Texas Economist Predicts Another Depression in 1940

Visiting Texas Professor Foresees Complete Recovery in 12 Months by Spending

By RUTH CROWELL

"If we spend 20 billion dollars more than we are spending now, we can be out of the depression within the next 12 months, barring another World War. Then in 1940 we will have another depression, but we can stop that if we get control of the investment banks," said Dr. R. H. Montgomery, member of the National Resources Board, in an interview yesterday.

A small man from Texas, who wears larger than average hats so that people won't think he is from the East, Dr. Montgomery has a keen sense of humor and a gift of subtle sarcasm. He has been in Chapel Hill for the past few days visiting Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Moore. A professor of economics at the University of Texas, now on leave, Dr. Montgomery was in the resettlement work for six months and is now with the Resources Board.

Supreme Court

"Some day we are going to wake up and laugh at the Supreme Court—they are just stuffed shirts which we have surrounded with a halo of reverence. They are just like any other nine men, only older and behind the times," declared Dr. Montgomery forcefully.

Reviewing the trends in industry and agriculture, the professor explained that the problem facing the nation today is reaching a medium between the high prices of industry and the enormous production of agriculture.

Farmers

"Cotton farmers would be in swell shape if they cut production 75 percent as industrialists have done—only they wouldn't have a shirt on their backs if they did. Oh, this is an amusing world," laughed Dr. Montgomery.

"What I would really like to see done in the resettlement work is the building of communities of 250 inhabitants with enough land for them to farm cooperatively to compete with the big corporations now closing in," said Dr. Montgomery.

"What we want is goods, all we can get; and if we can't get what we need, something is wrong. If the banking system, the Supreme Court, or the Constitution is wrong—then change it," declared Dr. Montgomery as he left to call on Dr. Zimmermann.

HAMMOND ORGAN TO BE DISPLAYED HERE TOMORROW

New Concert Instrument to Be Shown in Memorial Hall

An entirely new type of musical instrument, concert model of the new Hammond organ will be used for a demonstration concert in Memorial hall tomorrow morning at 10:30.

This organ is not a pipe organ in that it does not contain either pipes, air pressure system, or vibrating parts. It is an organ, however, since it is capable of producing organ tones.

Although an electric organ it neither reproduces, as a phonograph does, nor does it simply transmit music, as a radio, but actually creates musical tones electrically.

It covers the entire range of musical tone color with extraordinary beauty and flexibility, and its volume is adaptable to every type of installation. The organ can easily be installed in any room with an electric plug.

On an organ of this type any familiar tone quality may be compounded as well as new tones which have not been heard before in musical literature.

The question, "How many stops are there on the Hammond Organ?" cannot be answered in pipe organ terms. More than 250,000,000 different musical tones can be produced on this instrument, covering the flute, diapason, string and reed families.
