Fascism.

"Long and Hitler"

Pointing out the similarities between the appeal of Huey Long, Father Coughlin, Mussolini and Hitler, Thomas addressed the Carolina audience on "Trends Toward Fascism."

Thomas made references in his lecture to Dr. Everett Dean Martin and Congressman Hamilton Fish, Jr., who in particular had warned students and villagers against the "honeyed phrases" of the Socialist.

"We are not going to get out under the New Deal," said Thomas, calling the Roosevelt program a plan for temporary recovery. We shall soon face an emergency that in other countries has produced Fascist governments, Thomas concluded.

Fearing that America might choose a dictatorial form of government rather than revolt, confusion and Socialism, Thomas flayed the Fascism that America

MATHEWS TALKS ON MODERN ASIA

Traveler-Speaker Warns Audience of Danger of Eclipse by Faster Moving Orientals.

Shailer Mathews, authority on far eastern affairs, warned an audience in Memorial hall yesterday morning that unless we develop a morality within the nation, using love and justice-giving as a basis upon which a genuine human society could be built, we will be eclipsed by the forward moving eastern nations.

After describing briefly the history of the eastern nations before they were forcibly opened by the western powers, Mathews outlined the rapid rise of Japan in her adoption of western methods and machines. The Japanese, he explained, came out of the Russo-Japanese war with the realization that Japan was able to support a military machine inferior to

Sze on Good Will

Dr. Sze at the 10:15 session is scheduled to discuss "International Good Will and Understanding." The "outspoken" little man, black-haired with small, black-rimmed spectacles, is a great defender of his country in the Far East conflicts.

"The American people know that China has never disturbed the international peace of the Far East, whereas Japan has herself done so upon repeated occasions," declared the China-talker-backer on a recent occasion.

Former Preacher

At 12 o'clock Thomas will conduct the forum in Memorial hall. The once-upon-a-time Presbyterian minister and off-time candidate for president of the United States scored heavily yesterday afternoon in his address on "Trends Toward Fascism."

Bringing to a close the extensive program carried out by the Human Relations Institute during the past week, Editor George Soule of the New Republic will discuss "Organized Liberty." Soule will have appeared three times on the convocation series, his lectures being sponsored by the Weil Lecture Fund begun here in 1914-15.

According to a late report to the DAILY TAR HEEL, Herbert Hazelman realized the sweetest dream of every contract bridge player last night when he held 13 spades in a friendly game at the home of James Atkins in Chapel Hill.
