No Rowe...

The only athletic situation at present on the campus that is the least bit indefinite is the boxing situation. With the resignation of Crayton Rowe as head coach, the Athletic Council is faced with the task of finding his successor. However, with Norment Quarles and Sam Giddens outstanding in the field of possible candidates and under the leadership of Maxie Novich, next year's boxing team ought to do the old University proud. Harry Again...

Harry Williamson has gotten that urge again—and will once more run against Chuck Hornbostel, Hoosier track flash, in a special 1000 yd.

race at the I. C. 4 A meet in Philadelphia this weekend. The race will feature the 60th anniversary of the annual track meet. Joe Mangano of Cornell was forced to send his regrets to race officials because of pressing exams. His place will be taken by Ernest Federoff, former Temple distance runner.

Grant or Allison?...

The Bitsy Grant argument really comes to a head tomorrow with the appointment of one of the Davis Cup team's singles representatives for the match between the United States and Australia in Philadelphia.

Though Don Budge seems to have one of the singles spots all sewed up, the choice for the other lies between Bitsy and Wilmer Allison.

The Australian lads have looked good in practice and will offer no mean opposition. Though we would like to see our native son get the appointment, common sense points out that Allison is a bit steadier by virtue of his experience in Davis Cup tennis play.

With the controversy comes out the story of Grant's match with Dr. McAuliffe in the Crescent Athletic club's tournament on Long Island in 1932. The wee laddie labored through two losing sets with a bad ankle and then settled down in the third and fourth to show the good doctor that there was still some tar on his heels.

In the all-important fifth set, Bitsy rushed through the games till he reached set point and then very calmly walked up to the net and defaulted, giving the match to McAuliffe.

It seems that for his own pride he wanted to win the match and settling that point, he defaulted to McAuliffe so that worthy might go into the next day's round, Bitsy's bad ankle spoiling his chance to compete further.

ATHLETIC OFFICE DEMANDS RETURN OF ALL EQUIPAGE

Director Fetzer Asks Students to Co-operate by Turning in all Equipment This Week

With the closing of school, the athletic department is making an attempt to round up all its equipment now in the hands of students. Two notices have appeared in the DAILY TAR HEEL with rather poor general response, and so over 500 letters will be sent out today to students still in possession of equipment.

If the liberal allowance of equipment is to continue next year every piece that has strayed or was borrowed from "Sarge" Kellar must be returned this week, according to Director Bob Fetzer. "Sarge" has promised to keep the store-room open from 9 to 12 o'clock in the morning and from 1 to 6 o'clock in the afternoon to receive all equipment.

Inventory

After all the equipment is returned, an inventory will be made. Dirty equipment will be washed, mended and put in shape for next year. Old and worn out equipment will be discarded and replaced with new equipment. However, before such a reconditioning of equipment takes place every article must be accounted for.

The following are some of the more important paragraphs of Coach Bob's letter explaining the movement to recover the equipment.

"The athletic department has followed a liberal policy in regard to the issuance of equipment for all varsity and freshman squads. We are always anxious to have as members of regularly organized squads during the college year any students who will attend practice, maintain a reasonable degree of training, take care of and return their equipment.

Equipment Retained

"In pursuance of this policy we have issued equipment to more than 700 members of varsity and freshman squads. Several hundred of these men have failed to measure up to the requirements for maintaining membership on their respective squads but have retained their equipment for personal use.

"Besides those who have been issued equipment, there are some students in possession of equipment who acquired it by picking it up from the field, locker rooms, dormitory rooms, the Tin Can or from fraternity houses. We are making a special attempt to secure the return of this borrowed equipment, and we are making appeal to you squad members to assist.

"We shall appreciate your immediate compliance in returning your equipment to the store-room and in helping us round up that which has been acquired unfairly."

Dare Devil Speedsters Will Compete In Indianapolis Auto Race Saturday

Twenty-eight Drivers Entered In 500-mile Competition Over Famous Course

By FLETCHER W. FERGUSON

Twenty-eight racing dare-devils have already qualified for the annual Indianapolis 500-mile automobile classic, to be run Saturday afternoon over the famous 2 1/2 mile track. Only 33 are allowed to start, and officials indicated that the five remaining places would be filled this afternoon.

In order to qualify, the drivers must successfully hurdle the 25-mile test run. The last four to qualify were Ray Pixley of Fullerton, Calif., Deacon Litz of Dubois, Pa., Roy Pointer of Detroit, and Harry Macquinn of Indianapolis.

Pixley headed the Monday's qualifiers with an average time of 116.73 miles per hour. For one lap, the Detroit driver turned in a speed of 117.44 miles per hour.

Meyer in Trouble

Louis Meyer of Huntington Park, Calif., the only two-time winner of the event, experienced considerable trouble with his car on practice runs, but thinks that a new motor block will remedy the situation. He has sent home for a new unit and will probably make his official trial this afternoon.

The race is an annual feature of the Memorial Day weekend, usually coming on that holiday. Hardly a year escapes without tragedy wiping out the careers of one or more drivers.

No more spectacular event— from a spectator's viewpoint— dots the American sporting calendar than this, as smashups, blowouts, fires, and drive-offs combine to keep the onlookers "on edge." Particularly is this true for those who have seats on the curves of the track, for any moment they may see a car fail to make the turn and come shooting off the track directly at them.

Entered again is "Wild Bill"

Cummings, 1934 winner of the event. This mid-western driver is a big favorite with the fans. He throws caution to the winds and is always up with the leaders at the finish. Hundreds of times he has miraculously escaped death, but seems to regard it as just being "in the game."

Petillo Has Record

Kelly Petillo, who swept across the finish line first last year, holds the record for the classic. He completed the 500-mile grind in 4:42.22.71, averaging 106.240 miles per hour. Cummings' winning time two years ago was 4:46.05.20, for an average of 104.863 miles per hour.

Limitations are placed on the amount of gasoline used in the race, and only 25 quarts of oil are allowed each car, thus causing many to be eliminated because they have burned up too much gas or oil, or because their cars have caught fire after their quota of oil was used up.

One trait that these drivers have is that they never want to quit. Of course no one can blame them as a goodly purse awaits the winners, and a great deal of expense is involved in preparing for the race.

"Products Competition"

Not only is this event a competition between drivers, but it is also a "products competition." The various gasoline and oil refiners, tire manufacturers, etc., supply many drivers with their products, hoping that the latter will be successful and a good amount of advertising may be obtained thereof.

The race is undoubtedly the hardest test to which a car or its accessories could be put. A couple of years ago, one driver had the brilliant idea of using pneumatic cushions in the driver's and mechanic's seats because it would eliminate a great deal of shock. However, after 300 miles or so, the terrific heat caused the cushions to collapse and the driver could not continue.

Gymnastic Work

By BILL LINDAU

There are those who believe that gymnasts are born—not made; but Dr. R. B. Lawson, director of Bynum says that this is just so much sheep dip. Successful performance in gymnastics, the doctor states, depends on the development of co-ordination between the mind and the muscles. This development is brought about by constant practice.

Work on the side-horse is perhaps, the best medium for development. Figures on the horse require fine control of the weight, besides speed and thought.

After the successful try for a monogram Monday, Gymnast Jesse Parker stated that his most worried moment came when he was to do the front roll to a handstand on the mat. This figure is among the most difficult in the whole list. It requires timing, muscle, and balance. These factors occur in order as the figure is done.

Dr. Lawson said that Parker is not the finished gymnast he would like to see. He lacks the polish and confidence of the expert, but these deficiencies can be eliminated through practice; and if Jesse's own words are any indication, these deficiencies will be eliminated. He intends to keep on with his gym work.

Speaking of difficult stunts, the boys at Bynum were exceedingly aroused after the showing of a sports "short" at the theater one night last quarter featuring a couple of U. S. Olympic gymnastic champions. One of these daring young men did a horizontal handstand on a stanchion of a horizontal bar, and then proceeded to chin himself with disconcerting facility. Getting into the horizontal handstand—which makes one look like a flag at half mast in a stiff breeze—is hard enough; but chinning in this position is an animal of an entirely different odor.

Exhibition

The first exhibition in ten years was run off Monday afternoon, in conjunction with Jesse Parker's trial for the monogram. About 50 spectators appeared—a small crowd; but every one of them stayed till the last figure was completed. More of the same will be found between the lines of the basketball menu to be served in the Tin Can next winter. In these, a different piece of apparatus will be used for each game. The exhibitions will be run off between halves; the programs will be varied. Clown events also planned.

Continual Low Rating Of Cleveland Indians Shows Bad Managing

Potential Pennant Winners Have Strong Team but Annually Fail to Produce Results

By RAY SIMON

"What's wrong with those Cleveland Indians?" has been a favorite question among baseball fans for the past few years. Annually the Indians appear to have a good chance to win the pennant, and yet when the time to cash in comes around, the Indians are found somewhere around fourth place.

That seems to be the favorite roost of the men from Cleveland—fourth place. At present they are a little behind their usual position, but may come up in short time.

Fourth place, though, is no spot for a team which has a logical chance for being at the top of the league. Barring one or two spots in the line-up the Indians have a pennant-possibility team.

Pitchers

Their mound staff is a strong one, just about on par with those of Detroit, New York, and Boston. The three H's, Harder, Hudlin, and Hildebrand, make up as good a trio as any in the league.

The outfield, with the possible exception of Gleeson, is a powerful one. Vosmick and Averill are sluggers of unquestionable ability. For the last few years they have been up among the select batters in the American league.

The infield might be young as far as major league experience goes, but it has already made itself known as a good one. In the key position of shortstop Knickerbocker holds forth, a sensation as a rookie and keeping up the good work this year.

Pytlak

Pytlak, the catcher, might not be the most sensational in the world, but he knows his business and would be a firm pillar on any team.

Thus, at a glance, the Indians appear to have the stuff necessary for a team with pennant hopes. Yet, they are residing in fifth place in the standings.

In such a case the blame is usually placed on the manager. The Cleveland front office seems to have realized this, judging from the rumors coming from that city. To all appearances it seems that the face of Steve O'Neill will be missing in the Indian's dugout within the next couple of years if he doesn't produce the desired results.

Band Concert

The University Concert Band will leave this morning to play at the annual Gallopade in Rocky Mount today.

In addition to playing at the concert the band will participate in a gala parade with bands from five other leading state colleges.

There will be no campus concert Sunday afternoon.

RUFFINITES TAKE WINNER'S CROWN IN MURAL TRACK

Lewis Comes Second; S. A. E. Wins Fraternity Championship, Third on Campus

Ruffin dormitory ran off with the annual intramural track meet yesterday as they scored 56 1/2 points to outscore their nearest competitor, Lewis, who chalked up 37 markers to gain second place. S. A. E., with 31 points copped the honors for the fraternities while placing third on the campus.

Five records in all went by the boards as a fast field stepped the various events in record time. Three-quarter mile run, 880 yd. relay, shot put, discus throw, and the javelin throw marks were bettered by Phil Kind, Marvin Ray, and Johnny Humphries respectively.

The 60 yd. dash finals, first event of the day, went the way of Wellons (Kappa Sigma), as he outlasted Sutherland (Lewis), and Shalom (Alpha Epsilon), to cop the race in the fast time of 6.8 seconds. Wellons opened fast and held the lead.
