Before The Honor Committee Are Confusing Questions About Student Government

Very probably many campusites are wondering just exactly what the honor committee is taking so long thinking about and discussing. In order to explain a few of the problems under consideration and their tie-in with the more recent problem at hand, we take this opportunity for a brief insight.

A study of the honor system necessarily brings up a study of the student body and its capacities, abilities and willingness to assume the responsibilities of an honor system and the whole gamut of student government activities. One of the most difficult knots to untie is the practicability of student government when the same students which support it fail to maintain to any degree of perfection an inter-related honor system.

Whether or not we can study the students' ability to maintain workable and efficient student government distinct from their assumption of an honor system which utilizes student government in its administration, yet is based on more universal responsibility for its efficiency, is a moot question. A strict view cannot separate these.

For such a view considers the honor system as a continuous entity based not only on individual honor but on the democratic and educative methods utilized in its administration. By viewing an honor system in this light, with the three distinct yet intertwined elements of honor, democracy and education, we embrace in our conception not only whether or not a student body can be honorable and expected to transmit its honor into a system of maintaining it by a group method, but also the very method itself, its democratic ideals and approximation, and its educative motives and principles.

Thus, it embraces a unity which can be studied only through a complete analysis of the student personnel, student government, and the honor system all rolled into one. It has obviously not been accepted in many institutions where student government is evidently running along democratic lines while the honor system, as such, is being handled by faculty members outside of student jurisdiction.

It is needless to point out that a study of our system and our government here finds much food for thought in either light. It is certain that both conceptions must be understood and appreciated before any conclusions can be reached on either or both.

Radio Station's Survey Reveals Campus Opinions

Survey by Bob Pool, WBIG Representative, Shows Most Listeners Favor WDNC

Results of a survey conducted last week by Bob Pool, student representative of radio station WBIG, Greensboro show that 60 per cent of the radio listeners on the campus favor the type of programs broadcast by the Durham station.

Favorite programs of the U. N. C. listeners to WBIG is the daily broadcast of Lew Gogerty's dance music.

Co-operation

WBIG power was recently stepped up to 1,000 kilowatts. The Greensboro station plans to co-operate with different University departments in their scholastic work. A feature of this co-operation soon to be installed will be the presentation of Professor Bill Olsen's public speakers on the air.

Several of the speakers will go to Greensboro, while the remainder of the class will listen to and criticize them from the classroom.

Bill Parker, U. N. C. graduate is, according to Pool, advertising manager at WBIG and is also featured on the early morning program.

Decidedly Not

Pool relates how during one of his "man on the street" broadcasts, he accosted a hard-bitten old farmer and asked him the question: "Do you think Franklin Roosevelt will be elected?" Letting go a stream of tobacco juice on the pavement, the farmer strode up to the "mike", seized it and shouted: "Well, I hope the G—D—fool won't be."

On another occasion when

BAND TO ATTEND STATE FESTIVAL

Musicians also Plan Concert Tour of Western North Carolina This Month

The University Concert Band has accepted an invitation to attend the Eastern North Carolina Band Festival to be held in Raleigh Sunday afternoon.

Thirty seven members will leave Chapel Hill at 1 o'clock Sunday to participate in the festival with bands from 20 high schools, State, Wake Forest, and Duke bands.

Program

The program will begin at 2 o'clock in Memorial Auditorium and will include short concerts from all the bands present. A spectacular parade will follow through the streets of Raleigh, complete with drills and martial music.

The University band has been asked to attend the Coastal Plain festival in Tarboro May 10 and the Band Mardi Gras in Rocky Mount May 28, playing courtesy concerts at both places.

The organization will tour western North Carolina the week of April 27 giving 15 concerts while on the trip.

Robson Will Address Faculty Philosophers

Meeting to Be April 15; House Will Address May Session

Dr. C. B. Robson of the government department will present a paper entitled "The Influence of Philosophic Theories an American Political Thought" at the next meeting of the faculty Philosophy of Science club, April 15.

The final paper of the year will be given in May by Dean R. B. House, whose subject will be, "The Logic of a University." The club is composed entirely of faculty members and has attracted much attention both here and on other campuses.

Dance Tonight

At 8:30 tonight on the second floor of Graham Memorial the Veterans of Future Wars and the Future Gold Star Mothers will hold an informal dance. Students may become members at the door. Members will be asked to contribute 25 cents to be used for an anti-war demonstration. There will be refreshments.

TRABUE TO SPEAK TO "Y" CABINETS

Junior-Senior and Sophomore Cabinets to Continue Vocational Guidance Series

Continuing their vocational guidance program, the combined junior-senior and sophomore "Y" cabinets will hear Dr. M. R. Trabue speak Monday night on psychological measurements in vocational adjustment and placement.

Dr. Trabue, head of the department of education of the Greater University, is considered one of the leading educational psychologists of the country, and an authority on vocational tests. He is postponing a trip to Washington, D. C. to speak Monday.

This will be the second program in the series on vocational guidance sponsored by the cabinets. Last week Professor E. M. Bernstein spoke on "Business Trends and Cycles," and conducted a general discussion on vocations.

Dean Bradshaw will be the third speaker, April 13, when he talks on what colleges are doing in the way of vocational guidance for students.

According to Mac Smith, chairman of the program committee, the first three meetings

Late Bulletin

Greensboro was struck by a cyclone about 7:30 last night, according to a report received by the Daily Tar Heel late last night. Unconfirmed reports place the loss of lives at 10, with over 200 injured. Between 45 and 50 houses and buildings were blown down.

The wind, moving at an estimated speed of 60 to 75 miles an hour, struck the southern part of the city, demolishing many houses and some factory buildings. One building, supposed to be the El Moro cigar factory, was reported to be blown down. Rescue work was still going on when this message was received.

The cyclone was reported to be moving in the direction of High Point and Concord.

SEDALIA SINGERS TO PRESENT FREE CONCERT SUNDAY

Negro Group Will Appear Sunday Afternoon at 3:30 in Graham Memorial

The Sedalia Singers from the Palmer Memorial Institute of Sedalia, N. C., will give a free concert in Graham Memorial Sunday afternoon at 3:30.

This group of Negro singers, composed of students and faculty of the Palmer Institute, have become popular throughout the United States as interpreters of Negro spirituals. Their performance here last year was praised heartily by both students and faculty.

Alma Gluck, famous singer of the Metropolitan Opera Company says, "The singing of the spirituals of the Sedalia group at the Municipal Opera House last night afforded me one of the greatest thrills of my life. Mrs. Brown showed herself the master of the music of her people."

Gigantic Afternoon Program Planned For Student-Faculty Day; Dormitories Pledge Funds

Student-Faculty Day

All students who invited professors to dinner for the original February Student-Faculty Day are requested to re-invite the same professors for the April 8 holiday.

As soon as the students have extended the fresh invitation they are to call at the Y. M. C. A. and check off their professor's name. Unless this is done, announced Julien Warren, chairman of the invitation committee yesterday, faculty members will be assigned to other students.

SENATE OFFICERS FOR SPRING TERM TAKE OVER DUTIES

Trez Yeatman, President; Bob Williams, President Pro-Tem, Head Di This Quarter

The spring quarter of the 141st year of the Di Senate was officially begun last Tuesday night when a complete change was made in the group of officers.

At this installation program the senators placed Trez Yeatman in the chair as president. Other officers chosen were Bob Williams, president pro-tem; Crist Blackwell, critic; George Steele, clerk; and Fred Stein, sergeant-at-arms.

The "nays" were the final winners after a much heated argument on the bill: Resolved, that the state and federal governments should not attempt to limit lobbying activities in their respective legislatures.

The unusually long session of the Senate was closed with tentative plans for making the Di more efficient, chiefly by means of a drive for new members.

Odum Treats South In Newly Released Book On Economics

"Southern Regions of the United States" Is Title

"The Southern Regions of the United States,—set in the midst of superabundance of nature's wealth,—abounding in multiple resources of geography, human stocks, and American cultural backgrounds." This is the locale for the newly-released book, "Southern Regions of the United States," by Dr. Howard W. Odum.

Envisaging the United States as a vast mosaic of naturally-defined geographical regions and sub-regions, Dr. Odum, who is also director of the Institute for Research in Social Science here at the University, believes the logical approach to national social planning is by simultaneous, integrated planning of both the nation as a whole and the component regions of which the nation is made up.

Utilizing more than 700 varied indices and some 600 maps and charts and tables, this volume attempts for the first time a realistic and comprehensive picturization of the southern regional culture.

Infirmary

Those confined to the infirmary yesterday were: R. D. Snipe, W. W. Williams, D. R. George, R. E. Kirshman, Joe Rochide, and B. K. Milloway.

"Open House" Funds Pledged To Share Celebration Costs

Plans for Celebration Include Lawn Party, Street Dance, Athletics, Refreshments

EGG-THROWING CONTESTS

With the Interdormitory Council voting $72 and several prominent fraternities immediately agreeing to help share refreshment expenses, plans for the gigantic afternoon celebration Student-Faculty Day found firm footing last night and began to take definite shape.

Other campus organizations and fraternities which were contacted yesterday are still considering pledging the funds they had set aside for the original "open house" plans.

Patsy McMullan, head of the committee to arrange free refreshments and the All-Carolina Lawn Party under Davie Poplar, appointed Nell Booker, J. K. Svendsen and Wytthe Quarles to her food committee.

She stated that the committee was planning to serve free lemonade in the upper quadrangle where athletic events of all kinds will be taking place. "We'll quench the athletes thirsts!"

For the Lawn Party under Davie Poplar, all faculty mem-

Laundry Survey Reveals Number Of Socks Darned

6,234,200 Gallons of Water and 22,250 Pounds of Soap Used to Wash 5,250,000 Pieces

A laundry survey of the University Consolidated Service plants has just been completed.

The survey shows the volume of garments and labor that was involved last year in washing and finishing the garments of students and townspeople. Employing 76 people, the laundry department washed and finished 5,250,000 garments; used 6,234,200 gallons of water to wash them; consumed 22,250 pounds of soap in washing; used 918,990 pounds of coal to heat water for washing and to produce steam to heat the finishing machines.

Buttons

Fifty-eight thousand eight hundred buttons were sewed on garments, with no additional cost to patrons. The number of socks darned was 95,200, and 263,360 socks were washed and finished.

The laundry figures for this year have up to now exceeded those of the previous year by 11 per cent.

With the new service which has been inaugurated by the laundry department, it is hoped that the volume of business will be further increased.

Handkerchiefs

Heretofore handkerchiefs and table napkins had been pinned together before they were washed. It was found that the articles became slightly frayed where they had been pinned after washing and finishing several times.

To overcome this difficulty,
