

OPINIONS DIFFER AS TO POSSIBLE BOARD DECISION

Administration Officials Believe Trustees Will Reapprove Consolidation Decision

GROUP MEETS TOMORROW

Possible reconsideration of the engineering school consolidation has produced two schools of opinion in Chapel Hill, with both speculating as to the decision the Greater University's board of trustees will make regarding reconsideration when it meets tomorrow.

Phillips hall, center of the engineering school which will soon be moved to Raleigh under the plan, contains officials who believe the trustees will meet day after tomorrow and decide to reconsider the consolidation plan they approved one year ago.

Administration

South building, center of administration of the three units of the Greater University, contains officials who believe that the board's 100 members will reapprove its year-old decision on consolidation and bar reconsideration.

In either case, reconsideration of the engineering school consolidation will be sought. John Sprunt Hill, of the board's executive council, has announced his intention of appealing for a rehearing of the question.

Copies of all resolutions regarding consolidation so far made since the board's approval of the engineering combination have been sent each member of the board. These include the Chapel Hill faculty's resolution opposing consolidation of the Raleigh and Chapel Hill school.

Ray Noble Comes Here Fresh
From Success in Paramount's
"Big Broadcast of 1936"

BY BOB PAGE

Sophisticated... polite... Park Avenue... Ray Noble will bring to this campus dance music with a refined Oxford accent when he plays for the last four dances in the German Club Finals next Friday and Saturday.

Noble has gained fame not only for the top-notch group of musicians he directs but also for the many popular tunes he has composed and which have filled the air waves for the last two years or more.

Before he came to New York early last year to organize his band, Ray had composed the words and music for such hits as "Love Is the Sweetest Thing," "By the Fireside," "Goodnight Sweetheart," and "The Very Thought of You."

Hollywood

When he arrived in this country, his fame as a composer had preceded him to such an extent that he was immediately snapped up by Paramount to write songs for pictures and went directly to Hollywood.

"The Very Thought of You" was followed by the Noble song hit, "It's All Forgotten Now" and "Why Stars Come Out at Night," written for Paramount's "Big Broadcast of 1936," in which Noble and his orchestra were featured in a ten-minute sequence. Orchestras are still playing his two latest songs, "If You Love Me" and "The Touch of Your Lips."

Noble will bring with him a popular singer who has been largely responsible for the suc-

IVEY SEES UNION AS IDEAL CENTER OF CAMPUS LIFE

Newly Appointed Head Discusses Plans for Increasing
Utility of Student Union

PLANS ENTERTAINMENTS

Pete Ivey, newly chosen director of Graham Memorial, set to work yesterday after his appointment to succeed Harper Barnes and pledged himself to push the Student union into the center of all events on the campus.

Ivey expressed his ideal Student union as one which would be the headquarters of all student extra-curricular activities and the clearing house of many academic activities.

Information, Aid

He continued, "If a student has a desire to know anything about his classes and grades, the place for him to go is his dean's office, but if there is anything whatever a student should wish to know about campus problems and out-of-class functions, such as publications, debates, athletics, dances, organizations, special movements, and student government, the place for him to go is the Student union. Graham Memorial will be the middle man to give information and aid."

Ivey has served as assistant editor of the "Alumni Review" on the campus this year and will assume his new duties in Graham Memorial with the opening of summer school.

Entertainments

The new director wishes to attract more students to the facilities that the Student union has to offer and he intends to help do this partly through the sponsoring of entertainment programs in the lounge, such as stunt nights. At an interview yesterday afternoon, the campus humorist said that he would not elaborate his many other plans until later, other than to mention that he also intends to get

DODGE DESCRIBES LABOR PROBLEMS

North Carolina Employment Expert Thinks Statistical Training Is Very Important

"We expect college students to go out into the world and become wealthy," said Major James P. Dodge of the North Carolina employment bureau in chapel period talk yesterday morning to a small group of seniors. "Yet," he continued, "we have not provided them with financial training."

Unemployment

"The unemployment problem must be solved," he asserted. "This problem is a serious one, and will have a serious effect on all agencies for the advancement of civilization. The United States department of labor has sought a remedy for the situation by establishing nation-wide employment service bureaus, with branch headquarters in the states."

"The statistical end of the employment service is worth a great deal to the United States government," he continued. "It has been estimated that there are from seven to ten million unemployed in the United States today."

FRESHMAN WEEK GROUP TO DRAW UP PLANS TODAY

Plans for Fall's Freshman Orientation Week Still Incomplete;
Length Is Discussed

DR. SPRUILL WILL DIRECT

Plans for next September's freshman orientation week are yet incomplete, although the last of three freshman week committee meetings will be held today at 5 o'clock.

Under the direction of Dean C. P. Spruill of the General College, from 40 to 50 outstanding upperclassmen have been summoned by John Parker to help orient freshmen next fall, and all have reported to the current series of meetings.

Chief Worry

The group's chief indecision has been as to whether four or six days will be needed for the acclimatization of next year's new men to Chapel Hill.

Some criticism was directed at the length of time spent last September in the series of orientation programs. It has been pointed out, however, that hardly less time could be taken if placement examinations were to be graded and students assigned to proper sections.

Student Body President Parker has volunteered to direct student work in freshman orientation in September. Names of his helpers will be announced later.

YACKETY YACKS

New Yackety Yacks will be delivered this afternoon, tomorrow afternoon, and every afternoon during examinations between the hours of 2 and 5 o'clock.

Students must call personally at Graham Memorial, first floor, for Ned McAllister, business manager of the annual. For every quarter a student has been absent during the year there is a fee of $1.35 that must be paid before that student can get his book.

McAllister urges that law students get their books this afternoon before leaving town.

Comer, executive secretary, Chairman Yeatman has announced the following student members of the 1937 committee: Niles Bond, Ann Fauntleroy, Jim Daniels, Albert Ellis, George MacFarland, Don McKee, Frank McGlinn, Bob Magill, John Parker, Nick Read, Jane Ross, Mac Smith, Louis Shaffner, and Julien Warren.

MANGUM WINNER OF GRAIL AWARD

Upper Quadrangle Dormitory
Receives Plaque for Being
This Year's Best

Mangum is this year's winner of the plaque annually given by the Order of the Grail for the best dormitory, Fletcher W. Ferguson, secretary of the Inter-dormitory Council and chairman of the Grail Award committee, announced last night.

The upper quadrangle dormitory received a rating of 95.5, 14 points higher than the second ranking Manly. Third place went to Aycock with 80 points, and fourth to Old West with 79.

The selection was based on a well rounded program of dormitory life. The numerical rating is arranged on a sliding-scale basis, with the points given for each item as follows:

Basis

Intramural athletics: attitude (1-20), competitive spirit (1-15); council activities: inter-dormitory (1-10), individual (1-15); and the dormitory proper: physical condition (1-15), cleanliness (1-10), and conduct (1-15).

Mangum and Manly waged a fairly keen battle throughout. Mangum topped the group in all of the dormitory proper items, and tied with Ruffin in the athletic attitude item, while Manly led both in council activities. Ruffin headed the competitive
