Dormitory Residents To Vote On Fee Tomorrow, Tuesday

Councilors to Handle Voting by Petition

Fee Would Go Toward Expansion of Social Life Through Entertainments, Social Rooms

FEE IS STRONGLY FAVORED

The proposed plans to expand dormitory social life rest upon the results of the student referendum tomorrow, and Tuesday on the suggested one dollar fee to be annually assessed each dormitory resident.

Sentiment leans toward advocacy of the proposed fee, with the Interdormitory Council, Council of Dormitory Presidents, and Student Advisory Committee recommending the one dollar assessment.

Petition Vote

Voting will be by petition and will be handled by the dormitory councilors. A beginning will be made of securing signatures tomorrow, and the referendum period will close Tuesday night. All signed petitions are to be presented to Albert Ellis, dormitory supervisor, Wednesday morning.

Dire need for funds to carry forward a program of social activities in the dormitories prompted by the Interdormitory Council to recommend October 4 that a fee of one dollar be assessed.

City Slickers Seek

Mascot Rameses But Get Ewe By Mistake

State Students Unable to Distinguish Between Ram, Ewe

State students got "ram-bunctious" Friday night.

In a last minute effort to arouse some State interest in yesterday's game, a carload of the engineers invaded Chapel Hill to seek out the hiding place of one Rameses III and take him home. All they could get, however, was one black bull, a perfumed billy goat, and a horse that laughed.

Trick Play

According to several Raleigh boys who could talk after the Carolina-State game, R. O. T. C. maneuvers were used in a trick play off the Hillsboro road.

The group, six strong, stopped at a Hillsboro gas station and cleverly disguised themselves as Carolina students. The manager was then asked, "I heard some of those State boys came over and got our ram."

The poor service man, unable to cope with the subtle tactics of the engineers, replied, "Naw, that's not so. Rameses is over here on such and such a farm."

Unawares

Off in childish glee dashed the red-and-whiters, but they had not anticipated the intelligence (or the illiteracy) of their supposed stooge.

To the farm they went to reconnoitre for the symbol of Carolina's line smashing. But a big, black bull was there first. After shaking the ebony bovine,

Dr. Zucker was assistant professor of English at the Peking Union Medical College for several years, and became interested in Chinese drama while he was

CAMPUS KEYBOARD

There was some significance to the student tour of State College grounds and buildings Friday afternoon. It did not lie in the fact that State College was going to meet its big brother in football the next day, either.

It was the first time that the University administration has asked students to go along in an inspection of the service plants and set-up at the Raleigh branch. It was, furthermore, a further evidence of a desire on the business administration's part to let students largely decide about business policies affecting them.

This change in attitude manifested itself last winter and since then it has fostered keen co-operation. But do you remember when the faculty met last year and the year before and discussed changes in the educational system? Did you see any evidence of their asking for student opinion in the matter of the new set-up? No, emphatically not, and the result has been, in many cases, misunderstanding and often antagonism on the students' part.

Now it is all very well for an administration to say that the students don't know what they are talking about, for the fa-

PLAY TO RECRUIT SCORES FOR CAST

Selden will Need 30 or 40 in Cast of Green's "Enchanted Maze"

Tryouts for the world premiere of Paul Green's new play "The Enchanted Maze," will be held on Wednesday afternoon at 4:30 and Wednesday night at 7:30 in the Playmakers theatre.

A large cast of 30 or 40 will be used in the play, so everyone is urged to try out. Scripts will not be available in the library for the people trying out to read, but Sam Selden says that he will try to have a public reading of the play sometime before the tryouts.

"The Enchanted Maze," Paul Green's challenging play of American university life, will be presented December 5, 6, and 7, and will probably be given in Memorial hall.

"Sam Selden, who is to direct the play," says Professor Koch, "directed last year's production of 'Shroud My Body Down,' also a world premiere of Paul Green's, with great skill, and the Playmakers feel that he will give us a production this time which is worthy of the playwright and the originality of the play."

Music Recital

There will be a chamber music recital at Hill music hall Wednesday evening at 8:30. Participating in it will be Dr. Glen Haydon, Earl A. Slocum, Peter Hansen, and H. R. Hazelman.

The program will be composed of four divisions: a Bach sonata for flute and piano, Earl E. Slocum, flute, Peter Hansen, piano; a Brahms sonata for clarinet and piano, Dr. Haydon, clarinet, Peter Hansen, piano.

A Beethoven trio for flute, oboe and clarinet, with Mr. Slocum, Dr. Haydon, and H. R. Hazelman playing; and lastly, the "Tarentelle" of Saint-Saens.

THEATRE TO GIVE SCENES OF GAME

Smith Arranges One-Day Showing of Films of State Game

Moving pictures of the Carolina-N. C. State football classic played in Raleigh yesterday afternoon will be shown at the Carolina theatre tomorrow for one day only, it was announced yesterday by E. Carrington Smith, manager of the local cinema.

Smith made special arrangements to have the films made and rushed here from the playing field since this contest was of such paramount interest to the Carolina students.

'Y' CABINET MEN WILL HEAR WOLF

Economics Professor to Address Sophomore Cabinet on Capitalism Tomorrow Night

Dr. H. D. Wolf, University economics professor, will address the sophomore "Y" cabinet tomorrow night on the weaknesses of the capitalistic system. Dr. Wolf, who is an authority on the labor problem, will discuss such phases of the problem as low wages, unemployment and the worker's standard of living.

The talk Monday night will furnish the group with the economic background upon which to base their study of our economic system and the christian ideal, which is the field the sophomore "Y" will deliberate upon for the next few weeks. It is anticipated that next week a speaker will present the christian ideal, as contrasted with the actual practices prevailing in our economic system.

Field Trips

In addition to Dr. Wolf's talk and an open discussion on the points he brings up, Nick Read will submit to the cabinet members the plan of making field trips to investigate first hand the agricultural and industrial conditions existing in this section.

It is also planned to secure a speaker who will present the employer's side of the economic question at a meeting in the near future.

The debates on this question of capitalism versus christianity are expected to rival those of the Phi Assembly in ebullition.

Snavelymen Run Wild In Fourth Quarter Rally To Overwhelm Wolfpack

Caffey's Chi Omegas Will Serve Tea Today

Sorority Women Sans Local Chapters Invited to Social

All sorority girls whose chapters are not represented on the campus are invited to tea this afternoon from 4:30 to 5:30 o'clock at the Chi Omega house. The affair is sponsored by Chi Omega President Frances Caffey and her sorority cohorts.

Although this blanket invitation through the DAILY TAR HEEL is the only one that will be made, all "stray co-ed Greeks" are cordially welcomed to the tea.

The Chi-O house is located at 407 East Franklin street, directly across from President Frank Graham's mansion and diagonally across the street from Spencer hall.

Movie "Red Salute" Causes Controversy Throughout Nation

A tempest in a teapot, or a significant development in the cultural and political history of campus life—this showing at the Carolina Theatre today of "Red Salute," and the abortive attempt to prevent its coming here as allegedly the first of a series of anti-liberal and war propaganda pictures?

"Red Salute" is good light entertainment, anti-communistic but not militaristic; and it is not a Hearst-financed production," says E. Carrington Smith, owner and manager of the Carolina Theatre.

Wrong Ideas

"People have wrong ideas about the show, and they are opposing it and actually picketing it in some places, without knowing its true nature. My business is not interested in propaganda or politics of any party."

Somewhat different views are held by certain liberal campus leaders who sought to keep the show from appearing here.

They maintain that the picture, which has aroused a storm of controversy on this and other campuses, and in theaters throughout the country, from Broadway to smaller showhouses on the Pacific coast, is out of the Carolina tradition of liberalism.

Monopoly

They say that Smith, as manager of a monopoly entertainment business which has become an integral part of the campus, is in a sense responsible for aiding to uphold this tradition; and they indict him as sacrificing the campus spirit to his box-office.

A boycott and picketing activities were contemplated by this group, but insufficient time pre-

Winners Crush Pack In Last Half Spurt

Brilliant Teamwork Outstanding as Carolina's Powerful Eleven Trample State's Team

AIR GAME UNSTOPPABLE

By Ira Sarasohn

Before 20,000 fans who packed Riddick field, a determined Wolfpack team was able to keep the Tar Heels in check the first half, but weakened in the final half allowing the Carolina team to win by a 35-6 count.

In the first quarter the hard fighting State team made several gains through the line and threatened to score. A bad pass from center was recovered by Gadd who kicked on the next play giving the ball to Carolina. After a return of punts and fumbles, Carolina began its touchdown drive from the 40-yard line.

Hutchins took the ball on a spinner and made six yards. On the next play, Jackson passed to Montgomery for a 25 yard gain bringing the ball to the 27-yard line. Hutchins picked up three yards, then four, and Montgomery gained two placing the ball on the 19-yard line.

PLANS OF SCHOOL ARE BEING DRAWN

Contractors to Submit Bids Soop With Actual Construction Beginning in December

With plans sanctioned by the Public Works Administration and sketches rapidly nearing completion by architects, contractors' bids for the new partially Government-financed Chapel Hill high school will soon be advertised for letting.

Mr. H. D. Carter, associate of Haywood and Weeks, architects for the structure, has been busily engaged for the past few weeks in drafting the plans. Sketches for the science, home economics, and other sections have been contributed by members of the school faculty.

Location

Said Mr. Oliver when questioned as to when work will begin on the building, "We hope to have the dirt flying by the 15th of December." The foundations for the new school will be laid in a three-acre plot of land just inside the southern boundary of Chapel Hill near the Pittsboro road.

Since the Public Works Administration has approved the plans, the only obstacle in the way of construction is the selection of a contractor. Large lists of minute specifications will have to be sent out to various contractors, each of whom will prepare his estimate of the probable cost and submit it in the form of a bid. From the most satisfactory bids is selected the builder who will be awarded the contract.
