SENATE INSTALLS WINTER OFFICERS

Jim Howell Installed as President of Di for Winter Quarter

At their installation program last night the Di Senators installed Jim Howell as their new president for the winter quarter. Senators Fred Stein and Eddie Kahn also took office as clerk and sergeant-at-arms respectively.

In his inauguration speech, Senator Howell expressed the purpose of the Di as an organization to "promote useful knowledge, sound thinking, and clear expression." He also stated the value of principles of citizenship to the senators.

After a request for co-operation during the next quarter, President Howell appointed his new committees. The ways and means committee: Senator Yeatman, chairman; Finance: Senator Blackwell, chairman; Entertainment: Williams, Coffield and Weaver. The suggestion was made that the Senate organize a Permanent Membership committee at the next meeting.

Several senators took part in the program as they held an enthusiastic debate on the topic, resolved that "Students who were unable to meet first classes due to weather conditions be excused from probation. The bill was unanimously passed.

The first meeting of the winter quarter was closed by Senator Cochrane as he resigned as critic.

Varsity Basketball

The latter part of the second half was played without the services of McCachren and Paten, both being forced out of the game due to excessive personal fouls. However the Tar Heel team, without their capable captain, kept up the fast pace, putting a grand finish to their neatest exhibition to date.

University Sophomore Injured In Auto Wreck

Luke L. Marion of Carthage, a sophomore in the University, is now in Watts hospital in Durham, suffering from a crushed shoulder and a fractured skull received in an automobile accident on December 24.

A girl who was accompanying Marion at the time of the accident received a cracked backbone and internal injuries. She is now in Duke hospital in a serious condition. Another couple also in the car escaped with only minor injuries.

Marion did not recover consciousness until January 2, nine days after the accident. Although he is still in a serious condition, doctors believe that he will make a complete recovery if complications do not set in.

The accident occurred on the road between Roxboro and Durham when Marion, who had started to take one fork of the highway, changed his mind and attempted to switch to the other. The car skidded on a patch of ice formed from water flowing from a nearby filling station, and careened into a telegraph pole. As the automobile swerved, the front door flew open throwing Marion and the girl out of the car.

The White Phantoms, now hot on the trail of another Southern Conference title, have established an enviable record in court circles. Since 1923, when the Southern Conference was established, they have captured the state crown seven times. In 1923 they won the title of South Atlantic champions. The Southern Conference diadem has rested upon their brows four times.

Views On Comprehensives

Faculty views on senior comprehensive examinations have been given too little hearing in public, and it is the hope of the DAILY TAR HEEL, beginning today, to present observations on the recurrent question of the value of the senior finals.

Spruill

C. P. Spruill, Jr., chairman of the faculty committee of advisors, believes that the experiment with comprehensives has lasted long enough. He feels that the University's system of exams, first begun as an experiment in 1930, shows definite faults, and that changes are in order during this year.

Comprehensives should remain, he thinks; but great improvement in the type of comprehensives could be made in several schools. Mr. Spruill favors a longer time for the completion of one comprehensive—perhaps a few days instead of several successive hours.

Bradshaw

Dean Bradshaw favors comprehensives, and feels that many of those given seniors could be made more comprehensive. He, too, would like a longer time for the taking of comprehensives than is now given.

The dean explained the two underlying principles of comprehensives: First, they are "designed to emphasize the student's ability to assimilate and synthesize what he learns;" second, they are designed to shift emphasis from class attendance and passive preparation to assertive, creative work by the student.

He compared seniors to Snively's football team. If there were not a game on Saturdays, there would be less interest and less preparation among the players. Similarly, if there were no final exam, the student would tend to relax his assimilation and coordination of his work.

Pierson

W. W. Pierson, dean of the graduate school, found hearty approval of comprehensives at a meeting of college officials last fall at Cornell University. He likewise approves of them, especially in the history and political science departments, with which he is most acquainted.

None of the three men above quoted underwent comprehensives while college undergraduates.

Other interviews will appear here daily until opinions of all deans and department heads have been recorded.

The local post office completed the biggest year in its history last year when its receipts soared well over $50,000, establishing it as a first-class post office effective July 1. Official figures showed the total receipts as $50,589.37, surpassing the banner year of 1928 when the receipts amounted to $49,993.20.

DEMOCRATS HEAR WAYNICK TONIGHT

Young Democrats to Open 1936 Campaign at Jackson Day Dinner In Carolina Inn

The annual Jackson Day dinner for all University and Orange County Young Democrats will be held at 7:30 tonight in the Carolina Inn ballroom with Capus M. Waynick, High Point editor and chairman of the State Highway and Public Works Commission, as the principal speaker.

Tickets for the affair may be secured from W. E. Thompson, assistant cashier of the Bank of Chapel Hill, at two dollars a plate. Half of this amount will be contributed to the Democratic campaign fund for 1936.

Anniversary

The local Jackson Day dinner along with similar meetings throughout the nation will inaugurate the 1936 Democratic campaign. The occasion tonight will also mark the 121st anniversary of the climax Andrew Jackson made of his colorful military career by his victory over the British in the battle of New Orleans.

Born in the Waxhaw settlement near the North Carolina-South Carolina line, March 15, 1767, Jackson settled near Nashville in 1788 and died there at his home, Hermitage, June 8, 1845. To Hermitage, the well-preserved plantation mansion of Jackson's, thousands of Americans will trek to take part in the ceremonies of the center of the Jackson Day celebrations.
