

NEW HONOR PLAN IS APPROVED BY STUDENT COUNCIL

Sub-Structure System of Class Councils Will Be Submitted to Campus Vote

REFERENDUM WEDNESDAY

The Student Council has approved the sub-structure system of class councils for the administration of the honor system, it was announced yesterday by John Parker, president of the student body.

The sub-structure plan approved by the council will be submitted to a vote of the student body today.

The enabling structure of the honor system embodied in the Student Council's report is essentially the same as that recommended by the honor committee, which was headed by Phil Hamner.

The council, however, made changes in the number of students sitting on each class council, added a special council for the pharmacy school, and recommended that all class councils aid in the freshman orientation program.

The complete text of the Student Council's report, which will be submitted to the student body Wednesday, appears on page four.

At the referendum Wednesday the student body will also vote upon the personnel for the various class councils. The Student Council will select a list of nominees for each council and the classes will vote on these nominees.

UNIVERSITY AIDS ECONOMIC PAPER

University Joins Southern Economic Association in Publication of Journal

The Southern Economic Journal, which has heretofore been published by the Southern Economic association, became with the January issue the joint undertaking of the association and the Greater University.

The Southern Economic association was formed seven years ago through the efforts of Dean W. J. Matherly of the college of business administration at the University of Florida and a group of other southern economists. Dean Matherly was formerly connected with the University of North Carolina as professor of business administration.

The association published a bulletin which was about to go by the board, when the University agreed to take over the publication for the association. This action was taken at the meeting of the association here last fall.

Purpose

The journal has as its purpose the giving of a southern point of view on southern economic problems. It fills a gap which has before existed among learned journals.

The January issue, published in Chapel Hill, was enlarged and completely reconstructed.

G. T. Schwenning, professor of economics at the University is managing editor of the journal, and Albert S. Keister of the Women's College is one of the editors. These men were appointed by President Frank Graham.

Elisha Mitchell Society Hears Pharmacist Last Night

H. M. Burlage of the pharmacy school spoke at the 369th meeting of the Elisha Mitchell Scientific Society last night in Phillips hall on "The Development of the U. S. Pharmacopeia and the National Formulary."

His talk traced the development of Pharmacopeia and Formulary both here and abroad since about 1500. This move was first started in Germany where the legal aspects in the control of the preparation of drugs and medicines were first recognized.

Pay Your Bills!

All students are expected to clear their accounts with the University cashier by May 15, according to an announcement by the administration. This applies to tuition, fees, room rent, book exchange credit, and all other charges collected by the general cashier.

The cashier's office is open from 8:30 a. m. to 1:00 p. m. and from 2:00 p. m. to 4:00 p. m.

BAND WILL GIVE OUTDOOR CONCERT

Second Open-Air Program of Quarter to Be Given Under Davie Poplar

Charles Miller will be soloist Sunday afternoon when the University Concert Band gives its second outdoor concert under Davie Poplar.

A student in the music department, Miller came to the University last fall from Salisbury and has had considerable experience as a soloist. He will play the difficult "Grand Fantasia" by Hartman.

Symphony

In addition to Beethoven's "Moonlight Sonata" and other well-known pieces, the band will play the "Symphony in B Flat" by Paul Fauchet. Fauchet has the distinction of having written the first symphony for band. "This composition is one of the finest existing works for band and is rich in melody as well as harmonic interest," says Earl Slocum, director of the band.

New Dorm Officers Hear Dean On Rise Of Campus Residences

Bradshaw Thinks Dormitories Should Try to Achieve Same Ideal of Fraternities

Dean Bradshaw was the feature speaker at the inauguration meeting of the new dormitory officers which was held Monday night.

History

Tracing the history of dormitories from the time when Old East and Old West were the only dormitories on the campus to the present time, Dean Bradshaw began by relating conditions which prevailed in the early years of the University.

He said that these supposedly self-governing "bunk barns" were at first under chaotic rule. Conditions were so bad that a "damage fee" had to be imposed on every dormitory occupant. Often the refund of the five dollar fee was negligible.

Damage

Before he became a student here, Dean Bradshaw said that he was impressed to see, one day, a senior occupant of the "Carr barn" methodically chipping plaster off the walls of his dormitory with a hammer. The senior said that his reason for doing this was that he had paid the "damage fee" but, up to that time, had not been responsible for any damage done to the dormitory.

Duty

"I think that you can see from that that there is a real need for what you are doing," Dean Bradshaw added. "It is your duty to keep the dormitories from being bunk barns in the future."

Dean Bradshaw then went on to compare the dormitories on this campus with those at Northwestern University. He explained how the dormitories and fraternities at the latter institution were almost the same; the only real difference being the Greek letters over the doorways of the fraternities.

Ideal

The layout of the dormitories on this campus would not make anything like that possible, but at the same time it should be the aim of each dormitory officer to make his dormitory as much like a fraternity as possible.

Faculty Vote Decisively Favors Reopening Entire Consolidation Question

Separate Schools Of Engineering At Raleigh And Chapel Hill Requested

MOTION ADOPTED BY 80 TO 19 VOTE

In a decisive standing vote of 80 against 19, the faculty last night voted to adopt a motion that would request President Frank Graham to transmit to the Board of Trustees a series of resolutions asking that the whole question of consolidation be reopened for further study, and that separate divisions of one engineering school be maintained in Raleigh and Chapel Hill.

The faculty also adopted by unanimous vote the motion of Dr. J. M. Booker that the vote on the question of consolidation was not intended as an attack on President Graham, asserting that such action merely represented an honest difference of opinion on issues.

It had been pointed out that there was serious danger of the faculty's actions being misinterpreted by the public as an attack on President Graham.

Opposing removal of the engineering school at Chapel Hill, as was ordered by decisive trustee vote last June, the faculty asked that the resolutions "be transmitted to the president of the Consolidated University with the request that he present them as the representative opinion of a considerable number of the faculty to the Board of Trustees for their very serious consideration."

Talks

The resolutions were adopted after a discussion lasting two and one-half hours, during which about 20 members of the faculty made talks, most of them in favor of the motion, which was offered by Dr. H. V. Wilson.

The resolutions will be presented to the trustees at their (Continued on last page)

Long-Haired Thespians Must Ask Permission To Visit Barbershop

Playmakers Have to Go Before "Hair-Cutting Committee"

Did you know that the male members of the Playmakers Theater are required, by Playmaker unwritten law to obtain permission to get a haircut?

It seems that long hair is essential in the portrayal of character parts. If an actor has been assigned the part of an old man in one of the productions, long hair is more easily powdered, and it also gives a much more realistic effect than a wig would.

In making up an actor for a character part the hair plays a large part. Thus Proff Koch has made a rule that before a Playmaker has his hair cut, he must secure permission from the "hair cutting committee." Productions are usually staged at three-week intervals, so that is the reason the honor of shearing the heads of the Playmakers is a once a month affair with the local barbers.

DUKE PROFESSOR TO GIVE LECTURE TONIGHT IN HILL

Professor Stern, formerly of Hamburg, is considered a world authority in his field, especially in the domain of child psychology. One of the achievements for which he is widely known among laymen is his invention of the Intelligence Quotient (IQ) for determining the mental age of children.
