Margaret Gaines and Niles Bond Are Other Officers; Group Studies Stresa Conference.

CLUB THANKS BAHNSON

At the meeting of the Foreign Policy League last night the following officers were elected for the incoming year: president, Joe Barnett; vice-president, Margaret Gaines, and secretary, Niles Bond. The remainder of the meeting was occupied with a study of the Stresa conference, led by Bond and Miss Gaines.

Barnett was unopposed for president. Don McKee was runner-up to Bond for the position of secretary-treasurer. The office of vice-president was created at this meeting, there having been no such position during the present year.

Co-eds Invited

A bid has been made for co-ed members in the election of Miss Gaines, outstanding among the co-eds in campus activities.

After the voting the program was turned over to Barnett, under whose leadership a vote of thanks was passed for the splendid work of Agnew Bahnsen as president during the past year.

Stresa Conference

Attention was then turned to the Stresa conference. Miss Gaines opened discussion of this with a presentation of its historical background.

Niles Bond then continued the topic under consideration by outlining the results, apparent and factual, of the conference. Bond emphasized the opportuneness of the conference in calming the troubled European situation. One possible effect may be renewed military co-operation and alliance between France

PHYSICISTS HEAR SIMMONS TODAY

Graduate Will Explain His Research in Photo-Chemistry.

N. L. Simmons, a graduate student, will address the third meeting of the Physics Colloquium in Phillips hall this afternoon at 4:30 on "Photo-Chemistry."

As there is no course at the University dealing with the results of the interaction of light and matter, the speaker will cover as much of this field as possible for the benefit of the physics students.

Simmons spent the winter of 1933-34 in research at the University of California, which has one of the best-equipped laboratories for study of this kind in the country. During the past year he has continued his research at Chapel Hill.

If time permits Mr. Simmons will outline the results of his research during these two years.

DRUGGISTS HOLD BIG HOP TONIGHT

Freddy Johnson Will Play for Annual Pharmacy Dance in Bynum Gymnasium.

Under crepe streamers of Blue and White the students of the pharmacy school will dance tonight from 9 to 1 o'clock to the melodies of Freddy Johnson and his orchestra, playing for the school's annual dance in Bynum gymnasium.

Johnson and his boys will be assisted by Miss Peggy Wood, Johnson's feature vocalist, and Gene "Lanks" Whitaker, Miss Wood's song companion.

Two Bids Apiece

Two bids, one a stag ticket, have been issued to each member of the pharmacy school, and any outsiders may purchase bids from them, according to H. T. Murrell, president of the pharmacy school.

The faculty members of the school will act as chaperons for the dance, which will be formal.

Leaders

Murrell, with Miss Virginia Wimbish of Martinsville, Va., will lead the figure. His assistants will be Miss Mary Alice Bennett of Bryson City, president of the school's senior class, with Hugh Davis of Winston-Salem; H. C. Reaves of Raeford, president of the third year pharmacists, with Miss Mary Monroe of Raeford; J. W. Watson, pharmacy sophomore class president, with Miss Eloise Gibbs of Columbia.

The members of the dance committee are: H. T. Murrell, chairman; W. F. Matthews, F. A. Holt, J. D. Mitchell, H. O. Thompson, and Miss Maggie Moore.

Choir to Sing Cantata

"The Crucifixion," the well-known cantata composed by Stainer, will be sung tonight (Good Friday) at 8 o'clock at the Chapel of the Cross by the combined Episcopal and Presbyterian choirs.

The cantata will be directed by George H. Lawrence, with Nelson O. Kennedy at the organ. The soloists are Jesse Parker, Dr. Urban T. Holmes, and James P. Dees.

Students of Negro Institution Will Appear Here May 4 In Varied Program.

Weird, outlandish steps and movements to primitive African rhythms will constitute one of the feature performances on the program of interpretive dancing to be given here May 4 by the group of 51 Negro students from the Hampton Institute.

This section of the program, included under the title "African Dances," is made up of six separate pieces dealing with African life before the appearance of the white slave traders on the shores of the dark continent.

"Ya Ma Wisee"

"Ya Ma Wisee" enacts the story of the visit of the God to the tribe. Two boys playing along the river are frightened by the awful sight of him and run away. Then all the people come and worship the God with song and dance.

African beggars travel in groups of two or three; and when they come to a village, they stop and dance for the crowd that gathers to watch them. The Hampton dancers will perform a "Beggars' Dance."

Wedding Dance

"Wyo Mamie" is the name of the dance performed on the night before the wedding of an African girl, on the occasion of her parents' giving their final consent to the marriage.

When the witch doctor had satisfied a person who had been robbed by catching the thief and recovering the stolen article, he would show his joy and call attention to his triumph by swinging into the "Witch Doctor's Dance."

Warriors' Warm-up

On the eve of a battle warriors used to work up a martial frenzy by the wild "Wanda" dance.

The group of African dances closes with "The Feast of Ramadan." This feast is a Mohammedan ceremony introduced into northwest Africa by Arabs. Dancing is part of the celebration.

The variety of their program is one of the most amazing things about the versatile Hampton dancers. For example, immediately after this series of primitive dances comes a piece entitled "Designe Moderne" and typical of some of the most polished modern art in dancing.

Students Display Carolina Wonders; Visiting Registrars Fed On Tradition

"And on our left is the famous University of North Carolina library. It contains over 250 volumes," blared out J. A. Barrett, guide for the registrars of Canada and the United States on a bus tour of Carolina yesterday. "Two-hundred-fifty?" asked one of the visitors.

"The thousand provision goes unsaid, of course," blubbered confused Barrett, his guiding poise greatly disturbed.

In another big, yellow bus rode Simmons Patterson, directing the registrars who had come directly from Raleigh, in the wonders and traditions of Carolina.

Davie Came?

"And when was the University founded?" queried a weak little voice from one of the "admissioners."

Robert W. Madry, director of the University News Bureau, who has arranged the program for the Southern Convention of the American College Publicity Association, which opens at the Carolina Inn this afternoon and continues through Saturday. ## HOUSE IS LOYAL TO BLUE EAGLE

Johnson Upholds Administration; Banking Act to Have New Deal Likeness.

Washington, April 18.—(UP)—The House of Representatives was given its first chance to vote on major New Deal legislation today and without a gag proved loyal to Roosevelt.

It defeated the radical Townsend and Lundeen plans and promised the President the kind of social security bill that he wants. It defeated the Townsend plan 206 to 56, the Lundeen plan, 204 to 52.

Old Age Pensions

Leaders believe that today's action disposes of both schemes this session and paves the way for the passage of the administration bill, virtually without a major change, late tomorrow or Monday. The administration bill provides for old age pensions in which the federal government will match the state pensions up to $15 per month per individual.

The Senate debated farmers' home corporation legislation and received the Borah resolution to prevent the issuance of private and public foreign loans.

Johnson Defends

The finance committee heard General Hugh S. Johnson defend the NRA. Johnson lashed out at big business, sweatshops, New Deal critics, selfish interests, and rugged individualists. He said that the destruction of recovery leads to the disastrous collapse of the profit system, communism, and revolution.

Washington administration won a smashing victory tonight on the proposed banking act of 1935 when the House banking and currency committee agreed to report it as a whole, leaving in the act advanced views of the liberal New Dealers.

The measure will be formally reported out of the committee tomorrow, and a rule will be sought to prevent it from being used as a target for inflationists and other proponents of drastic panaceas.

SENATORS MOVE TOWARD ADOPTION OF REVENUE BILL

Changes Made as Bill Progresses Easily Toward Passage.

Raleigh, April 18.—(UP)—The Senate today turned back toward the adoption of the revenue bill as written by the joint finance committee, replacing the $600,000 it had cut from the measure last week.

It first voted a chain filling stations tax it had previously killed, then voted to replace the three per cent sales tax on hotel room rentals. Each of these levies, it is estimated, will produce $300,000 in revenue.

Further Amendments

The revenue bill, thrown back on its first reading, will be open to further amendments for two more legislative days.

The House cut the 50 cents per hundred weight from the auto license tax rate, cutting it to 40 cents per hundred weight, and also passed a measure increasing the legal width of highway vehicles from 90 to 96 inches.

The House voted 52 to 18 to repeal a previous resolution memorializing Congress' repeal of the cotton processing tax.
