"The open air of public discussion and communication is an indispensable condition of the birth of ideas and knowledge and of other growth into health and vigor."—John Dewey.

PLAN IN OPERATION

Naturally we are delighted that the athletic plan which Dr. Graham and five other college presidents sponsored passed the Southern Conference's official convention last Friday.

It is still somewhat puzzling to hear many anti-planners continuing to harp upon the foul discrimination of the athlete. Why these anti-planners are unable to see that they are fighting not only against the previous rule under which the conference operated during the discussion, but also against amateurism itself is beyond us. We suggest again, as we have suggested before, that these dissenters against a movement to do what we have supposedly been doing for decades in the name of pure athletics try the same method of finding the light as we tried—namely, simple analysis.

Post mortems are not in order, however, and the quicker we come to realize our obligations under the revised regulations, the better.

And, on the part of the student body of the University, we welcome into the Southern Conference fold the six schools to whom invitations to join have been issued: William and Mary, Richmond, Davidson, Furman, Wake Forest and The Citadel.

AND, FOR CERTAIN STUDENTS ON THIS CAMPUS WHO HAVE INSISTED ON SPREADING THE RUMOR THAT WE CHANGED OUR ATHLETIC STAND UNDER PRESSURE, LET IT BE HERE STATED THAT WE CHANGED OUR STAND ON OUR OWN VOLITION AFTER ANALYSIS HAD PROVED THE ERROR OF OUR FORMER STAND.

That is mentioned here, in black and white, for the gentlemen who have been voicing the lie that Dr. Graham forced us to back his plan following our former opposition. Some folks are pretty raw.

NEW SIGNIFICANCE

Last minute preparations progress at high speed as the finishing touches are added to almost completed plans for the second annual Student-Faculty Day. The co-operative efforts of the student and faculty members of the joint committee have assured its success.

As originally instituted, Student-Faculty Day is the result of an attempt to draw students and faculty members more closely into friendship and understanding. It is the one day in the scholastic year which offers opportunity for students and faculty members to get together as groups rather than as individuals.

This year Student-Faculty Day takes on a new significance. It is a chance for students and faculty to relieve their minds of the stress under which they have both been laboring during the trying days of haggling and wrangling over the Graham plan, over consolidation, and especially, the cheating ring. It is the psychological moment for establishing and entrenching feelings of mutual friendship and understanding between students and faculty which have been growing steadily on the campus in recent years.

REPORT COLDS!

During the current period of bad weather, many cases of colds and several cases of diseases of a more serious nature, some the result of disregard of what began as a common cold, have been contracted by students.

Rumor has ebbed and flowed during the last week that the infirmary had been overflowed and could take care of no more students. That is not true and has not been true at any time during the year.

The infirmary is performing its function of preventing and treating disease to the best of its ability. The students are not fulfilling their duty to themselves and to their fellow students by failing to report to the infirmary when their colds begin to develop.

Quick action on the part of the individual students in reporting for treatment as soon as trouble develops will not only save them more trouble but will prevent the spread of infectious diseases through themselves to their fellow students.

JAZZ-MAN

Above are pictured members of Freddie Johnson's campus band, which was featured in a special radio program last night over station WPTF, Raleigh, announcing to the state the University's celebration of Student-Faculty Day on Thursday. Johnson's orchestra will also be featured on the stunt night program in Memorial hall on Thursday night.

AS THE WIND BLOWS

By SAMUEL R. LEAGER

It seems that some of the larger and more prominent of our American colleges and universities are fully ready to substantiate the Santa Claus legend. In the past month or so shining financial evidence that prosperity is returning has been flowing into the coffers of the better known schools. Gifts from wealthy patrons and the estates of wealthy patrons have been the order of the day.

Harvard leads the lot with the enviable total of gifts amounting to over two and a half million. Two million of this came from Lucius Nathan Littauer, a retired manufacturer and former Representative in Congress, with the stipulation that it be used for the establishment of a graduate school of public administration. The purpose of the new school will be to train men scientifically for government careers.

The gifts to Harvard did not stop there, however. Thomas W. Lamont, wealthy New York banker donated the neat sum of $500,000 for the endowment of a chair in political economy. The work of the Harvard bureau for street traffic research received an added impetus to the tune of $54,250 from the Automobile Manufacturers' Association.

Among other large schools receiving gifts in the past few weeks are Johns Hopkins University hospital receiving $900,000 from the estate of Albert Marburg, retired manufacturer, Notre Dame receiving a total of $245,600, and the University of Chicago with gifts amounting to $170,500. For the last fiscal year Princeton reports gifts totalling $569,104, and Yale crashes through with a total of $6,719,846.

It looks as if Old Man Hard Times holds no terrors for those schools. Contrast their easy situations, however, with the tight fix Ohio State University found itself in at the first part of this year. Out of the budget submitted by the legislature to Gov. Martin L. Davey in May of last year, he had seen fit to veto the appropriations for such items as fuel, salaries, and maintenance of buildings, and the University was in sore straits to know whether it was going to be able to continue throughout the year or not. Fortunately, however, the state legislature last month passed a new biennium appropriation bill restoring most of the items vetoed by Gov. Davey. The to-

Poll

A survey conducted in connection with the campus poll showed that at present 36 eating establishments investigated are feeding 2,203 people, considered by the owners to be 59 per cent of capacity which would mean that local boarding houses, restaurants, and cafeterias could board a total of 3,739 people.

Average Costs

According to the survey, board costs range from $21.50 to $28.50 per month for three meals or an average of $24.50. The cost for two meals a day ranges from $16 to $20.

From the student poll it was discovered that 640 students eat no breakfasts.

The students showed a high preference for boarding houses as an average of 45 per cent eat all three meals at this type of dining hall. Included in boarding houses are fraternity dining rooms. The remainder of students eat in restaurants and cafeterias.

During the period 1925-35, the eating survey showed, 15 eating establishments in Chapel Hill have gone bankrupt, 17 have quit business for various reasons, four have moved away, and four have closed for reasons unknown.

Swain hall, built in 1913 and operated until the end of last year has shown several losses during the past 10 year period and the maintenance of the plant fell away in 1929 when, according to Rogerson's report, decreasing appropriations made this action necessary.

Senior Class

The entire senior class will hold an important meeting in Murphey hall tonight at 7:30, according to President Morris Rhodes. Dance leaders will be selected and the class will consider important business. Every member is urged to attend.

Marshals

Commencement marshals and class dance leaders will be elected by the junior class in room 103 of Bingham hall at 7:30 tonight. The budget for the year will also be presented to the class for discussion and approval. All juniors are urged to attend.

MAIL ORDERS ASK CONCERT TICKETS

Music Department Receives Several Requests by Mail for Swarthout Tickets

The music department reports a number of mail orders for tickets to the Swarthout concert, which is creating interest throughout this section, due to the fact that this is Miss Swarthout's only personal appearance in the state this season.

Miss Swarthout sang in Raleigh about 10 years ago, at the beginning of her career, and made a fine impression. Today she is considered one of the outstanding American singers, and is, herself, an enthusiast for American opera, with American singers.

Remark of Critics

Olin Downes, music critic of the New York Times, says of Miss Swarthout "A very distinct addition to the cast. The freshness and quality of her tones, the surprising virtuosity which she assembled made a strong appeal."

The Louisville Herald-Post says, "Personal radiance added subtly to the charm of her personality, the artistry of her singing and her fine musicianship . . . a voice of singular beauty, rich in quality and clear and vivid of tone and delivery. A recital superior to any Louisville has had this season."

The St. Paul Press claims that "Gladys Swarthout is a brilliant example of the younger singers in America today. She combines a capable, impeccable technical ability with a simple, sincere style of delivery that is far more telling than the gesticulating style of a few years ago."

Barnett

No System

"The thing to do is to discuss the problems of the honor system, thrash out all that is wrong, and to get definite ideas in mind concerning the workings of the system as we haven't a system of any kind now but are only dragging along," concluded Barnett.

In contrast with Barnett's idea Markham stated that at Virginia the fear of being expelled from the University hung over the students and played a tremendous part in curbing those who might cheat. Markham agreed with Barnett that the council has not been active enough in educating students as to what the honor system covers.

PLANS COMPLETE FOR PARENTS' DAY

Teas, Receptions and Visits to Dormitories and Exhibits Arranged

Featuring a number of activities for parents of University students, Parents' Day, held in connection with Student-Faculty Day, will be celebrated here tomorrow.

Teas, receptions and visits to dormitories and exhibits will occupy most of the day. At 7:15 tomorrow night, the Carolina basketball team will meet the Davidson squad in the Tin Can. Later in the evening, Gladys Swarthout, mezzo-soprano of opera, concert, radio, and movies will give a concert in Memorial hall. This is the only appearance that Miss Swarthout will make in the state this year.

On Thursday, Student-Faculty Day, students will be given a holiday and will mingle informally with their instructors. The program for the day includes a convocation in the morning, athletic contests, open house in dormitories and fraternities, a freshman basketball game, all culminating in a stunt night program in Memorial hall at 8 o'clock.
