

Frankfurter Says Taney Rates Second Only To John Marshall

Discussion Limited To Commerce Clause

LAST LECTURE TONIGHT

Chief Justice Roger B. Taney should be rated second only to John Marshall in the constitutional law of this nation, Felix Frankfurter, noted Harvard law professor and adviser to Presidents, asserted last night in the second of the annual series of Weil lectures on citizenship.

The speaker, introduced by Dean H. T. Van Hecke of the University law school limited his discussion to the work of Taney in the construction of the commerce clause, merely making a brief reference to the famous Dred Scott case and showing that too much emphasis has been placed on Taney's slavery views because of the devastation of the Civil War.

Taney Tradition

Mr. Frankfurter asserted that the American political tradition represented by Taney and his colleagues is "definitely not that of Shay's rebellion or the later Populists, but rather that of which the insurgency of the elder LaFollette, the progressivism of Theodore Roosevelt, and the new freedom of Woodrow Wilson are in direct line of descent."

The lecturer showed how Taney undid some of the work of Marshall in his interpretations of the commerce clause, largely because he shared the Jacksonian belief that Marshall had thrown the balance of the constitutional protection unfairly against the public interest in favor of property. So he stuck

HOMER CUMMINGS WILL SPEAK HERE

United States Attorney General To Give Special Address Tuesday Morning

United States Attorney General Homer S. Cummings will make a special address here on Tuesday morning at 11:30 in Memorial hall.

Cummings, who is the principal speaker for the social service conference to be held in Durham Sunday, Monday, and Tuesday, will motor down from Washington.

Monday

He is scheduled to speak Monday night at 8 o'clock at the conference's general session in Trinity Methodist church on the conference theme, "The Administration of Criminal Justice."

Following his speech here the attorney general will leave for Pinehurst.

Gussie Guesses:

The co-eds want more girls in the University. They argue "safety in numbers," but it looks like they're biting the hand that feeds them.

The Weather: Fair and warmer.

Seminar Today

Weil Lecturer Felix Frankfurter will be featured in an informal seminar this morning at 10:30 in 103 Bingham hall, it was announced yesterday by Professor R. H. Wettach of the law school.

The session will be conducted on a question and answer basis, and is an attempt to provide opportunity for students to become personally acquainted with Professor Frankfurter.

The seminar, according to Professor Wettach, will be of special interest to students of the social sciences and allied fields. Everyone is invited to attend.

MEXICAN DRAMA ON BILL TONIGHT

Josephine Niggli Author of All Plays Being Presented; Audience to Choose Best

A story of Mexican independence, lifted from the pages of history with every incident authentic, and three other plays on Mexican life by Josephine Niggli will be given tonight in the Playmakers theatre at 9 o'clock.

Miss Niggli says that many of the speeches in her play, "The Cry of Dolores," are direct translations from the original Spanish. She adds, however, that "Azteca," a tragedy of pre-conquest Mexico, is more typical of Mexican plays than the other three.

Other Plays

"Sunday Costs Five Pesos," a comedy of a Mexican village, directed by Juanita Greene, and "The Red Velvet Goat," a tragedy of "laughter and a comedy of tears," directed by Larry Wismer make up the rest of tonight's bill, which is the last in the "Spring Tournament" series.

Mary Haynsworth is the director of "The Cry of Dolores," and Ralph Burgin of "Azteca."

At the end of tonight's program the audience is requested to vote for their preference of the plays in the series, basing their judgment on the quality of direction.

New YWCA Officers To Receive Training

Co-eds Will Attend Officers' Training Camp at Randleman

Members of both the University Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A. will join with other branches of the association this weekend in a state-wide training course convention to be held at Randleman, where the "Y" camp is located.

The delegates will consider plans and functions for the coming year and discuss the purposes and duties of the official members of the organization.

Those attending the convention are Billy Yandell, George MacFarland, Hoge Vick, Mamie Rose McGinnis, Elva Ann Ranson, Polly Pollock, Mary McKee, Julia Peebles, Josephine Kessler, H. F. Comer, and Rev. Donald Stewart.

Mangum Run-off

Hall Conley defeated Jesse B. Caldwell in a run-off for vice-president of Mangum dormitory last night.

FORMAL TONIGHT FINISHES DANCES OF MAY FROLICS

Luncheon at Durham and Tea Dance in Tin Can Included On Program Today

ORCHESTRA ARRIVES LATE

The May Frolics dances will end this evening when the last formal affair in the set is held from 9 to 12 o'clock in the Tin Can.

The program for today begins promptly at noon with a luncheon dance at the Washington Duke hotel in Durham. A tea dance will be held here in the Tin Can this afternoon from 4:30 to 6:30.

Clyde McCoy, forced to make a long hop from Berweck, Pa., where he played Thursday evening, did not arrive in time for the opening event yesterday afternoon but Bond Gaylord and his band from Redding, Pa., took charge of the festivities. McCoy and his Sugar Blues orchestra arrived later in the afternoon.

Figure

The figure will be presented at the evening dance. Henry Valk, dance leader, will escort Miss Harriett Valk of Winston-Salem. Jack Garrett, first assistant, will have with him Miss Eloise Hendrix of Greensboro and Bill Moore, second assistant, will have Miss Marion Fugitt of Atlanta, Ga.

The officers of the May Frolics organization will also appear in the figure. They are Charles Edwards, president, with Miss Geraldine Bonkemeyer of Greensboro; Frank Willingham, vice-president, with Miss Lucy James of Greenville; Buddy Upchurch, secretary-treasurer, with Miss Louise Brown Michaels of Greensboro; and Henry Clark, assistant secretary-treasurer, with Miss Frances Garrett of Danville, Va.

Completing the figure will be the house presidents of the seven fraternities sponsoring the dances and their dates.

Kasner Will Speak At Duke Convention

Columbia Mathematics Professor To Discuss Problems

Edward Kasner, research professor of mathematics at Columbia University, who is a weekend visitor in Chapel Hill, will lecture at Duke this morning at 9:30 on "Geometrical Transformations."

The occasion of Mr. Kasner's talk is a meeting of the mathematics section of the North Carolina Academy of Sciences. This morning's lecture will be held in room 110 of Duke's biology building.

Sophomore Orders To Hold Banquets

Shieks and Minataurs Will Hold Annual Dinners Tonight

The Shieks, sophomore order, will hold their annual banquet tonight at 8 o'clock in the Carolina Inn.

Following the meal speeches will be made by the officers of the club. The first will be given by President Jim Finlay.

Tonight at 7:30 the sophomore order of Minataurs is holding its annual banquet at the Washington-Duke hotel.

NEWLY ELECTED LEADERS ASSUME OFFICES MONDAY

Installation Services Will Be Held During Assembly Period In Memorial Hall

PRESIDENT WILL SPEAK

Installation of new campus officers will be held at a convocation Monday morning, May 4, in Memorial hall from 10:10 until 11:10, if present plans go through.

Speeches will be made by Dr. Frank Porter Graham, Dean R. B. House, Dean Francis F. Bradshaw, President of the Student Body Francis H. Fairley, and John J. Parker, secretary and president-elect of the Student Council.

Official Installation

Although some of the new officers have already assumed their positions, this will be the official installation.

The same provision for classes will be made as was made for the anti-war strike.

The new officers to be installed are the following: student body president, vice-president of the Student Council, editors of the DAILY TAR HEEL, Yackety-Yack, Carolina Magazine, and Buccaneer, the four officers of the Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A., the three P. U. Board representatives, the president and vice-president of the Athletic Association, the Debate Council representatives, the four officers of the three classes, the officers of the pharmacy, medical, and law schools, and the seven officers of the Woman's Association.

University Instructors to Read Papers at State Convention

The annual meeting of the North Carolina Academy of Science, which began yesterday and continues through today is being held at Duke University.

This University is represented by instructors and graduate students in the scientific departments here. Papers have been prepared by W. F. Prouty, Richard Edwards, and J. W. Huddle of the geology department; William deB. MacNider, pharmacologist; J. W. Lasley, Jr., of the mathematics department; A. E. Ruark, E. K. Plyler, and J. W. White of the physics department; and F. K. Cameron, A. R. MacCormac, and David Milne of the chemistry department.

HOUSE TO SPEAK AT WCUNC TODAY

University Dean Will Talk at Home Coming Celebration

R. B. House, dean of administration, will speak today in Greensboro with other leaders in education as a feature of the annual home-coming at WCUNC.

Others participating in the one-day event are Bishop Paul Kern, of Greensboro; Dr. W. P. Few, president of Duke University; and Dr. L. L. Goebbel, president of Greensboro College.

Dean House will discuss opportunities for service to education, as made possible by school presidents.

Dean R. B. House last night delivered the annual high school commencement address at Bur-gaw.

Honor Committee Report Recommends Modification Of Government Structure

Playwright

Charles Poe, editor of the Carolina Magazine, whose drama "Hangman's Noose," was presented by the Playmakers last night on their second bill in the spring tournament series.

Plan Submitted Creates Separate Councils For Classes

ASK CO-OPERATION

Chief among the proposals recommended by the honor committee in its official report released yesterday is a modification of the present student government set-up by the addition of a substructure of four class councils to work under the Student Council in administering the honor system.

The substructure councils would determine only innocence or guilt. If a defendant is found guilty, his case is to be carried to the Student Council, which will decide the penalty to be inflicted.

The substructure councils would be elected by the various classes from a list of nominees chosen by the Student Council. The class councils would have the responsibility of seeing that the honor principle is continuously presented to and understood by the respective classes.

Other Details

Other minor details suggested by the report, which was written by Phil Hammer, include recommendations to enlist the co-operation of the faculty and improve the presentation of the honor system to the student body.

The honor committee, appointed after the recent cheating-ring clean-up, is composed of: Phil Hammer, chairman, Bill Stronach, Niles Bond, Jane Ross, (Continued on page two)

CLUB ORGANIZED BY TOWN CO-EDS

Group Elects Committee to Direct Activities for the Coming Year

A "Town girls' club" was organized Thursday afternoon at a meeting of Carolina co-eds living in Chapel Hill homes.

The main function of the club is to bring together all girls living in town, so that they may know each other, and in this way secure co-operation between them and other groups of co-eds who have a greater opportunity of getting together.

A committee of five was elected by the group to work out the main purposes for the remainder of this year, a girl being chosen to represent each section of the town. Those elected were: Alice Eidson, chairman, Erika Zimmermann, DeLette Ruffin, Nancy Smith, and Jo Kessler. This committee will plan for a picnic to be held in the near future.

All town girls were especially urged to attend a marshmallow toast to be given Monday night by the Y. W. C. A. Membership in the "Y" is not required.

Dance Deadline

Mrs. M. H. Stacy, advisor to women, yesterday sounded a reminder of regulation after-dance hours to co-eds who are attending May Frolics.

A period of two hours is allowed all women students before they must check in after a dance's close.

PLAYERS APPEAR HERE TOMORROW

Brookwood Labor Players Will Present Labor Chautauqua In Graham Memorial

The Brookwood labor players, of Katonah, New York City, will present their labor chautauqua tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock in Graham Memorial.

The program will include plays, songs, and skits dealing with such current social problems as war, unemployment, company unionism, and the organization of a labor party.

Purpose

The purpose of the group is to entertain, and at the same time spread the message and ideals of the labor movement, stated John Martindale, extension director of the Brookwood Labor College.

The plays have all been written and produced by students at the school as part of their regular class work. Brookwood is attended by men and women workers from varied industries in all parts of the United States.

"Our students are not Broadway actors or dramatists," Martindale declares, "yet their performances have won the acclaim of critics and audiences in all parts of the country. Their lack of finish is more than compensated by the spirit in which they act these plays."

DRAMATIST WILL INTERPRET PLAY

Mrs. Holmes Will Read "Ethan Frome" Tomorrow Night

"Ethan Frome," a dramatization by Owen and Donald Davis of the novel by Edith Wharton, will be read by Mrs. Urban T. Holmes at the regular Sunday evening playreading in the Playmakers' theatre at 8:30 tomorrow night.

Still running on Broadway, "Ethan Frome" has been highly praised by critics as a realistic and entertaining picture of the old triangle seen in a new way. Pauline Lord, Raymond Massey, and Ruth Gordon are said to have reached new heights in their profession through their interpretation of the principal roles.
