FUTURE SCHOOLS SUBJECT OF TALK BY DR. McDONALD

Gubernatorial Candidate Says Opposition Has Stolen Most Of His Planks

TALKS AGAINST "MACHINE"

Professors and students sat in Memorial hall last night and heard ex-professor Ralph W. McDonald summarize his hopes for future education in North Carolina as a plank of his gubernatorial platform.

Dr. McDonald, who resigned from Salem College's faculty to attend the last state legislature, dwelt principally on taxation and education in his forty-minute talk.

Plank-Thieves

The candidate from Winston-Salem asserted that his opponents have stolen from his platform all but two planks: abolition of "the present state political machine," and abolition of the present sales tax.

He would turn to wealth that at present is untaxed, and with an increased revenue from it, improve "deplorable education standards that now exist here."

In introducing the "anti-machine candidate for governor," Dr. E. J. Woodhouse expressed pleasure in seeing "more educational leaders taking the field of politics."

At an informal reception in Graham Memorial following his address, Dr. McDonald answered questions concerning his platform.

Backenstoss, pianist, and S. E. Klutz, cornetist, accompanied the songs of the girls and later those sung by the whole assemblage.

Top Tenor Melton Hit Unusual Stride In His Ride To Top

Favorite Singer, Who Will Appear on Entertainment Series, Once Saxophone Player

James Melton, who sings here on the student entertainment series next Wednesday, had an unusual rise to national fame.

He was playing a saxophone in his own band at Nashville when a prominent vaudevillian advised him never to try the big city.

Melton's reply was to buy a one-way ticket to New York. There he was discovered by Roxy, who provided the young singer with an opportunity for stage experience.

Radio

Later he was introduced to radio, and as top tenor in the Revelers, and as soloist in the Seiberling Radio hour, Melton became the leading popular tenor of the air.

A concert tour with George Gershwin introduced him to a new public. Finally, a motion picture contract carried him to Hollywood, and "Stars over Broadway" was the result.

The young tenor is on tour this spring with Gunda Mordan.

GRAHAM EXPLAINS HIS PLAN TODAY

President Will Explain Fundamentals of Athletic Control Device at Senior Assembly

President Graham will lead a discussion of the Graham Plan this morning at 10:30 in Memorial hall at the senior class convocation.

The program was arranged by the senior class executive committee, which requested Dr. Graham to speak on his plan in order that the class might have a clear idea of his purposes.

President Graham's plan was adopted by the Southern Conference officials at a special session in Richmond, Va., Feb. 8.

Principle

The principle of the Graham Plan, according to a summary of the plan in the DAILY TAR HEEL, is that all students should be on the same basis in regard to financial assistance and the basis should be worth and need. Worth should be considered from the point of view of the purpose for which the institution is operated.

Students helped by individuals regardless of athletic ability will
