

BULLETINS

Baptist Students — Baptist Students' Union party tonight at 8 o'clock in the ladies parlor of the church. All interested are invited.

Photography Staff — DAILY TAR HEEL, 12 noon.

Desk Staff — Meeting in DAILY TAR HEEL office 2 p. m. today.

Boxing

(Continued from page three)

125-lb. class: Cary, Virginia, TKO over Jenkins, South Carolina; Birmingham, Maryland, decision over Price, Duke.

145-lb. class: McClung, Virginia, decision over Taylor, North Carolina.

Because there were only four men entered in the 175-lb. and the unlimited classes, the semi-finals in these two weights were fought tonight. The four winners will fight it out in the finals of these two classes tomorrow night.

Results of semi-finals tonight: 175-lb. class: Matulewicz, Duke, TKO over Schmidt, Virginia, in first round; Gormley, Maryland, TKO over H. Askill, South Carolina.

Unlimited: Henley, Clemson, decision over Fletcher, Maryland; Cramer, Virginia, decision over Ray, North Carolina.

Shores, North Carolina, drew a bye in the first round of the 135-lb. class and will meet Kneipp, Duke, in the semi-finals tomorrow afternoon.

In the semi-finals of the other bouts tomorrow afternoon Eutsler meets Fred Hall of V. P. I., and Novich meets Caplin of Virginia.

According to the official draw sent from Charlottesville, Joe Fisher was scheduled to meet McClung of Virginia in the 145-lb. class and Taylor was booked to fight Joe Donovan of V. M. I. in the elimination bouts yesterday afternoon.

However, McClung defeated Taylor in the 145-lb. class and no report was received by the DAILY TAR HEEL last night before it went to press as to whether Fisher entered the conference bouts at all.

If Fisher moved up to the 155-lb. class to meet Donovan, one of them was eliminated yesterday, but indications are that Fisher did not enter the meet.

Car Stickers

Although more than 150 students have registered for car stickers, there are still a few who are driving without local identification.

Because numerous registrations were made yesterday, it was decided by the town to hold off the drive for local tags until the beginning of next week, when every student driving a car without city or University identification will be prosecuted.

INFIRMARY

Those confined to the infirmary yesterday were: L. I. Gardner, L. E. Martin, C. B. Davis, D. H. Leeper, John Miller, Victor Means, Justin White, Elizabeth Mansel, Eloise Gibbs, Mildred Mendenhall, Edith Wladkowski, Mary Potts, Robert Guarino, W. H. Leeper, H. B. Wadsworth, Alfred Engstrom, W. A. Barwick, M. M. McDonald, and J. G. Harris.

Social Note

Charles Rose, graduate of the University and a resident of Fayetteville, was recently elected to the Kiwanis Club of that city, and was also made a deacon in the First Presbyterian Church of Fayetteville.

Mural Basketball

(Continued from page three)
als by S. A. E. 18-17, but turned the trick this season and trounced S. A. E. in the semi-final round.

Old West came from nowhere to eliminate some of the favorite teams, and it was not until they had reached the semi-final round that any attention was paid them. With their outstanding triumph over Mangum, they stand an excellent chance of upsetting the dope and winning the campus championship.

Elisha Mitchell

E. W. McChesney, associate professor of biological chemistry, and D. P. Costello of the zoology department, will be the two speakers at the 367th meeting of the Elisha Mitchell Scientific Society to be held Tuesday at 7:30 in Phillips hall.

Dr. McChesney will talk on "The Analysis of Proteins," and the subject of Costello's talk will be "Some Effects of Centrifugal Force on Marine Eggs."

A good many people express a desire to help the under-dog (Ethiopia) as long as it is on the other side of the ocean.

SAND AND SALVE

By STUART RABB

WE CAN'T LOSE

In an expansive mood Thursday was "Big Jim" Farley. Returned to Washington after his sojourn beneath the warm but expensive Miami sun, "Big Jim" was talking to the newspaper boys about the coming elections.

With that brand of self-confidence peculiar to prize-fighters and political bosses, the versatile Democratic Chairman and Postmaster-General told reporters that Roosevelt just couldn't lose. "President Roosevelt," he said blandly, "will have more electoral votes in '36 than in '32."

The newspaper boys reminded him of the Literary Digest poll that wasn't quite in line with Jim's predictions. "Don't mean a thing," scoffed Jim. Then the boys asked him about Pennsylv-

The Theatre

(Continued from page three)

Johan and Ida Dahlberg sympathetically enough to produce the desired effect of dusty near-tragedy. Either there is too little emphasis placed upon the early characterization of these two, or the mood-setting lines at the opening of the play are not strong enough. Hester Barlow as Ida, John Hardie as Granpa Solum, and Harry Davis as the town drunkard were especially good Thursday night, Horace Ward as Johan especially inadequate.

vania, stating that there was opposition there. "Why worry about opposition?" demanded Jim.

A prudent person might safely call Jim an optimist. But even in politics, where optimism is considered necessary, there is a limit. There was a man named Solomon, who is quoted as having said: "Pride goeth before destruction, and a haughty spirit before a fall." Now Solomon may not have been able to run two jobs like Jim, but they do say he had more wives. There could be something in what he said.

Patronize Our Advertisers

With The Advertisers

Forty-three years ago when Chapel Hill was a village surrounding a small University of 400 students, Clyde Eubanks established his drug business.

As a student in the school of pharmacy, which was at that time a part of the medical school, he had been in the same classes with Dr. Manning.

These years of successful experience have contributed to the substantial and reliable business which is carried on by his organization today. Working with him are Carl Durham, who has been in the business with Eubanks since he was a boy, and John Holshouser. In addition to these two, who are registered druggists, he has his son, Paul Eubanks, who is also an alumnus of the University, and L. R. McClellan, who is now in the pharmacy school.

Eubanks was born in Chatham county, attended pharmacy school in Raleigh, and after completing his pharmacy course in the University medical school, saw an opportunity for a progressive drug business in a little town with no brick buildings but a future.

Sports Slants

(Continued from page three)

Although Quarles was out-classed by the New Yorker, he managed to make considerable trouble before losing the decision of the judges. In spite of this loss, we are willing to predict a bright future for the ex-Tar Heel, who is now fighting under the wing of Jack Dempsey, and believe he will be heard from again before many weeks have passed.

School Bulletins

(Continued from first page)

the necessity of repeating it in every booklet. In case information about all departments of the University is desired, the pamphlets can be bound into one volume.

The catalogue of the medical school has already been issued and the booklets of several other departments will appear shortly. According to present plans, 12 booklets will be issued every year, 10 in the spring, one in June, and one in October.

LOST OR BORROWED — A gold bill clip with the initials, PWM engraved thereon. Lost about a week ago somewhere around Chapel Hill. Reward—Phone 4161.

Chesterfields! well that's
different

- their aroma is pleasing
- they're milder
- they taste better
- they burn right
- they don't shed tobacco crumbs

They Satisfy