THE CAMPUS KEYBOARD

by Phil Hammer

Joint Committee will Likely
Split on Comprehensives
State College Goes to Town

It seems that most faculty comment on comprehensive examinations has been in favor of continuing the things. At the same time, it may or may not be significant that in over 80 per cent of the cases of faculty response, the particular faculty members interviewed had never taken comprehensives as undergraduates.

Be that as it may, the question will be put to test this week when the joint student-faculty committee meets to consider it and make recommendations, if in order. It is probable, from a brief glance at the faculty personnel, that the students on the committee will find some little opposition to their efforts to abolish comprehensives as they now exist and to substitute some better system of synthesizing and reviewing courses.

We take for granted, of course, that the student members are with us in bringing about this change. There have been a few students who have approached us with the theory that comprehensives are a good thing and necessary in the modern curriculum. But mighty few.

If the joint committee fails to offer recommendations because no recommendations are in order for them, then the matter must be directly pressed for immediate faculty consideration. This is a question which won't be dropped until convincingly disallowed.

That State College can snap its fingers and get a browsing room while Chapel Hillians groan and moan and get nowhere is just another piece of fuel to add to the fire of popular astonishment.

The Raleigh boys got themselves three new dining rooms, all done up in beautiful fashion. We're still scrambling around yelling for a new Swain hall.

The worst thing about it all is that the students here have done a hundred times as much work in demanding these things for Chapel Hill, but are accomplishing nothing.

Maybe the benevolent wing of Davy Clark and the nearness to the State Capitol building have their advantages, after all. This thing of being a lovely old oak-clustered spot of isolation apparently doesn't have the same forceful effect in the fields of material accomplishment as it is supposed to have in the fields of cultural amelioration. Or maybe we should go R. O. T. C., for the militant aspect it will give our demands.

In Today's News

Dean R. B. House appoints student committee headed by "Trip" Rand to co-ordinate with faculty group on comprehensives investigation.

Herman Schnell revises managerships in several dormitories to replace officials lost by transfers and dropping out of school. Phillips Russell to speak at Bull's Head meeting today.

SCHNELL APPOINTS DORMITORY HEADS FOR NEW QUARTER

Appointments Necessitated by Transfers and Dropping Out of Several Managers

SEVEN SET-UPS CHANGED

Herman Schnell has appointed new dormitory managers and assistants to replace those who have either dropped out or transferred since the end of the fall quarter.

There have been changes in the official set-up of Grimes, Old East, Everett, Graham, Battle-Vance-Pettigrew, and Lewis.

Joe Kornegay, Everett, and Jim Cox, Grimes, as assistants have been replaced by Edwin Hamlin and Charles McIver, who have been in Battle-Vance-Pettigrew and Old East. Robert Stricker, Graham, has been succeeded as assistant manager by O. M. Powers who has been in Battle-Vance-Pettigrew.

New Dorms

C. B. Troxler and Henry Wright are assistant managers in Battle-Vance-Pettigrew; Walter F. Brown, Old East; Morris Lipton, Aycock; and H. T. Stallings, Lewis.

Including the above changes, the present set-up is: Battle-Vance-Pettigrew, Charles Hubbard, manager, C. B. Troxler and Henry Wright, assistant managers; Carr, M. V. Barnhill, manager and K. W. Young, assistant manager; Steele, E. T. Bar-

WORKS OF HEGEL TO BE DISCUSSED HERE IN BINGHAM

Dr. Richard Kroner, Contemporary
Philosopher, to Speak Tonight

Dr. Richard Kroner, noted philosopher, will lecture on the works and contributions of his great predecessor, Hegel, in Bingham auditorium at 8:30 Thursday night.

Dr. Kroner lectured yesterday at Duke University and will make other talks there tomorrow and Friday. His lectures are the first to be sponsored jointly by the departments of philosophy of the two schools.

Dr. Kroner, who was born in Breslau, Silesia in 1884, attended the Universities of Berlin, Heidelberg and Freiburg and studied under such philosophers as Wilhelm Windelband and Heinrich Rickert.

Following the World War, during which he served at the German front, he became assistant professor of philosophy at the University of Freiburg and in 1924 he was made full professor of philosophy at the Technical University of Dresden. Since then he has served as professor at the Universities of Kiel and Frankfurt. In 1935 he became research professor with residence at Berlin.

He was one of the creators and, until 1934, the editor of the "Logos," philosophical publication. He has also written a number of books and treatises. He is the founder and ex-president of the International Hegel Society.

Today he is regarded as one of the world's leading philosophers and as one of the greatest living Hegel scholars.

Dr. Kroner is now touring the United States speaking at many of the universities in this country.

Students Who Attend Kagawa's Duke Talk To Be Given Excuses

All students who wish to hear Toyohiko Kagawa are requested to leave their names with Miss Hodges at the Y. M. C. A. office by noon today. Cars will leave Y. M. C. A. from 10:30 to 11:00 tomorrow morning for Duke.

Dr. Kagawa is to speak in Page auditorium at 11:30 a. m. and 2:30 p. m. Students attending will be excused from conflicting classes. The public is cordially invited.

Many students and faculty professors are expected to travel Durhamwards today to hear the noted Japanese lecturer.

BOTANY CURATOR DIES HERE SUNDAY

T. G. Harbison, Aged Herbarium
Curator of Botanical Department
Dies at Coker Home

Mr. T. G. Harbison, curator of the herbarium in the botanical department of the University, was found dead in bed Sunday morning at the home of Professor and Mrs. Totten. He had died in his sleep without any apparent pain. He was in his 74th year.

Mr. Harbison came to the University as curator in February, 1933, having helped before that in securing the Ashe Herbarium from Mrs. Ashe in Washington. Since that time he has been actively engaged in putting the Ashe Herbarium in final shape for permanent filing, being assisted by one or more botanical assistants and other self-help students.

Widely Known

Mr. Harbison was widely known throughout the country as one of the most active and able field botanists in the United States. He spent a remarkably active life largely on foot studying the southern plants, and he knew how to find any particular species in a way that no other man could equal. He made numerous excursions with Mr. W. W. Ashe and was therefore able

Playmakers Book On Sale Here Now

Fall Issue Edited by Sam Selden
Honors Koch

Drama patrons will be interested to know that the fall number of the Carolina Playbook is now available in Professor Koch's office.

This number, edited by Professor Sam Selden, is a special feature edition, commemorating Professor Koch's 30th anniversary of Folk-Playmaking. In it is reprinted Proff's commencement speech made at the University of North Dakota last June when he was called back to Grand Forks where he began his Folk-Playmaking career in 1905.

Variety of Content

This number also contains an illustrated poem by Joy Kime Benton, a former student; three articles by Dr. Archibald Henderson, of the University faculty; a poem and an article by Professor Koch; a poem by Maxwell Anderson, well-known playwright.

COMER OUTLINES 'Y' CABINET WORK

Groups Plan Extensive Program
for Winter Quarter

Meetings to plan and organize the quarter's work were held last night by the Sophomore Cabinet and the Junior-Senior Cabinet. Y. M. C. A. Secretary Harry Comer outlined to the sophomore group the lecture program that the "Y" is sponsoring while Reverend Donald Stewart aided the upper cabinet in formulating their quarter's program which will be to determine a satisfactory philosophy of life that will cope with the problems of the modern world.

Lectures

Comer stated to his group that the Y. M. C. A. will bring to the campus five prominent lecturers by February 20 and plans were made as to the best methods of impressing to the general student body the importance and significance of these men.

The speakers are Harold Loeb, economist, who speaks tomorrow night; Claud Nelson, world traveler, who lectures Thursday evening; Kagawa, Japan's prophet, who is at Duke today and tomorrow; Dr. John R. Mott, who will give a series of lectures on January 26; and Robert W. Wicks, Dean of the Chapel at Princeton, who speaks twice here February 20.

The Sophomore Cabinet is now making a call for assistant scoutmasters for local Boy Scout troops. Students interested in this work are requested to see Stuart Rabb, Drew Martin or Cris Blackwell. A call was also issued for advisors to Hi-Y clubs and students interested should contact Manley Loomis.

Hedgerow Troup Here January 23 In 'Twelfth Night'

Popular Shakespearian Play to be Presented as First of Winter
Quarter Series

The Hedgerow Theatre will present Shakespeare's farce "Twelfth Night," at Memorial hall on January 23 as the first of the winter student entertainment series. Since added to the Philadelphia theatre repertory in 1934, "Twelfth Night" has played more often than any of their other 113 plays.

According to literary authorities, "Twelfth Night" is Shakespeare's most balanced comedy, combining farce and romance into a skillful poetic whole, which the Hedgerow presents in an uncut version. Under the direction of Jasper Deeter, the Bard's farce of mistaken identity in the mythical kingdom of Illyria, is brought to full stature. It is the most popular of the five Shakespearian productions in the Hedgerow repertory.

Like Original

The Hedgerow's interpretation is much like the original Shakespearian one, not in the Victorian tradition. It is dependent upon the entire company, as the Bard wrote the play for his company, this is historically correct. The Philadelphia Record critic said of the presentation, "It is a boon from the dramatic heavens. It is in the twinkling of an eye." (Continued on page two)

LECTURER

Phillips Russell, noted University professor and playwright, who today delivers a lecture at the Bull's Head on the subject "Owning Your Own Library"

ECONOMIST LOEB WILL SPEAK HERE

Harold Loeb to Discuss New Abundance Tomorrow Night
at 7:30 in Bingham Hall

"The Non-Production of Wealth" will be subject of Harold Loeb, prominent economist, when he lectures tomorrow night at 7:30 in Bingham hall. This lecture is being brought to the campus jointly by the Y. M. C. A. and the school of commerce.

Loeb's lectures are based on the findings of the National Survey. He was director of the now extinct federal government project, the National Survey of Potential Product Capacity. Fourteen economists and engineers with a staff of 50 assistants aided Loeb in gathering the statistics on which his conclusions are based.

Abundance

Wisconsin's Representative, Thomas R. Amlie, said the following concerning the lecturer: "Today the idea of potential abundance is stirring the western world in the same way that the idea of exploration stirred it four centuries ago. People are beginning to realize that the old age of scarcity is over and that a new era of abundance is possible. In the spreading of this new idea no one has played a more important part than Harold Loeb."

Chi O Scavenger Hunt Is Tonight

Sorority Pledges Honored with Annual Affair in Humorous Vein

All scavengers on the campus are hereby warned to make themselves as scarce as possible tonight.

The Chi Omega girls will be on the hunt, not for scavengers particularly, but for the 777th hair of Dean Bradshaw's head, a blue handkerchief from Jack Poole's vest pocket lost in the Arboretum under a full moon, the ringing bell from the bell tower, or any other thing equally as valuable.

The hunt is being given by the active members of the chapter. Each girl will be at the Chi Omega house at 7 o'clock ready to find miscellaneous objects with which to clutter up the house. Refreshments will be served later to the hunters.

The Chi Omega scavenger hunt is an annual affair given each year for the pledges of the local sorority.

COMPREHENSIVES TO BE CONSIDERED BY SIX STUDENTS

Rand Chairman of Committee to Work In Conjunction with Faculty Group

TO STUDY ABOLISHMENT

A special student committee of six was appointed by Dean R. B. House yesterday to meet with the faculty committee on examinations immediately to consider the question of abolishing the comprehensive examination system.

Headed by Trip Rand, president of the senior class, the student committee is composed of students representing various schools of the University. Besides Rand there are Irving Suss, Jake Snyder, Charles Poe, Jack Pool and Harper Barnes.

Request

Following a request by the DAILY TAR HEEL that a joint student-faculty committee be appointed for this purpose. Dean House answered by utilizing the existing faculty committee on examinations in collaboration with the students, whose names were suggested by the DAILY TAR HEEL Saturday.

If the joint committee can come to a conclusion regarding the comprehensives, recommendations embracing its decisions will be presented to the faculty for official action.

Professor S. A. Stoudemire of the department of romance languages is chairman of the faculty group.

CAMPBELL NAMES NEW COMMITTEE FOR PARENTS' DAY

First Year "Y" Councilmen Work
Out Procedure for Parents' Day

At the Freshman Friendship Council meeting last night, Billy Campbell, chairman of the parents' day committee, appointed a representative from every dormitory and fraternity to see that the freshmen living there invite their parents to the celebration.

Parents' Day, which will be held on February 12, is being sponsored by the freshman class under the leadership of the Freshman Friendship Council and the Y. M. C. A. Every department in the University will prepare an exhibit demonstrating some phase of its work. These exhibits will be used the next day in conjunction with Student-Faculty Day.

President Frank Graham and Student Body President Jack Pool will issue invitations to the freshmen to be sent home to their parents. Although the celebration is a freshman project, any parents who wish to come will be welcomed.

Miss Helen Hodges and Don McKee explained the program that was used last year and made appointments to discuss it further with committee members.

Ten new members were admitted in spite of the fact that only a small minority of the regular members were present.

ELISHA MITCHELL SOCIETY

There will be a joint meeting of the Elisha Mitchell Society and the Philological Club at the Graduate Club this evening at 7:30. Dr. J. O. Bailey of the English department will speak on "Pseudo-Science in Literature."
