THIS ISSUE: NEWS, RABB; NIGHT, KAHN

WE ARE INDIGNANT

Mr. David Clark came and saw. To the masses of people throughout the state he attributed the right to govern this University and its policy. To himself he dedicated the duty of instructing these people in University activities. To the students on this campus he is supposed to be the savior, who works that we may be freed from the dread fingers of radicalism.

Question: Mr. Clark, will you define socialism?
Mr. Clark: I do not know what it is.
Yes, Mr. Clark came and saw but he did more than that. He exposed. He exposed himself as evidently ignorant of the very doctrines against which he wags his tongue. He exposed his methods, which purport to stir the masses of people through what we believe are misrepresented facts. He exposed his tactics, when he tread water and turned aside honest questions until he could perhaps, in the sanctity of his Charlotte office, pen further stuff which would hide the evasion and further carry on his cause.

Question: Will you print, Mr. Clark, a statement of true facts on a matter which I believe you have misrepresented, if I write it and send it to you?

Answer: Yes... if I can believe it.
Mr. Clark did not leave himself unguarded. His shield was always up. How sincere questions could be asked in all fairness and expected answered is not known; the shield of blunt evasion turned aside truth itself.

We are registering natural student indignation at Mr. Clark and at the manner in which he attempted to justify himself here Tuesday night. In his speech there were misrepresentations and in the discussion which followed there were evasions. What we are indignant about is that Mr. Clark is the self-styled University mouthpiece for the state; it is he who tells North Carolinians that this University is a hot-bed of radicalism. If it were true, then we would stand for fairness in justifying the radicalism if it is to be justified. But it is not true and we, as students who live and breathe in this educational center, resent attacks which are so maliciously perpetrated.

Question: Mr. Clark, how are students planning to study and enter government going to understand their own government or what is wrong with it if they do not know what socialism and communism are?

Answer: The question is not sincere.
Therein lies the sincerity of the man who has been carrying on a fight for years against our University. We can only thank God that we have a man at the helm of the University whose greatness can maintain itself in the face of such vicious attacks, whose personality is more powerful than all the Textile Bulletins in the world.

We students who love this University are not going to let this thing die down. We are youths who want fair play and justice and we will factually throw our hat into the ring and prove to this state that we on this campus and not David Clark are the ones who understand and appreciate the motives of this University. It is not the attack against radicalism that bothers us; Mr. Clark, as all other reactionaries, can shout his head off for all we care. But we do resent his dragging the University before the state as a subversive institution, making our president seem an unprincipled demagogue, and misrepresenting University efforts to educate us in the liberal traditions of a traditionally famous educational system.

We are saying nothing libelous. His misrepresentations we will prove and his efforts to throttle our president and our educational pursuits we will present. We are students indignant.

Now YOU'RE Talking

"SOME OF US DOUBTED..."

To the Editor,
DAILY TAR HEEL:

The University must blush at the reception Mr. David Clark received from some members of his audience last night. Worst of the offenders was Student Charles Lloyd. Mr. Lloyd contributed nothing to the forum discussion, asked no question of the speaker, but rose from the floor to "congratulate" Mr. Clark on coming to the University because "some of us doubted if such a person really existed in the modern world."

Others in the audience last night who were discourteous to Mr. Clark have at least the excuse that they were sincerely trying to force Mr. Clark to face questions which he was evading. Mr. Lloyd's mannerless attack was utterly unwarranted.

Mr. Lloyd's recent bitter criticisms of the DAILY TAR HEEL's unfair editorializing about the Playmakers and his attacks upon the DAILY TAR HEEL's movie column have been deserved. But does not Mr. Lloyd realize that a college newspaper's unfair criticism of another department of the college is never in such bad taste as a University student's unprovoked insult to a guest speaker of the University?

For the University's and his own sake, will Mr. Lloyd not make a public apology for his sorry exhibition last night?

And Mr. Lloyd, if you talk further, please talk more thoughtfully.

WALTER HARGETT.

THE UNION ANSWERS

To the Editor,
DAILY TAR HEEL:

In regard to letter appearing in Wednesday's DAILY TAR HEEL deploring the dearth of up-to-date issues of magazines in the lounge of Graham Memorial, my only reply is that the magazines are placed in the lounge upon their arrival, with the exception of three, Fortune, Cosmopolitan, and Esquire, which have disappeared most rapidly in the past. These three are available in the office and must be signed for. I agree heartily with the sentiments expressed by Benton and Bill and would welcome any co-operation which they could give in reminding students that in stealing a magazine from the lounge they are depriving other users of the Union of an opportunity to read it. Thank you.

HARPER BARNES.

A. S. M. E. in Raleigh

The Raleigh section of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers held a dinner-meeting last night at the Jefferson Roof Restaurant in Greensboro, at which time speeches were made by Eugene W. O'Brien of Atlanta, R. B. Wilson, senior in the engineering school at Carolina, and J. L. Summers, State College senior.

O'Brien, the principal speaker, used as his subject, "Engineering—Ancient Magic in Modern Science." He is editor of the Southern Power Journal and a vice-president of the A. S. M. E. R. B. Wilson delivered a paper on "A Simple Method of Testing the Discharge Efficiency of an Air-Compressor," a subject which he presented before the student branch of the society recently in Knoxville, Tenn.

Infirmary

Those listed on the infirmary register yesterday were: Warren Walker, W. F. Mathews, N. S. F. Fitzing, Hazel Beacham, F. L. Fitzhugh, and Mary Armbruster.

Editor, Entertainment Undecided by Engineers

Because of the small attendance, the School of Engineering was unable to elect the editor of next year's Carolina Engineer or to pass on the proposal to join the student entertainment series. Keys were awarded to the staff of the Carolina Engineer.

After some discussion on the proposal to enter with the schools of liberal arts and commerce in the student entertainment series for next year, Dean Miller made a short talk and presented the magazine staff with their charms.

Those students receiving keys were: Walter W. King, editor; J. B. Crutchfield, R. L. Huber, E. A. Gaskill, T. D. Gordy, Robert Van Sleen, E. M. Evans, J. A. Westbrook, and Dr. A. C. Howell, faculty adviser.

SPEIGHT TO INSTRUCT SUMMER ART COURSES

Francis Speight of the Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts, a native Tar Heel who has achieved high distinction, will give courses in art and drawing at the University of North Carolina again during the University Summer School, it was announced yesterday.

Mr. Speight's courses here last summer proved especially popular and there was universal demand that he return this year.

TWO YEARS AGO TODAY

Compiled from the Files of the DAILY TAR HEEL

Professor Harold Meyer, acting director of the department of sociology, is elected to honorary membership in O. D. K., national honorary group at Duke University... Freshmen excused from chapel exercises for the rest of the year... Pete Ivey's first issue of the Buccaneer off the press today... Dave Morgan elected president of the German Club for next year.

Heat drives students out of dorms for restful slumber... Lonnie Dill says school spirit is a fine thing, and something ought to be done about it... George Washington Carver, aged Negro chemist, will speak in Gerrard hall tonight... Work on lawns begun with money raised in lawn fund drive.

Policy League

Phil Russell, Carolina's recent delegate to Brussels and the instigator of the recent anti-war strike here, will answer this question before the Foreign Policy Leaguers tonight: "Are student movements against war 'the bunk'?"

Following the "Iowa" plan, which aroused interest at the last meeting, the speaker will first find himself contending with the questions asked by a panel consisting of Dr. E. E. Ericson, Agnew Bahnson, and John Schulz.

If the speaker so desires, the floor will then be thrown open for a general free-for-all.

Grail Banquet

The Order of the Grail will honor its 13 new members with a banquet tomorrow night at 6 o'clock in Graham Memorial. On Saturday night the last Grail dance of the spring quarter will be given in their honor. A no-break will be held in which only the new members will take part.

At the banquet tomorrow officers for next year will be elected.
