THE CAMPUS KEYBOARD

by Phil Hammer

To Improve, Not To Follow,
Is A University Function
That Can't Be Disregarded

To this generation of campus Carolinians is given the responsibility of intelligently solving the problem of an honor system which previous generations and the present one itself, allowed to disintegrate.

That an illiberal act of a few students was necessary to halt the increasing downward momentum which liberalism itself allowed testifies to one inherent failure of any system which operates under such free principles. That failure is the unwillingness of the responsible persons to accept conscientiously and assiduously the obligations of maintaining intellectual alertness.

No one can place the blame for the accumulation of rust on our student government mechanism on any one person or generation. Through a vicious process of continued disinterest, coupled with the failure of responsible persons to see clearly their duty in administering the honor system, it became so clouded that honor itself had disappeared as the philosophy of student government and the system misunderstood and despised, alone remained.

An honor system is only practicable when there is extreme honor consciousness present from which the application of the system is a natural procedure followed by the society. Retrospective insights into the history of our honor system here bear out the obvious fact that it was honor which students wanted and the system was merely an enabling structure which the students voluntarily imposed upon themselves to carry out two functions: educate slackers to the standards of the high moral code and punish flagrant abusers of this accepted ideal.

It were far better to abolish the system entirely, if it be misunderstood and misapplied, and to re-emphasize honor itself without a structural means for effecting those two purposes mentioned, than to change to some sort of proctor system. For no method of maintaining standards of conduct can be found which is both effective and educative other than one built upon the voluntary and spontaneous assumption of individual and group honor.

For this reason, a university such as ours with a tremendous responsibility to its state society must provide for student administration and maintenance of the moral law. That honorable practices seem to be the exception rather than the rule in many business practices out in life is no excuse for a university, always seeking to improve the strains of sons and daughters, to close its eyes to its duty.

Our honor committee in its final study of the honor system before its recommendations for its future has, then, not only the task of throwing light on our failure to assume responsibility but also to perpetuate a traditional function of our universities to seek only for the best.

POLICEMEN FIND FLEEING OWNERS OF TAR HEEL CAFE

Allgood and Saunders Apprehended
Tuesday, Brought
Here to Face Charges

NO DATE FOR HEARING

Allgood and Saunders, Tar Heel Cafe proprietors, were apprehended late Tuesday evening and brought here to face charges of embezzling and passing bad checks.

Chief of Police W. T. Sloan discovered the whereabouts of Allgood through a letter which the latter had sent to a student here demanding payment of a bill. Officer C. H. Wright went to Washington, D. C., apprehended Allgood and brought him here, where he will be held until the charges against him are heard.

Saunders in Spencer

Chief Sloan and Officer Wright learned from Allgood that Saunders was in Spencer. They arrested him there, but Saunders put up $500 bond and did not return to Chapel Hill with the officers. He came here yesterday, however, to face embezzlement charges.

Claims against the cafe proprietors from holders of meal tickets and bad checks amount to several hundred dollars. The men left town on the night of February 19 just after they had completed a drive for meal tickets and had signed checks in payment of goods they had received prior to that time.

Spurious Mr. Spear, He Giveth No Cash

Dollar-Giving Gum Agent
Impersonated as Many Produce
Sticks, Get No Returns

An impersonator of the Wrigley Company's Mr. Spear stalked Chapel Hill streets Tuesday night and broke the heart of more than one hopeful gum chewer.

An account of the imposter's heinous trick is being told by a senior in the journalism school, Bill Barwick.

Hopefully on the lookout for the dollar-bearing Wrigley agent, Barwick walked downtown on Franklin street Monday night, an opened pack of Spearmint in his pocket.

"I represent the Wrigley Company," interrupted a young man passing by. "Do you have your opened pack of Wrigley's?"

Proudly Barwick produced a single stick of gum and prepared to receive his dollar.

The supposed agent faked

HIGH SCHOOLERS TO DEBATE HERE

University Extension Division and N. C. High School Debating Union Sponsors

Teams representing 225 North Carolina high schools will meet tomorrow all over the state in triangular debates as a part of the 24th annual contest sponsored by the North Carolina High School Debating Union and the University extension division.

Each school will have two teams, one affirmative and one negative, which will debate the question; Resolved, That the several states should provide for the socialization of medicine.

Schools winning both of their debates tomorrow will send their teams to Chapel Hill to compete in the final contest for the Aycock Memorial Cup, which will be held during the University's annual high school week celebration, April 16 and 17. The trophy is provided by the intercollegiate debaters of the University.

National Topic

The problem of the socialization of medicine is also the national high school debate topic for the current year, according to E. R. Rankin, secretary of the union. Thirty-two high school debating leagues throughout the country will discuss the question in their spring contests.

Since the contests were inaugurated in 1913, 15 high schools have won the Aycock cup for one or more years.

FRESHMAN DANCE

Billy Stronach's freshman class executive committee last night set Friday evening, April 10, as the date for the annual Freshman Dance and picked Les Brown's orchestra of Duke to furnish the music.

Leaders for the figure will probably be elected by the class next week, according to Stronach and Johnson Harris, chairman of the dance committee.

Y. W. C. A. TONIGHT

The Y. W. C. A. cabinet will meet tonight at 7 o'clock in the "Y" to make plans for the student forum which the girls' organization is sponsoring Sunday night at the Methodist church. All members are urged to attend.

Important Issues To Be Considered In Open Meeting

American Student Union Will Have Meeting in Graham
Memorial Tonight

MEETING AT 8 O'CLOCK

The executive committee of the American Student Union has called a meeting of the organization tonight at 8 o'clock in Graham Memorial to conclude organization plans which were halted temporarily by the end of the quarter and to consider important issues before the campus at this time.

The committee invites all students interested in the union to come tonight and learn of the work of the organization so that they may take part in its activities this spring.

Constitution

Organization will be completed tonight and the adoption of the constitution for the American Student Union will be considered. Detailed plans will be discussed for an anti-war strike which the union is sponsoring April 22. The strike is a policy of the national organization in which local chapters in campuses over the country participate.

Graham Petition

The petitions which the union distributed on the campus before the holidays asking for support of Dr. Graham will be checked on at the meeting. The same petition was sent to Woman's College. Final reports from that campus have not been received.

The March number of The Student Advocate, A.S.U. publication, has been received by the local chapter and will be on sale. It contains an article by Phil Hammer, editor of the DAILY TAR HEEL, titled "In Defense of the Graham Plan." Other articles in the issue concern the program of student Liberty Leagues, the R. O. T. C., the reaction of Chinese students to the "North-China Autonomy" problem, and the anti-war strike.

ANNUAL FESTIVAL TO BE POSTPONED UNTIL NEXT YEAR

Lack of Funds Prevents Dogwood
Festival This Spring

The fourth annual Dogwood Festival, scheduled to be held at the University April 18 will not take place this year, according to announcement by R. M. Grumman, director of the University extension division and president of the Dogwood Festival, Incorporated.

At a recent meeting of the board of directors it was decided, Grumman said, that the Festival would not be held this year due to lack of funds with which to finance it adequately.

The event, featuring folk music, drama, dancing, games and handicrafts, has attracted thousands of visitors annually to Chapel Hill during the dogwood blossom season.

Plans will be made to conduct the Festival next spring.
