

FRAZER TO INVOKE IDEALS OF LEAGUE HERE TOMORROW

League of Nations Student to Deliver Armistice Address in Hill Auditorium

BEGINS AT 10:15 O'CLOCK
Years of special study and a period of intense observation of the League of Nations will form the background for Government Professor Keener C. Frazer's Armistice Day address which will be delivered tomorrow morning at 10:15 in Hill auditorium.

Fifteen minutes will be cut from two classes to lengthen the morning assembly period to one hour, according to administration heads who are co-operating with local officials of the American Legion in sponsoring the exercises.

Current Crises
Frazer's address will deal with the present crises in the life of the League, which was conceived as an instrument for maintaining world peace. This ideal, as exemplified in the League, was the ideal for which the World War dead gave their lives, and it is with this fact in mind that the Administration and the Legion secured Mr. Frazer for the commemoration program.

Dean A. W. Hobbs will read the roll-call of the University dead in the World War, and the commander of the local Legion post will read the roll-call of the Chapel Hill dead. Taps will be sounded on the bugle.

The National Hymn will be sung after the Reverend A. S. Lawrence's invocation, and the National Anthem before the benediction.

At 11 o'clock the audience will rise and remain silent for two minutes.

Virginians Powerless To Stop Savage Drives Of Merciless Foemen

Virtually Entire Squad Participates in Old-Time Scoring Spree; 8,000 See Mop-up

KAYDETS NEVER WARM

Using nearly everyone on the sidelines except the cheerleaders and Mascot Rameses, three teams of viciously blocking Tar Heels yesterday participated in a 56-0 massacre of a spirited but impotent V. M. I. eleven. The utter rout, witnessed by some 8,000 persons, marked the most decisive Carolina victory since 1929, when they were the second highest scorers in the nation.

Coach Snavely's first string backs were responsible for only three of the nine touchdowns, while five others were accounted for by second and third string reserves. One tally was made by Tom Evins when he blocked Campbell's kick, picked it up and ran for a touchdown.

As the score indicates, the victory was unbelievably one-sided. V. M. I.'s Kaydets were unable to cross the 50-yard line offensively. Carolina's first, second, and even third teams seemed able to rip through the V. M. I. defense at will.

First String Jerked

The first string backfield played about 12 minutes of the game and in that time accounted for three touchdowns, placing the ball in scoring position on one occasion. Jackson, in the short time he played, made two tallies and hurled two passes that were the foundations of two more touchdowns.

Little and Graves, each accounted for two tallies, while Evins and McCachren accounted for two more. Hutchins, in addition to piling up yardage by line plunges, was responsible for one of the team's nine touchdowns.

Former Playmakers Gain Distinction In Northern Dramatic Productions

BOARDS INCREASE SCHOOL'S OUTLAY

Contractor Estimates Higher Than Anticipated; Two County Boards Loosen Purses

Due to an unexpected upswing in construction price estimates, the board of commissioners and the board of education of Orange county have jointly decided to boost the county's contribution to the new school building project some $150,000.

Originally local authorities expected to get first-class schools constructed for $273,000. However, when competing contractors turned in their sealed bids, it was found that the initial cost estimate fell short of the final expense mark.

Unwilling to cut down on building plans that have just been completed by architects Atwood and Weeks, the county finance-controllers voted the extra allotment. This will bring the cost of the structures up to $345,500.

A large portion of the money will be expended in the construction of a new high school building. It will be situated on the

Louise McGuire and Shepperd Strudwick Take Parts in Current Presentations

Two of the former Carolina Playmakers, Louise McGuire and Shepperd Strudwick, are establishing reputations in northern theatrical circles worthy of their training.

Louise McGuire who was active in the Playmaker work here last year is playing the part of "Roxy," the octofoon, in the Mark Twain Masquers' production of "Puddin' Head Wilson," which is running in Hartford, Connecticut.

Miss McGuire is noted for her versatility in playing varying types of roles. Last year, she was Jennifer, the sophisticated matron in "The Young Idea." She was Gertrude, the queen mother in "Hamlet," and Goldie, the hot-cha young negress in "Goldie," a one act play by Wilbur Dorsett. Miss McGuire has also been doing some radio work since she left Chapel Hill.

Strudwick, Too

Shepperd Strudwick, from Hillsboro, is cast in Albert Bein's new play, "Let Freedom Ring," a play of the North Carolina mountaineers. This is an adaptation of Grace Tompkins novel, "To Make My Bread."

A pencil sketch of Strudwick in costume appeared on the front page of the drama section of the Sunday New York Herald Tribune and his photograph was also in a group picture by the New York Times.

Strudwick first achieved success in Maxwell Anderson's Pulitzer prize play, "Both Your Houses."

SICK MARKET BOOMS

Those confined to the Infirmary yesterday were: Nelson Lansdale, J. R. Barrett, Groves Murray, Ed Bullard, B. C. Moffitt, N. T. Gegerson, Dorethy Tudor, Eloise Sheppard, J. G. Pickard, J. W. Francis, Harvey Harris, Mary Eliason, Eleanor Barler, Katherine Quigley, Dave Wishney, and Jean Walker.

CAMPUS KEYBOARD

The greatest contribution that any local delegate to a national peace conference could make is not what the Chapel Hill campus thinks about war and peace. Surely no authentic picture could be presented on the basis of 94 student votes on the subject out of 2500 students.

That contribution, I say, would consist in a straight-from-the-shoulder description of how local students act in an atmosphere of free thought and action.

That atmosphere is something almost entirely unique in American colleges and, in our opinion, is pre-requisite to constructive thought on any question. How Carolina thinks, then, and why, rather than what it thinks, is what our delegates must carry to the representatives of other more vociferous, yet less dignified institutions.

Have you ever thought how remarkable is this academic freedom in Chapel Hill, how vital is this liberty of student thought? One need not try to define liberalism in order to find in expressive terms the real characteristic of this atmosphere. One need only to experience the stultifying effect of suppression elsewhere to realize that Chapel Hill liberalism is not a doctrine but an expansive mental frontier.

Peace movements are usually attributed to liberals. Some people wonder why the liberals don't try to wipe out R. O. T. C. and other war machines. If the liberals tried to do so, they would cease being liberals and become peace dictators. Thus, on a liberal campus freedom of thought must exist that both elements have the opportunity of mobilizing student thought. That situation is the most conducive to real peace efforts; enforced peace thought is detrimental to the very cause.
